

Tue. July 31st 1874.

Lat. 39.37 Lon. 50.54 W

Commences with light westerly winds.

We finished making
the cutting ^{stage} and got it rigged over
the gang way.

And so ends the day with us except

I have an awful
tooth-ache, which has made me jump

all day. I can't find anything that will cure it and more than that I don't believe there is anything that will cure it.

Sat. Aug. 1st 1874.

Lat. 40.07 Lon. 47.15 W

Commences with light S.W. winds.

two sails in sight
to-day probably
bound to Europe
by the course they are steering.

Saw Grampasses
this morning from mast head, but

have seen no sperm whales yet are

hoping to every day
and more than that I mean every minute.
