

— 1875 —

a View of the land Howes Island situated latitude 2. 3. 19. 4. Longitude 164. 32. 16. west. of the meridian. P. M.

Saturday, Sept. 25th 1875
Cloudy, weather Wind, S.W. Strong breeze of wind got under way for Newport, at 8.30. A.M. got out as far as the point when it was blowing to land and we turned back and ran for New Bedford again wind freshening to a gale all the time layed in port all night, (at Newport) the evening Wind, S.W. X S.

Sunday, September 26th 1875
Cloudy, and Squally, weather all day, with considerable rain. Wind, S.S.W. S.W. A view of Norfolk Island, situated in South Pacific Ocean then we went to the westward and then N.W. fresh breeze in the evening from W. N. W. with a clear sky.

Monday, September 27th 1875
Layed in New Bedford, all day Squally weather wind, W. S. W. and S.W. blowing a gale

Tuesday, September 28th 1875 got under way from New Bedford 8.30. for Newport heavy sea on outside. Calm a portion of the time. arrived in Newport 4. P.M. Wind during the day, N. N.W. and around to the S.W. layed in Newport all night Wind N.W. with light squalls and strong breeze

— 1875 —

Wednesday, September 29th 1875 got under way from Newport, at 9.00<sup>a.m.</sup> for a sail outside went around Beaver Tail's light House, but being a nasty sea on with plenty of wind deemed it best to run for Bristol P. M. where we arrived Thursday, September 30th 1875
Layed in Bristol all day and evening.

Brig Lucy of Portland, Maine, Cloudy and Hazy weather during the day and evening Wind S.W. and S.S.W.
Friday, October 1st 1875
Cloudy and Hazy weather all day, wind S.W. and S. in the evening rainy with westerly N.W. and N.N.W. winds layed in Bristol all day