

Journal of the Brig. E. F. Adams

Wednesday March 3rd 1888
For all this 24 hours a strong N. by E. wind. Nothing in sight.

Thursday March 4th 1888
For all this day nothing in sight.
Fresh gale from the N. by E.

Friday March 5th 1888
For all this day a gale of wind from the North-west. Nothing in sight.

Saturday March 6th 1888
For all this day a gale from North. Nothing in sight.

Sunday March 7th 1888
For all this day a strong breeze from N. by W. Saw 3 humpbacks.

Monday March 8th 1888
This day begins with a strong breeze from North. Saw 2 whales at sundown gave chase so took Abidelle and latter part of day from N. by W. nothing in sight.

Tuesday March 9th 1888
For all this day a moderate gale from the N. by W. Nothing in sight.

Wednesday March 10th 1888
For all this day a moderate N. by W. wind and calm. Nothing in sight.
Have up the Starboard chase found no anchor in it. Employed the rest of the day hunting for it.

on a North Atlantic Ocean voyage

Thursday March 11th 1888
This day begins with a fresh N. by W. wind. The E. W. Morse got under way at 3.0 P. M. For the middle and latter part the same. Nothing in sight.

Friday March 12th 1888
For all this day a fresh N. by E. wind saw a cow + calf. Sent the waist boat and Captain in the Starboard boat to assist them. Saw several whales in the latter part of the day.

Saturday March 13th 1888
For the fore part of this day a moderate N. by E. wind. For the middle and latter part the same weather. Employed in taking out per provisions.

Sunday March 14th 1888
For all this 24 hours a fresh N. by E. wind and a heavy swell. Nothing in sight.

Monday March 15th
For all this day a moderate N. by E. wind. Nothing in sight. Employed in various ways.

Tuesday March 16th 1888
For all this day a light N. by E. breeze. Found and swept the Starboard anchor took it on the bow. Nothing in sight.

Wednesday March 17th 1888
For all this day a light E. by N. wind. Saw two whales to seaward and chased them until sundown.