

Saturday June 23

Begins with squally weather and baffling winds whale in sight going to NE quick at 2 AM lower 3 Boats and gave chase without success at 4 PM came back to the ship whale still in sight. Middle part Moderate and overcast Latter part fresh Breeze & baffling from westward ship on Starboard tack ending with rain.

No observations

Sunday June 24

Begins with strong breezes and rain from SE the ship on either tack under double reef Middle fresh Breezes from SE the ship by the wind on Starboard tack heading NW under short sail Latter part weather the same on Starboard tack under double reef heading E & S winds

Lat by Meridian Altitude 19,358
Long by Chronometer 118,478

Monday June 25

Begins & ends with strong breezes from SE ship by the wind on either tack spoke & glared with the Passage New-ark of New Bedford seen 11

Lat by Meridian Altitude 19,373
Long by Chronometer 118,486

Tuesday June 26

Begins with a fresh Breeze from SE. gaining with the Newark. Middle & latter parts more moderate ship by the wind heading & one sail in sight water variously simplified & cloudy.

Lat by Meridian Altitude 19,928
Long by Chronometer 118,338

Wednesday June 27

Begins with strong breezes from SE they on Starboard tack by the wind under double reef heading NE. water variously employed one sail in sight. Middle part Moderate by the wind on Starboard tack heading NE Latter part on either tack all sail set at 7 PM raised Spinnaker at 10 covered 4 Boats & ends Boats still chasing.

No observations

Thursday June 28

Begins with fine pleasant weather whales in sight Boats chasing gave them up at 5 going quick to SE. Middle part Moderate Latter part a strong Breeze from Eastward ship on either tack at 7 PM raised whales going quick lower 3 Boats without success & ends Boats still chasing

Lat by Meridian Altitude 19,086
Long by Chronometer 118,486

Spinnaker

Spinnaker