

all well. Jedidah slept here last night. I have been over twice your Mother wanted to do a great deal for me I took comfort talking with her about you. Father comes here very often always holds the babe, you see I have no name for her hope you will send her one in the letter that I am so anxiously looking for from the Islands. I wrote you last Sunday eve by Ruben West he is gone in the Russell

It is now ten o'clock & I feel very tired & think it so uncertain about your getting this that I have not much courage to sit up all night to write & as I can write so little of what I want to say to you that I must bid you good night with all the affectionate feelings of a Wife

P.S. Please learn the news of the Village from the bearer.

"The Baby is sleeping the Mother is weeping for the Husband that is far on the wild raging sea. When the tempest is swelling around her dwelling she cries Dearest Husband O come back to me."
