

Monte Gale, got a glass of water, and left an order for dinner at three. Then on the Long March went over the house where Napoleon lived and died, stood beside the spot where he breathed his last and gazed on a marble bust. That is that on the spot, got a snail shell from under the window at the head of his bed. The Thompson, who has charge of the place gave me flowers that I have pressed. From there we went to the new house built for Napoleon, but never occupied by him. He having died before it was completed, it is now occupied by a French family named Marschal. We had a very pleasant call. They presented us with flowers from their garden to the Tomb and gave us lemon. Then to the spring and drank a glass of water from the same spring where he quenched his thirst. It is a lovely spot. Another Frenchman has charge of that he gave me a bunch of Opres and figs, and several ferns, also several slips of Geranium from inside the Tomb. That I have planted and hope they will live.
Then after gathering Moss, grass &c. went back to the Rose and Crown. Next and then called at a Mrs. Hamers. a Chrysomel his wife gave us such a beautiful bouquet then we started for home. passed the Alarm gun that was first when Napoleon left his house, and it overlooks all the rocks he was allowed to travel.
Then home. Just the Buiers. Mr. Moss's home coming down the opposite side of the Tomb from that we went up, arriving at home at 6 P.M. very tired, with our faces badly sunburned, but delighted with the day's adventures. We purchased pictures of nearly all the places we visited, and also ferns and flowers of some few women that were very anxious to sell them and they certainly looked as if they were poorly. The evening we had two invitations and accepted the first and passed a very pleasant eve at Mr. Polies, and were highly entertained by them with music, returned about ten o'clock very weary, and soon sought our beds. Very thankful that we had such comfortable ones. Truly I think enjoyed the day as much as any one and retired immediately after our return from the cemetery and slept quietly while we were at Mr. Polies.

Wednesday 19th This morn Mrs. Beckler went to the country to pass several weeks with Mr. Profe. We miss her very much.
Thatcher received an invitation to go with Mr. Stenters family to their country seat. To pass the day, and left with them about noon. This morn did not not return until nearly seven. Was delighted with his visit. I missed him so much, and was fearing he might get lost, but he returned with only a scratch on his face caused by falling on a rock. Tomorrow the Yankee Capt. are going to a picnic at West Lodge Mr. Mass's country seat. They go at his expense, some in his carriage others on horseback. Capt. Storking lost one mounted a horse to ride a short distance and came very near being killed. The horse was stopped by some men in the street or he would have been very badly injured if not killed. One of our men showed his knife, right before last, threatening to kill a man. He was tried yesterday and sentenced to two months imprisonment.
Capt. Will have him here to serve his term and discharge him. I feel sure that he will be
