

Wife's Resolution.

Stabs tho' she be to me and love,
I'll ne'er pursue revenge;
I'm still the charmer I approve,
Tho' I deplore the change.

In hours of bliss we oft have met,
They could not always last;
And tho' the present I regret,
I'm gratefult for the past.

Forward and Prudish Damsels

The damsel too prudishly shy
Or too forward, what swain will possess;
For the one will too often deny,
And the other too often will say yes.

Epigram

You sprightly once courted a beautiful maid,
She asked a share you formed a connection in trade:
Not yet he replied but I have one in view,
For I hope to become sleeping partner to you.

The Path

"Do you" said Fanny, to other day,
In earnest love me as you say
Or are these tender words applied
Alike to fifty girls beside

Dear cruch girl cried I forbear,
For by these cherry lips I swear
She stopped me as the path I took
And said, You're sworn now kiss the book

Made up Beauty

False numps, false teeth, false hair, false faces,
Alas! poor man how hard thy case is:
Instead of woman, heavenly woman's charms,
Thy little wife - a common wooden doll thou art.
