Family Fare

MRS. SRI MANGUNSARKORA, left, of Indonesia, a supervisor in home and community development in that country, who visited at A & T College, Greensboro, N.C., last week, is shown with Miss Martadireja Supodmirin, center, and Miss Florence Irving of the college faculty. Miss Supodmirin is an interpreter from the Indonesian Embassy in Washington. The trio was photographed at a buffet supper given by President and Mrs. Warmoth T. Gibbs.

Live as if expecting to live forever

Want a formula for a long and happy life for you and your family?

Here's the suggestion of a distinguished physician: "Live as though you were going to live forever."

This doctor feels that too many people worry about the great unsolved health problems He suggests instead that families support medical research and education, and let physicians and research workers worry about coming up with the answers in such areas as heart disease.

HERE ARE other suggestions for a long, good life from the same doctor and from others in the medical and health field:

1. Be moderate in all things. Excesses too often take a heavy toll later in life, but with moderation you need miss very little.

2. Keep fit with regular exercise. If you don't like sports or if your favorite sport has become too strenuous, try walking. One heart specialist, for instance, advocates a five-mile walk every day.

3. Have regular physical check - ups in your thirties and thereafter. Heart attacks, for instance, cause approximately one - third of all deaths among men aged 45 to 75 and are increasing among women past 50. Before these ages, your physician watches for danger signs so that he can save you serious trouble later.

4. Ask your doctor about the advisability of a blood cholesterol check. High cholesterol levels are a warning sign of possible coronary artery disease. Today such levels can be reduced by use of a new margarine based on nonhydrogenated corn oil as a replacement for forbidden fats. The margarine is sold only in drug-stores under the trademark Emdee.

5. No one can avoid tension completely, but learn to release it through exercise, a change of scenery or activities.

GLAMOROUS GRANDMOTHERS

Church is top interest of Philly grandmother of two

By KATHERINE COOPER

PHILADELPHIA — Whether employed outside the home or whether she is non - working, today's grandmother is active in her church, and-or she works with her community organizations — in other words, today's grandmother is wide-awake and alert to many things, inside and outside the home.

Take Mrs. Marguerite Newman, 3306 N. 21st St., of this city, mother of three girls, who is a "new" grandmother. Her granddaughter, Dreena Amaro is 10 months old and is a daughter of daughter and son-in-law, Barbara and Portio Amaro of 2406 N. 18th St. Andrea Baum her other granddaughter, is four months old and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Baum, 3323 N. 21st St., another daughter and son-in-law.

"MY MAIN interest is working with the church," said Mrs. Newman. "I'm a member of Zion Baptist Church, where I sing in the choir. — I've always liked music." Mrs. Newman is an aide in Church Group No. 4; a member of the Commission on Evangelism, which encourages new members to find clubs of interest in the church; is co - chairman of the Community Services Council of the Human Relations Council of the church. Besides these interests, she was the teacher of the Vacation Bible School, which had an enrollment of 179 or more children last summer.

"The Human Relations Council deals with some of the problems in the community — for instance if people have a problem they can't solve, the Council tries to help them by steering them to the proper agency set up to handle such problems," she continued.

MRS. NEWMAN has recently become interested in the Baptist Women's Interracial Fellowship.

As a member of the Evangelois, composed of her daughter, Miss Harriet Newman, soprano; Mrs. Martha Dixon, elocutionist, John Neugent, baritone, and herself as accompanist, Mrs. Newman presents her songs and poetry in church programs throughout the city. To the 21st Psalm Mrs. Newman has composed music.

For the 75th anniversary of her church she composed, "Our God Victorious Has Led Us." One of her favorites is "I Shall Sing Unto Him a New Song." Music is arranged by W. Russell Johnson, an officer of the National Association of Negro Musicians. Mrs. Newman is a member of the Musical Arts Association of Philadelphia and of the National Association of Negro Musicians.

