was standing on the Starboard side of the ship (on top of a cask) seized up in the rigging. The Captain (J. B. King) saw all the men left that was not interested in the affair, and told us to be harkened and here what he said, cautioning him by name. The Captain asked him if he would turn too and go to work. His reply was no. Then the Captain commenced to flog him with two parts of rattling line (head) I commenced to count as fast as he put on the lashes, and to the best of my knowledge gave him ~~seventy~~ 59 fifty nine lashes.) and when he had received ~~of~~ fifty nine lashes he said that he would turn too. The second and third officer seized the rope. The Captain having two revolvers one of them the boat looked down in his pantaloons waistbands. & the other

The second officer sharing some words with the Capt and first mate, and then he looked his things and went ashore.

had dinner about 1 PM. I should judge lashed the anchors, and the Captain took a boat and went ashore. got on board about 6 PM. took the boat in and took it on top of the scage, and then he asked George Carinkel who had been sitting backsteer, and told him to take his things and go forward. but for what I know not. at night the Captain headed the Starboard watch. Mr Bull acting crew as second mate heading to the eastward all sail set.

On 30th these twenty four hours commenced with a light breeze all sail set. The Starboard watch having eight hours out last night employed the fore part of the day in stowing the cables. No washing all in light of deck, mid and late part sailing.

On 31st these 24 hours commenced, nearly fine at 5 AM. went to masthead and a few moments raised sperm whales and all four boats, the two quater boats got one ahead, got them along side about 7 PM. standing back crew watched through the sight. laid about thirty miles distance.

On January 1st 1858. these twenty four hours commenced nearly calm commenced this morning to cut in in the afternoon started the works and commenced to
