D.C. softball pitching star leads Army team to crown

MAINZ, Germany — Smiling Joe Abney, famed as a standout softball pitcher in Washington, D.C., is winning fame in the same field here.

Fast enough to steal a pair of bases, score from third on an infield out and fan twenty-seven opposing batters in four-teen innings of tournament ball, Abney led his Company C, 8th Infantry teammates to the Division Softball championship here recently.

Abney blanked the 708th Ordnance team, 5-0, to climax two - day tournament. The 8th won their way into the final with a tough 4-3 victory over Company B, 28th Infantry.

* * *

ABNEY completely silenced the opposition's bats. He had fourteen strikeouts in the championship game and got nine of them by striking out the side in the second, third and seventh innings. The speed-ball merchant gave up only two hits in the game.

In the semi - final game, Abney belted a home run, stole bases, struck out batters and personally ushered his club to the title.

Abney and John (Doc) Holliday, Abney's mound opponent in the finale, were the tournament's outstanding individual performers. They were awarded individual awards at a home plate ceremony by Col. William R. Peers, commanding officer of the tournament sponsoring 5th Infantry.

* * *

PFC. ABNEY attracted attention in the first three games of the tournament. In Company C's first clash with Headquarters Company, Abney struck out 17 to lead his team to a 8-0 triumph.

In a tilt with the 708th Ordnance, Abney registered 21 strikeouts and Company C again won by 8-0. In the return clash with the 708th he fanned 13 and won with a 9-3 score.

A native of Washington, D.C., Abney pitched in the All-Army Softball championship at Fort Riley, Kansas and the World-Wide Softball Tournament for his Army team at Clearwater, Florida.

Before entering the service, Abney hurled for the St. Cyprian A.C. and the Chestnut Farm Dairy team, both of Washington, D.C.

Top stables to vie for Pimlico dough

PIMLICO, Md.—A little matter of $17,000 or $18,000 stands between two of the famous horse owners who will campaign at Pimlico this fall and the honor of having the leading money - winning racing stable in Maryland in 1958.

Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs and Calumet Farm are the owners standing second and third on the eve of the Maryland fall opening, behind William Hal Bishop whose horses will not be on hand to defend the leadership gained during the three spring meetings in the State.

Bishop forces collected a neat $118,455 during the spring season. Horses carrying the colors of Mrs. Jacobs picked up $102,362 and Calumet was third with winnings of $101,200.

Tan athletes can put lie to West Virginia story

By JACK L. HODGE

A challenge awaits colored athletes at West Virginia University, particularly athletes now enrolled in high schools in West Virginia and the neighboring states of Pennsylvania and Maryland.

An editorial in the "Daily Athenaeum" of Oct. 23, the official newspaper of the university, asked:

"Is there a color line against colored athletes at the university?"

* * *

FRED SCHAUS, WVU basketball coach, told John Flynn, author of the editorial, that he believes integration for university athletic teams is a "few years away."

He explains this statement, the editorial adds, by saying that the situation would be too embarrassing for the colored athlete.

I assume that Schaus means that a colored athlete on his basketball team would be subject to embarrassment while competing against other teams in the Southern Conference, of which WVU is a member.

Schaus, an All-America eager at the university and former professional basketball star, did say, however, he will give a colored player every chance to make the team—provided that he comes out on his own.

* * *

THE AUTHOR of the editorial also spoke to Art Lewis, Mountaineer football coach, who said:

"Integration is the law of the land. If I was a good colored athlete I would go after him."

I have good reasons to believe Lewis.

While I was sports editor of the Athenaeum, he told me that he loved the spirit at the university, that as long as he kept a winning team he knew he would never lose his job back into the coal mines.

But I've often wondered why he hasn't been able to see a good colored athlete while on scouting trips.

* * *

THE EDITORIAL quotes one other source, Ray Duncan in physical education.

"There are no good colored athletes now on this state," the good dean states flatly.

A statement like that reminds me of a line said by Dr. P. I. Reed, director-emeritus of the School of Journalism at the university.

According to Dr. Reed, a boastful character walked into the midst of the regular "sitters" in the courthouse square in Morgantown, the home of WVU, and shouted:

* * *

"I CAN whip anybody in Morgantown."

He received no reply. "I can lick anybody in Monongalia County."

Still silence.

"I can whip anybody in the whole State of West Virginia."

On finishing the statement, a man got up and knocked him down, replying:

"You took in too much territory that time, bud."

DEAN DUNCAN is also quoted as saying that there are not any "really good" colored athletes in Pennsylvania either.

The physical education dean said that if a player of Jimmy Brown's caliber comes along WVU will grab him.

Dean Duncan is looking for a miracle, not an athlete.

Brown is an athlete extraordinary—All-American in football and Lacross and outstanding in track, basketball and baseball.

His coach at Syracuse is of the opinion that Brown could have been an All-American in basketball had he not divided his time between basketball and track.