Among the poems written by Mrs. Newman are: "God Is at Work," "The Ageless," "Enthusiasm for Christ," "Illumination." A few stanzas follow from "What Time Is It in Your World Today?":

"On the wall of an airport station
There hangs many a clock,
Telling the time in 40 cities
But in our lives it is time to take stock;
Time to take stock of the way we are living
Time to erase the wrongs we have done,
Time to turn from our wicked ways
Time to serve the Holy One,
Time to walk together children
Bound in unity by a new birth made free,
Time for us to tell how the Saviour
Fights in battle
For you and for me.
Now is the time to seek the King;
Time to walk in the narrow way.
It's time to expect the Saviour's coming
This is the time in our world today."

The next concert planned by Mrs. Newman will be held on the 5th of Dec. at Galilee Baptist Church, Trenton, N.J., 8 p.m.

Mr. Newman is president of the choir at his church, Haven Methodist, and is employed as a rodman in the construction industry.

Mrs. Newman enjoys cooking. She is a TV fan, but is disciplining herself to not let it interfere with her many interests.

COOKING IS FUN

Halloween sets stage for gay novelty party

By FANNIEJOE REID

With this week end comes the season of witches and goblins and a really good excuse for a novelty party.

Refreshment is, of course, an important part of fun parties.

Hot, stimulating and easy to make is richly flavored cream of chicken soup, studded gaily with slivered golden brown almonds.

Serviced in the living room in easy-to-pick-up mugs or everyday coffee cups, soup is a conversation making first course.

A PLATE of junior size shredded wheat, pan fried to a golden brown with spices makes crisp and zippy nibbling.

If a buffet meal is in order, plan something, after the soup course, that will keep hot in a covered casserole. Ideal for such a supper is shrimp creole.

With it you might serve rissotted salad, toasted onion rolls, fruit compote and coffee.

YOUR SOUP course is made with three cans of condensed cream of chicken soup, a fourth soup cans milk, a fourth cup slivered almonds and a tablespoon of butter.

Blend soup and grated onion. Stir in milk. Heat but do not boil. Saute almonds in hot butter until golden brown, stirring constantly, stirring gently until cereal is well coated with butter mixture. Continue to cook, stirring occasionally until cereal is a golden brown. Drain on paper toweling. Serve with soup.

fourth teaspoon curry powder, a fourth teaspoon celery seed, a half teaspoon onion salt and three cups junior - size shredded wheat.

Melt butter or margarine in large skillet. Add curry powder, celery seed and onion salt and mix well.

Add juniors stirring gently until cereal is well coated with butter mixture. Continue to cook, stirring occasionally until cereal is a golden brown. Drain on paper toweling. Serve with soup.

Whatever else comes out of the designing room, the shirt-waist continues to be one of the most successful styles ever devised. Here, especially designed for the tall girl by Jo Copeland is a proven winner.

Note the cummerbund-wrap and an above the waist emphasis which seems to shorten the figure. The placket on the neckline is stitched to top of the cummerbund where it is released into a loose buttoned tab. Narrow pleats make for a graceful skirt.

A dress whose time of day is determined by fabric choice—novelty cotton, toulard, shantung or even brocade. From this chart select the one size best for you.

Sizes	Bust	Waist	Hips	Length from Nape of Neck to Waist

Now's the time to plant bulbs

There is still time to transplant perennial seedlings Plant them in a well dreained soil.

Now is also the time to plant spring bulbs such as tulips, narcissus, crocus, hyacinth and squills. Select a well drained soil. Do not add fresh organic matter to such areas where any spring flowering bulbs are to be planted. The depth of planting will depend upon the kind of bulb.

LARGE BULBS such as the tulip, narcissus and hyacinth are generally planted four to five inches deep. The smaller bulbs such as crocus, grape hyacinth and squills are planted about an inch deep. In very light sandy soil these bulbs may all be planted a little deeper.

Dig dahlias, gladiolus, tuberous begonias, caladium and other fleshy roots, corms or bulbs that are not winter hardy. These should be dug and allowed to air dry for several days before storing for the winter.

Dry them in a place where they will not be injured by cold. After drying, they are ready to be stored in dry peat moss. Gladiolus are normally stored dry in bags or boxes without additional packing material. In all cases, store such bulbs at a temperature of 45 to 50 degrees since lower temperatures may cause injury.

SAVE LEAVES, old plants and other garden litter and use it to make a compost pile. Such a compost will be valuable for adding to the garden soil in the spring. To hasten the decomposition of such material sprinkle a hand full or two of a complete fertilizer over the material as the pile is made, then soak it thoroughly.

