FRIENDLY SMILE from student nurse at hospital in Rhodesia, Africa, gives reassurance to a young patient. Shown also, is one of the hospital's British trained doctors.

Ton of babies, month's output of hospital in South Rhodesia

HARARI, Salisbury—Literally a ton of babies a month is born in the newly-opened hospital, here.

The hospital, one of the largest in the Southern Hemisphere, was opened in May, and accommodates 12,000 inpatients as well as 18,000 outpatients in this section of Rhodesia.

In the maternity block alone there will be ultimately 800 beds.

• • •

SOME FURTHER indication of the size of Harari can be gained from the fact that its laundry does the washing for all the hospitals in Salisbury, amounting monthly to some 150,000 pieces. In addition, the TB clinic will have wide facilities for examining and vaccinating the population of the city.

Feature of this hospital is the arrangement for providing accommodation for African resident medical officers and for African nurses. In this way an adequate number of qualified Africans can be brought to work with Europeans for the promotion of the health and well-being of their fellows.

• • •

THERE IS HOWEVER, a considerable shortage of nursing staff, twenty-six African student maternity nurses are at present going through their three-year training period. From the statistical point of view this will be of great use in the training of medical students coming from the University College of Rhodesia and Nyasaland.

The federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland has been remarkably ahead in its health schemes. The new hospital at Harari is an important stage in the struggle against the scourges of Africa.

WANT TO BE A CASHIER?

If you're good at figures, like machinery, this may be your job

By the NNPA News Service

The cashier's job is a very familiar one to most people since cashiers deal directly with the public in restaurants, stores, and many other retail and service establishments, as well as in offices.

The cashier uses a cash register to record by means of numbered and lettered keys and a recording tape, cash receipts and payments.

She may record amounts due on accounts, balance the accounts when payments are made, make change, prepare bank deposits, and perform a variety of related duties.

In doing some of this work she may use an adding machine, calculator, or other office machine.

SOME CASHIERS are responsible only for recording on the machine tape the prices of items selected by a customer, totaling these prices by machine, receiving payment, making change, and balancing out the receipts and items sold at the end of the day.

Others, however, may be required to record the desired information.

Bookkeeping machine operators may be designated as I, II, III, or A, B, C—depending upon the complexity of the accounts and items on which they work, the amount of skill required, and supervisory duties required of them.

In some offices, bookkeeping-machine operators are required to know bookkeeping methods. These operators are known by a variety of job titles, among them are account clerk, accounting machine operator, bookkeeper, poster, posting machine operator, and recording clerk.

THE BOOKKEEPING - MACHINE operator calculates totals and net amounts and records them on an account record.

She also records such information as name, address, items purchased or sold, and services rendered.

The operator must adjust and set the machine carriage and manipulate the keyboard in order to record the desired information.

DR. ANNA COOPER

Dr. Anna Cooper 100 years old, too busy to celebrate birthday

WASHINGTON — Dr. Anna Cooper was 100 years old Saturday, but she was too busy to celebrate.

Among the birthday greeting cards that found their way to her home, were those signed by President and Mrs. Eisenhower. Other than taking a look at her greetings, Dr. Cooper was too busy to celebrate.

On her centennial anniversary, the well known educator, was busy fussing around about some "material" which "they" had stuffed somewhere and she wanted it brought out so she could get on with her "book."

Dr. Cooper still occupies that rambling old house in Northwest Washington which once served as the home of Frelinghuysen University.

IT WAS' BACK in 1929 that Dr. Cooper became president of Frelinghuysen, a school founded in 1906 by Jesse Lawson, for Negroes who wanted to study in the evenings while working in the daytime. When the school needed a permanent site, Dr. Cooper offered her spacious home free of charge to the school and there it has lived in her memory ever since.

Having retired from the public school system where she had served over 40 years, this famed educator took on the task of teaching courses in religion, history and academics in the university. Prior to taking over this assignment Dr. Cooper had taught Latin at the old M Street school for four score years and served as principal from 1901 until retirement in 1906.

WHILE WORKING in this capacity she set out to make her students eligible for college scholarship awards, after having been informed that Negro students were ineligible for such scholarships. She obtained assurance from several colleges, including Harvard, Yale and Brown, to accept Negro students who were able to pass entrance examination.

As a result of this assurance, two boys from her school became the first Negroes to be accepted at Harvard without first studying at an academy.

Dr. Cooper was born in Raleigh, N.C., 100 years ago. Her father bought his freedom and that of his children. She graduated from Oberlin in 1884 where she later earned a Master's degree.

