The joint Committee appointed by the two branches of the City Council to report "what measures are necessary to perpetuate in a suitable manner the remembrance of the signal repulse and defeat of the late Enemy before

Baltimore on the 12.th and 13.th of September 1814, beg leave to submit the annexed Resolve, together with such observations as in their opinion the occasion calls for.

Your Committee are of opinion, that there are in the affairs of nations, of cities & communities, certain important eras which naturally call for some commemorative institution. When a people are rescued from the grasp of despotism - when their condition is ameliorated by some momentous revolution - or when they have escaped from some heavy impending calamity thro' the intervention of a benign providence, the human mind in all ages has sought as well to record these events with indelible characters on the page of history, as to keep them continually in view by monumental remembrances. For the latter of these purposes were the arts of sculpture, architecture and painting introduced amongst men. These, present the subjects intended to be commemorated before the eyes of thousands who may not have time or opportunity to consult the volume of history, and produce a more lively impression on the minds of those who are not so debarred. To our youth, they furnish the most solemn & impressive lessons, and kindle a noble ardor to imitate these great examples. A brief review of that never to be forgotten period in the history of this City, when all America trembled for her fate, will shew with how much reason we regard it as important. Never can it pass from our memories, while gratitude holds her seat in our hearts, or while we continue to honor the brave citizens who bled & died in our defence.

The Country had been filled with anguish, astonishment & dismay, at the successful attack on our Capital,