IT'S A WOMANS WORLD

Women 18 to 19 years old, peak employment participants

Peak participation in paid employment occurs among young women of 18 and 19. Among those who are older, the proportion declines, but only up to age 30.

After that year, the percentage of women in the labor force rises for each successive age group through the early fifties. Currently, the chances are about as good that a woman of 50 will be working as one of 20.

IN 1940, more than half of all employed women were under 25 and one fifth were over 45. Now one fifth are under 25 and almost two fifths are over 45.

The importance of women in their thirties, forties, and fifties as a new source of workers, on the one hand, and the significance of paid employment in the lives of these women, on the other, are closely linked to the aging of the population and to changes in patterns of marriage and childbearing.

THE RATIO of older to younger people has risen not only because people live longer than they used to and because birth rates declined between 1890 and the mid-1930's, but also because this country has placed restrictions on immigration since the 1920's.

Ten years have been added to the average span of adult life since the close of the 19th century, and the great majority of woman who are now 25 years old will witness the advent of the 21st century.

At the same time, there has been a reduction not only in the size of the average family, but also in the number of years during which the lives of married women revolve around the bearing and rearing of children.

THE BIRTH RATE has risen and the age of marriage has fallen since 1940. The tendency for families to have all their children during the earlier years of marriage has been accentuated.

Two long-run developments have been intensified; one is the decline in the number of years young women work full-time before marriage, the other is the rise in the number of years of employment among a growing proportion of wives and mothers.

The median age at which young women now leave school is 18, and that of marriage is just over 20.

Current patterns of childbearing means that many women may be free enough from the pressure of work at home to take a job as early as 10 to 15 years after they marry, if not sooner.

IT IS NOW common for women to be in their middle twenties when their families are completed, not to the end of their early thirties when the youngest child enters school.

At the turn of the century women who had several children were likely to be past 30 when their last child was born, almost 40 when that child entered school, and in their early fifties when the youngest child married.

No magic in 'magic button'

BALTIMORE — An initial decision recommending the issuance of a Fraud Order has been rendered by the Hearing Examiner of the U.S. Post Office Department against the Alvin Company of New York, sellers of a reducing device.

The Company is charged with selling through the mail a "Magic Button" which represents "That any woman who has too much tummy and-used the 'Magic Button' as directed will see the inches disappear instantly" as well as eliminating unbecoming inches from hips.

FRAUD COMPLAINTS were issued by the General Counsel against Slimlown, Inc., also of New York, for the sale of "Slimtown" through the mails. a product also alleged to bring about weight reduction; and against Evapo Weight, Inc. of New York, for selling through the mail "Pillo-Massage" and "Super-Vibramatic" devices alleged useful for spot reduction.

WITH THE LADIES: Pamela Strachan, a lovely from Nassau, Bahamas, B.W.I., was elected "Miss Benedict College" (Columbia, S.C. Friday)

Reigning for the year will be only one more activity added to her others of singing on the college choir, being a member of the drama club, the YWCA and Delta Sigma Theta's Pyramid Club. Too, she's a scholarship student.

Attractive Minnie Powell of Scotland Neck, N.C. was recently named "Miss Junior" by her classmates at A. and T. College. She's the daughter of the John Powells of the North Carolina city.

Add to other college royalty, Emma I. Smith of Exmore, Va., who held forth at homecoming festivities at Maryland State; and Barbara Johnson, 20-year-old senior from Greenville, S.C., who will reign as queen during homecoming week at Hampton Institute, the week of November 8.

Miss Johnson, who is majoring in Business Education, will be crowned "Miss Hampton" at coronation ceremonies November 7th prior to homecoming day, Saturday, Nov. 8th when the fighting Pirates meet Howard University for their annual football classic.

The regal role will be familiar to Miss Johnson. Last year she served as junior attendant to "Miss Hampton" and for two years has been the sweetheart of the Olympic Social Club. Foretelling her coming popularity, she was also chosen in her freshman year to be the ROTC Company Sweetheart.

Pretty, brown - eyed Miss Johnson does not spend all of her time however being somebody's sweetheart. She is corresponding secretary for the Women's Senate and the senior class; a member of the Business Society and the Year-Book Staff.

