

Hope

BR 4-1849 in lat. 12:31.50
Long 164:18 East
Bound to the Japan Sea

Hope is a star, whose brilliant ray
Gives the darkest night
Chases the hovering clouds away,
That veils the vexed horizon lay
And sheds a softening light

Hope is a gem, whose surface bright
Gives forth a cheering gleam;
Attracts each wandering ray of light,
Then stands and spreads it to the sight,
To gild the passing scene.

Hope is a dream, whose heavenly vision true,
Excludes a rising fear;
Catches new joys in distant view;
Whispers "I'll bring them home for you
To sleep secure coming year."

Hope is a faith, whose heavenly power,
Brings all our sorrows cease;
Smothers the storm when tempests howl
Disperses the gloom of death's dark hour,
And says "in heaven there's peace."

Then what is hope? Nay, what is life?

Without its cheering ray?

'Tis but a shade of bitter strife:

'Tis but a dream with sorrows rife:

A misty, cloudy-like day

But what is life when framed with hope

This be the mortal's given?

'Tis a vast space for reason's scope;

'Tis a wide field, whose prospects open

A brightening view of Rolling H.