* * *

THERE PROBABLY won't be another Jimmy Brown for some time.

And inasmuch as the university has never had a player of Jimmy Brown's caliber—of any nationality— WVU should be looking for an athlete who can make a Mountaineer team.

Getting back to Schaus' statement that integration for WVU athletic teams is "a few years away." I ask how long is a "few years."

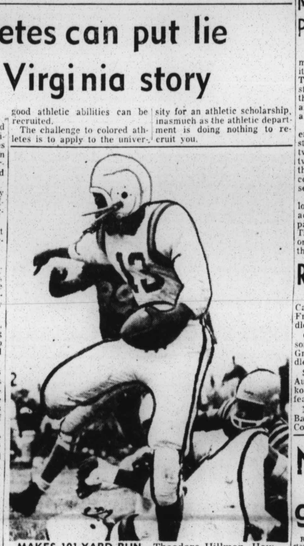
* * *

THE UNIVERSITY desegregated its graduate school in 1939; its undergraduate school on a token basis in 1948.

"Colored students with good athletic abilities could probably be recruited from high schools around the state," the Athenaeum believes.

I say colored students with good athletic abilities can be recruited.

The challenge to colored athletes is to apply to the university for an athletic scholarship, inasmuch as the athletic department is doing nothing to recruit you.



MAKES 101-YARD RUN—Theodore Hillman, Howard University freshman, steps over a would-be Fisk University tackler and one of his own blockers as he eases out of the pack to make his record 101-yard run. Hillman, former Phelps High Star, scored three touchdowns as Howard won 28-8. The 101-yard run was the second longest ever made in Howard Stadium, being four yards short of the stadium record of 105 yards made by Alvin Suter on a punt return against Shaw University in 1945.

Brown eyes all-time pro marks; tan stars shine

CHICAGO —Jim Brown, the entire sophomore fullback of the Cleveland Browns, continues his terrific pace on the parade to becoming the greatest rusher in pro football history.

Against the Pittsburgh Steelers, the 228-pound Brown picked up 133 yards to bring his four-game total to 653 yards on 94 attempts. This was an average gain of 6.8 yards each time he carried the ball.

SCATS win 3rd by 34-0

DENMARK, S.C. — South Carolina Area Trade School won its third straight EIAC conference victory last week by dumping Friendship Jr. College of Rock Hill, 34-0.

SCATS made its first score when Friendship halfback Joseph Circuit was trapped in the end zone for a 2 point safety. In the second quarter SCATS quarterback Marion Grant heaved a 25 - yard pass to Ray Coleman for their first TD.

Later in the same period Grant completed a 23 - yard pass to end James Wild who ran 10 yards to score. Ray Coleman caught a pass for the point after touchdown.

IN THE third quarter the SCATS took to the air again as halfback Wayne Goudelock completed a 20 - yard pass to James Wild in the end-zone for the SCATS third TD.

Another pass from Grant to Wild at the five and a lateral to Cleathern Miles resulted in another SCATS TD. The fifth SCATS touchdown came on a 10 - yard run by Cleathern Miles in the closing minutes.

Reject 'Judas Money' In Crucial Campaign

CONGRATULATIONS WERE in order for Marian Anderson after she spoke at a United Nations Week luncheon at Shoreham Hotel last week. Mrs. Isadore Letcher (left) and Mrs. Carrie Hackley (right) were among those extending congratulations to the internationally known singer who now is serving as alternate delegate to the UN for the United States.

BALTIMORE BEAT:

Hurt comment on bonus: 'Ship it off to China'

Eddie Hurt has one recommendation for disposition of the new 2 - point conversion rule: "They ought to ship it off to China."

The Morgan State College coach, having been on both ends of the effect of the new football regulation, was sought out this week for his view on it.

* * *

ON OCTOBER 11, Hurt's Golden Bears were holding a 13-6 lead over Maryland State College when the Hawks tallied a touchdown to make it 13-12, Maryland coach Skip McCain was thus faced with the alternative of trying for one point to tie or going for the bonus points to win.

(Followers of the game are aware that this year's collegiate rules award one point for kicking the conversion after a touchdown and two points if the conversion is made by running or passing the ball into the end zone — ed note).

The Hawks tried to run the ball and missed by little more than a foot, so Morgan emerged the winner.

* * *

LAST SATURDAY, Hurt was faced with a situation that was somewhat different, but one that involved the two - point bonus rule just the same.

Playing at West Virginia State College, the Bears were trailing, 8-0 the Yellowjackets having scored a touchdown early and succeeded in running for the conversion. When they scored, the Morgan players had no alternative than to try for the two points and seek a tie. They failed.

"I feel the same way about it the rule," says Eddie. "I don't like it. As far as I'm concerned, they can take it and ship it."

ASKED WHAT will dictate his strategy in the future, with respect to the bonus regulation, the mentor declares:

"It depends mainly on the situation. Against West Virginia, as an other instance, I'm confidence team, we would no one thing, and against a CIAA team, we do something else.

