Albany H. Chase
Lydia L. Sherman
Enoch & Lewis
Henry Blackford's that is all

The night was dark and fearful
The blast swept onward by A watcher pale and terrified looked forth with anxious eyes
2 verses
How wishfully she gazed
No gleam of morning was there
Her eyes to heaven she raised
The agony of prayer

A hundred lights are glancing
I'm glad to mention fair
And many feet are dancing
The heart not marring that Ongoing and joyous creatures
One little fawn out of your store
Would give that poor boy feathers
To his mother's care once more
5 verses

And in the dreddy lonely
 "Where" what and darkness reign her precious child for only lay mourning in her form & heres

And death a lone can give she feels that this must be
But a far manner to see him
And once again we are
