

The Ship. Philip. Feb. 4. 1835

Mar 25th Dear friend
 My days have ceased to be pleasant
 Madam since I have ceased to enjoy the continual delight of your society
 Where shall I seek for the charms
 Which your amiable disposition diffuses
 Around you the cool shades under which You discoursed so agreeably on the enjoyment
 Of a peaceful life and the advantages
 In which you astonished me by the brilliancy
 Of your wit displayed all the benevolence
 Of your heart in the beauty of your Maxims but I console myself with the Thought that you will sometimes dignify
 To remember me I sincerely hope
 That your joy may be equal to the Regret which I feel on account
 Of your absence

Benjamin Maccomber