Her favorite hobbies include reading, dancing, and music. She is an ardent and vocal sports fan.

PARTY PRATTLE: Lillian Kimbrew Thomas held forth for her Delta Sigma Theta sorors in her Brook St., home in Hartford, Conn., Saturday evening.

On the meeting agenda were convention report by Ionis Bracy, Job Opportunities project report by Rosalind L. Putnam, program, by Gloria Branch; and membership committee report by Liz L. Martin.

Soror Putnam and her committee had organized the Job Opportunity student group into a Career Club, feted them and their parents at tea, where the latter became so enthusiastic with what is being done with their offsprings that they formed Mothers' and Fathers' clubs to back up a real good deal.

Newcomer Jean Procope Martin (from Philadelphia) now a Bloomfield, Conn. schoolmarm (she's the recent bride of Dr. Russell Martin) was welcomed into the chapter and went right to co - chairing the December luncheon. Other chairman is Billie Duvall.

Marie Clarke of Bridgeport won the Baptist Community Council's scholarship award to the University of Connecticut School of Social Work. Bailey Brown, who resigned as chapter journalist, won words of appreciation for a job well done.

Juliette Bursterman, Phyllis Clark, Guelda B. Davis (who heads the chapter) Marie Ferguson, Dorothy Friedlich, Marie Johnson, Marie Peters, Lillian Ransom, Olivia Shelton, Mildred Smith, Arneita Taylor and Lyla Warring also enjoyed Lillian's high level hospitality and delicious weight-making menu.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Strothern of Philadelphia were honorees at the dinner party given by Mrs. Strothern's sister, Mrs. Mamie Cooper of the same city, on Sunday.

The dinner was in celebration of the Strotherns' 20th wedding anniversary, and guests included:

Robert Strothern of Providence, R. I., Mr. and Mrs. David Bentley of Chester, Pa., Miss Sadie Bentley of Baltimore.

Mrs. M. B. Drummond, Mr. and Mrs. George Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Badger, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Chamberlain, Mrs. Caroline Fortune, John H. Crane, Dr. John J. Gooden, Mrs. Cleo Simms, Mr. and Mrs. Harold James, Laura M. Holmes and Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Bentley, all of Philadelphia.

PEREGRINATORS: Dr. Sadie George of Cleveland, Ohio, dashed down to Washington, D.C. today, to be speaker at the Virginia city's First Baptist Church's Women's Day Celebration. Traveling over the Mohawk Trail and into North Adams, Mass., last week, was Attlesboro Falls, Mass. In Baltimore for a bit has been School marm Betty Kolum, from Dutch Guiana.

Vesper services opens Fellowship observance

WASHINGTON

A national YWCA vesper service in the Washington Cathedral at 4 p.m. Sunday, November 9, and the Washington YWCA's 10th Anniversary International Food Fair to be opened at 11 a.m. Monday, November 10, in the Mayflower Hotel, by Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, will highlight the 1958 World Fellowship Observance of the Young Women's Christian Association of the U.S.A., the National Board of the YWCA announced yesterday.

YWCA representatives from all sections of the United States will be in Washington for the two events. At the same time, local YWCA's will hold simultaneous observances, including special services and other international programs, to keynote a week-long celebration. Mrs. John J. McCloy, of New York, is the national chairman of the Observance, and Mrs. Benjamin M. McKelway, of this city, is co-chairman.

AT THE service in the Cathedral Church of St. Peter and St. Paul, Dr. Roswell P. Barnes, executive secretary of the United States Conference for the World Council of Churches, will address YWCA representatives and the YWCA's special guests including government officials and representatives of embassies of countries where the YWCA is at work today. His address will be on the theme for the 1959 world-wide observance, "Behold, I Make All Things New."

Choirs from Howard University, Washington - Lee School of the Universities of Chicago and Western Reserve, Miss Morris was presented with the annual $1,000 E. P. Dutton-John Macrae Award for the Advancement of Library Service to Children and Young People. The award was given the recipient for her project, "Programming for Children in Public Libraries."

This presentation was made at the San Francisco meeting of the American Library Association. Miss Morris was credited with having shown vision, creative power, and rare understanding of human and social values.
