

|     |                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|-----|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 124 | Friday, January 30 th 1835                                                                          | Commenced with Moderate Breeze in company with the Amethyst. Whirl and latter part some squally of rain seen.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|     | Saturday, January 31 st 183514 th 06149 th 50 W                       | Commenced with Moderate winds. Whirl part at 5 AM saw sperm whale lowered and killed one small one took him alongside and at 1 PM finished cutting the Amethyst got into the [redacted] 13 mi.                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|     | Sunday, February 1 st 1835                                                                          | Commenced with strong winds and squally a blizzard with rain at 1 PM finished with and made sail employed in getting ready for sailing at 6 PM squally wind and reefed the Top Sails. Whirl and latter part the same at 6 AM commenced sailing saw nothing from aloft so ends.                                                                                                          |
|     | Monday, February 2 nd 183514 th 13.5 E14                                         | Commenced with light winds and some squally of rain at 1 PM finished sailing at 4 PM calm in company with the Amethyst. Whirl part fine weather by up North latter part squally saw nothing from aloft so ends.                                                                                                                                                                         |
|     | Tuesday, February 3 rd 1835                                                                         | Commenced with brisk wind from the E. N. E. in company with the Amethyst. Whirl and latter part squally by up N. E. saw nothing from aloft so ends.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|     | Wednesday, February 4 th 183512 th 25149 th 03 W                      | Commenced with squally weather by up N. E. Whirl part the latter part fine weather or saw nothing from aloft so ends.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
|     | Thursday, February 5 th 1835                                                                        | Commenced with Moderate winds employed in mending the spanker at 6 PM by up the Amethyst. Whirl part light winds latter part brisk winds had one squally of rain employed in mending the spanker so ends.                                                                                                                                                                               |
|     | Friday, February 6 th 1835Latitude 10 th 7 SLongitude 149 th 25 W     | Commenced with brisk wind at 5 PM finished the spanker and bent it by up N. E. in company with the Amethyst. Whirl part strong winds and squally took in the Main Top Gallant sail and reefed the Main Top Sails. Latter part strong winds from the N. E. by up on one Starboard tack saw fubucks. Various employed in board so ends.                                                   |
| 125 | Saturday, February 7 th 1835Latitude 8 th 44 SLongitude 150 th 07 W   | Commenced with strong winds from the N. E. by up N. E. at 6 PM saw Island bearing 6 th N. W. distance 15 miles at 6 th spoke the Amethyst. Whirl part strong winds had one squally. Latter part strong increasing winds. Double reefed the Top Sails saw nothing from aloft.                                                                                      |
|     | Sunday, February 8 th 1835Latitude 8 th 48 SLongitude 149 th 42 W     | Commenced with strong winds from the N. E. by up N. E. Whirl part squally by up N. E. Latter part strong winds saw nothing from aloft so ends in company with the Amethyst.                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|     | Monday, February 9 th 1835Latitude 6 th 30 SLongitude 149 th 50 W     | Commenced with strong wind from the N. E. by up N. E. at 6 PM spoke the Amethyst. Whirl part moderate winds and pleasant. Latter part the same set all sail about the jib and Main. Top Gallant Sails and bent the other ones so ends nothing in sight.                                                                                                                                 |
|     | Tuesday, February 10 th 1835Latitude 5 th 02 S                                       | Commenced with Moderate winds and pleasant weather at 5 PM changed the Top Top Sails. Whirl part light winds latter part fine Breeze saw nothing from aloft employed in make in a Main Top Sails so ends in company with the Amethyst.                                                                                                                                                  |
|     | Wednesday, February 11 th 1835Latitude 4 th 30 SLongitude 150 th 00 W | Commenced with Moderate winds and pleasant weather at 2 PM saw sperm whale lowered all boats killed one took him alongside at 4 PM and commenced cutting at 6 PM finished. Whirl part employed in getting ready for sailing the Amethyst took one whale also at 2 AM tacked ship by up N. Latter part at 5 PM commenced sailing so ends with strong Breeze nothing in sight from aloft. |
|     | Thursday, February 12 th 1835                                                                       | Commenced with strong winds at 1 PM tacked ship by up N. E. at 6 PM finished sailing and set the Main Sails. Whirl and latter part brisk wind so ends.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|     | Friday, February 13 th 1835                                                                         | Commenced with Moderate winds same for part. Whirl and latter part fine weather saw nothing from aloft so ends.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |