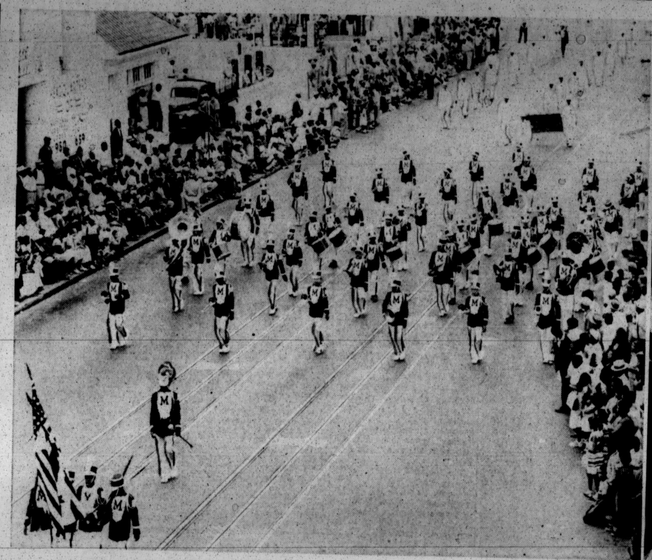
HIGH STEPPER FROM PA. — Heading one of the Pennsylvania units in the parade was Miss Lillian Naughton, a betassled majorette.



BIRDS EYE VIEW OF THE PARADE — Above is a birdseye view of the gigantic parade as it swung around 15th St., into U. St., after the trek from White House Square.

SOMETHING FOR THE BOYS—A side attraction which drew the eyes of many spectators away from the parade was the presence of "Miss Tina Swanson" of Baltimore whose fluffy hat and orange sheath dress attracted admiring glances until it was discovered that she was a man.

What They Saw at the Elks Parade

MAJORETTES FROM MARYLAND— Heading the unit from Sandy Springs, Md. was this trio of shapely steppers in the Elks parade Tuesday. They are Judy Harris Chandelee Lewis, and Mae Evans.

GRAND TEMPLE OFFICIALS—One of the most colorful units in the parade was the float graced by the ladies who compose the Grand Temple Elks officials.

SHE'S BUSHED — This little tot, the daughter of Mrs. Lillian Lee, proved a weary spectator as the Elks parade entered its second hour Tuesday—so she took time out for a nap on mamma's knee.

CONTROVERSIAL FIGURES — The Little Rock Children, along with oratorical and scholarship winners, attracted much attention on the educational department's float bearing the significant sign: "You integrate them, We'll educate them."

PROUDEST PARADER — Proudest man in the parade was general convention chairman Herbert E. Jones whose planning helped to make this one of the biggest conventions in the history of the Elks.

INTERESTED SPECTATORS — A view of part of the crowd who watched the parade near the reviewing stand in front of Columbia Temple.
