Mrs. A. W. Smith, wife of Rev. Edward Smith, D. D., died in Honolulu the last of January. She was born in Burr, Mass., Dec. 4, 1809, her family name being Tenney. Her childhood was passed in Brandon, Vt., and in 1832 she was married to Mr. Smith, the pair sailing soon after for Honolulu, where they have since served as missionaries of the American Board. In 1855 Mr. and Mrs. Smith paid their only visit to the United States during their long missionary career. Rev. Samuel N. Damon, who was the "Father Taylor" of the Pacific, died at Honolulu on Feb. 8, aged 70 years. He went out as a missionary Chaplain in 1844, and occupied that position with ability 40 years. Early in his missionary life he established a monthly paper called "The Friend," the first newspaper printed in the North Pacific, and at the present time an influential publication. He was held in high estimation in Honolulu, and his funeral was attended by many of the dignitaries, including the King and the Diplomatic and Consular Corps.