"In playing a non - conference club, we have to 'go for broke' if we're behind one point, look to tie if we're behind by two. Otherwise it is a different matter entirely.

"Even in games in the conference (CIAA), we'd have to think about the talent that may make the difference be-

With the opening of the 1958-59 season of the Eastern Professional Basketball League a scant three weeks away, the nine member clubs are moving into a period of feverish activity. General Managers and coaches are engaged in a last ditch hunt for the talent that may make the difference between a contender and an also-ran. The rosters of the National Basketball Association are being scanned daily as that loop moves toward its final cut down date.

Reports of the signing of glittering new stars have been coming into the league office.

The Baltimore Bullets start-ing from scratch with a bold club from a nucleus which includes Kentucky's Ralph Beard, Morgan College's Ernie Garrett, North Carolina State's giant Ron Shavlik and 6-10 Jim Drew of Alabama State.

Votebuying try told by minister

BALTIMORE

"Thank God, the masses of the people in the Fourth District will have no part of Judas or Judas money. . ."

This election - eve statement expressing confidence that 4th District voters will place their own interests above that of machine politics came last week from the Rev. J. Timothy Boddie.

Dr. Boddie, who is pastor of the New Shiloh Baptist Church and chairman of the Church Crusade for Freedom for the Coalition Ticket, issued his statement in commenting on reports that desperate Pollack forces are passing plenty of money around to sway voters in Tuesday's election.

THE REV. MR. Boddie further explained:

"Bargains have been made in some members of the race to sell their freedom for a few paltry dollars at a time when unity would keep us in pace with the marching millions of our freedom - seeking brothers all over the world.

"Some few of us may sell our birthright for a mess of pottage.

"To be bought is the worst form of slavery, for it is a personal consent to the bargain. Whoever buys your vote becomes your master."

Further, added the Rev. Mr. Boddie: "The Coalition Ticket is right and just. It is time for us to elect our own."

MOST OF THE Coalition Ticket candidates said they thought many 4th District citizens who may accept money from the Pollack forces would pocket it and still vote for them.

Setting forth their formation of the Coalition Ticket as an example of unity that crossed party lines, the Coalition Ticket again urged citizens to turn out early on Tuesday and vote for them in what they term "district's most important election."

Members of the Coalition Ticket include incumbent State Senator Harry A. Cole, and, for the House of Delegates, Mrs. Verda Welcome, Mrs. Irma Dixon, Mrs. Anne Winston, Dan Spaulding, Howard Dixon and incumbent Emory Cole.

The ticket included both Republicans and Democrats. They were opposed by a slate of slates as they are affiliated with the Pollack political machine which has long controlled the 4th District.

FOLLOWING are excerpts from statements made by members of the Coalition Ticket in answer to questions on various phases of the election prior to Nov. 4:

Incumbent Senator Harry A. Cole said:

"I feel confident that we will win. What we need is the united support of the community, voting for us. If this is done we are assured of victory.

"I think the people have had sufficient information from our candidates on the issues to enable them to be misled by any of the things Pollack will do to divide the colored vote. That is what he is trying to do.

"I further, in forming the ticket, we were unable to get any of the white candidates to disassociate Pollack, which means that he's running, not them, and if they are elected he will be elected and the best interests of the people will not be advanced."

DAN SPAULDING—"It will be overwhelmingly Coalition, without a doubt. I feel my own ward (33 Precinct, 13th Ward) will be for our entire Coalition.

"I think the voting citizen is too well - informed to be misled by propaganda.

"My advice to anyone tempted to accept money is to go ahead and take it and vote the Coalition Ticket 100 per cent.

"I feel this coming election as far as the 4th District is concerned is one of the most important ever held in Baltimore. The results will not only affect the 4th District and the City of Baltimore, but colored voters all over America.

Service academy exams announced

WASHINGTON — Congressman Frank Thompson Jr., (D., N.J.) announced Friday that the Civil Service examination for those applicants seeking nomination from the Fourth Congressional District to the Army, Naval, Air Force and Merchant Marine Academies will be held in Trenton on Nov. 15.

He expects to notify shortly all candidates who have contacted him of the time and place of the test and will use the grades attained by applicants as a basis for nominations to the various service academies.

Emphasizing that he feels the Examination is the fairest method of making nominations because of the large number of well qualified applicants from Mercer and Burlington Counties, Mr. Thompson suggests that any young men interested in nomination.

IBC cuts prices for Chicago bouts

CHICAGO (ANP) — A new price scale for Chicago Stadium boxing bouts was announced last week by President Truman Gibson of the International Boxing Club.

Starting with the Nov. 12 bout between Frankie Ryff and Eddie Perkins, several of the prices have been eliminated from the Stadium scale and the top price of $6.75 has been reduced to $5.00 including tax.

Only three price brackets will be used for the regular season bouts—$5.00 for ringside and boxes, $3.00 for the center sections of the mezzanine and $2 general admission.