She was called to Washington as one of the first college graduates to teach at the old M Street school. Continuing her education the famed teacher received her Ph.D from Sorbonne in France in 1925. Four years later she became the President of Frelinghuysen.

• • •

SHE THEN waged a fight to have the school accredited but it never was. Although it went out of existence in the late '40's. The desk chairs for students are still arranged in rows on the rambling porch.

The sun room still carries the sign, "Registrar." And she still considers her home as Frelinghuysen University permitting the faded and chipped sign bearing that name to remain hanging above the doorway.

Baby's shoes need firmness

If you decide shoes are necessary when baby starts walking, pick out his shoes with the good development of his feet, and of his posture, in mind.

Baby's shoes will need to have firm but flexible soles that fit the outline of his foot, which is straight along the inside.

• • •

THE SOLES should be heelless and rough enough so that baby will not slip. If shoes, or floors, are slippery a baby may get to be afraid of trying to walk.

The upper part of the shoe should be of soft and yielding leather. Shoes should fit snugly at the heel, but be broad and roomy at the toe. They should be about a half inch longer than his foot and at least one-fourth inch wider at the toes.

Whip up a pair of thrifty toe-toasters in no time! For college dorm, TV relaxing.

Crab meat salad supper is answer to hot weather eating

As every homemaker knows, hot weather menu planning requires some pretty cool strategy.

Dishes must be so exciting and delicious that they perk family appetites out of their summer listlessness. At the same time they should be so simple to prepare that the cook is freed from the kitchen for her own share of summer's fun and sun.

A short cut to maximum taste goodness at minimum cost of time and work is, of course, the clever use of seasoning.

An added bonus in the no-bother department is instant minced garlic's built-in "flavor control." The garlic cloves, which are minced and dehydrated to form this new spice are all of uniform quality and potency. So — no worries about adjusting a recipe to suit a particular garlic clove's flavor idiosyncrasy (such as being overambitious or too timid).

To acquaint you with this delightful, jazz-easy way to flavorful summer eating, the American Spice Trade Association offers these recipes in which new instant minced garlic runs the gamut of easy-to-make gourmet dishes.

CRAB MEAT SALAD is made with 2 tablespoons instant minced onion, 1/3 cup chili sauce, 1/3 cup mayonnaise, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon powdered dry mustard, 1/8 teaspoon ground black pepper, 1/8 teaspoon instant minced garlic, 2 tablespoons tarragon vinegar, 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice, 2 cups diced flaked crab meat, 4 hard - cooked eggs, diced, 1 medium green pepper, diced, head lettuce and green pepper rings.

Combine the first 9 ingredients. Set aside while you prepare crab meat, eggs and green pepper. Mix all ingredients and toss lightly. Serve on beds of head lettuce. Garnish with green pepper rings. Serve as a main-course luncheon or summer salad.

YIELD: 4 servings.

GARLIC COCKTAIL DIP requires 2-ounce package cream cheese, 2 tablespoons milk, 1 teaspoon instant minced onion, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/8 teaspoon instant minced garlic, dash ground cayenne pepper, and Paprika.

Soften cheese and mix with milk. Blend in next 4 ingredients. Serve in a small sauce dish on a plate surrounded with potato chips, crackers and fresh vegetable sticks. Garnish with a dash of paprika.

YIELD: About 2/3 cup.

FOR QUICK SPAGHETTI SAUCE use 2 tablespoons salad or olive oil, ½ pound ground lean beef, 2 cans tomato sauce, 8 ounces each, 1/3 cup tomato paste, ½ teaspoon instant minced garlic, 2 teaspoon crumbled oregano leaves, ½ teaspoon ground black pepper, 1½ teaspoons salt, 2 teaspoons dried parsley flakes, 2 tablespoons instant minced onion, and ¼ cup finely chopped pepper.

Heat oil in a saucepan, add meat, and brown. Stir in remaining ingredients. Bring to boiling; then cook slowly for 5 minutes. Serve over hot cooked spaghetti.

YIELD: 6 servings.

MAKE BARBECUED CHICKEN LEGS as follows — Place chicken legs over the grill. Cook slowly 45 minutes, basting with warm salt water (3 teaspoons salt to 1 cup warm water) every 5 minutes or so until the chicken appears dry.

Then, baste with All-Purpose Barbecue Sauce every 5 minutes until done, 20 to 25 minutes. Turn to cook uniformly.

CRAB MEAT SALAD — The newest seasoning to be introduced by the spice trade, instant minced garlic, is the flavor highlight of this crab meat supper salad.

CITY'S NEWEST SCHOOL — This is the Rutland Elementary School at Rutland and Federal Sts., which opened its doors to pupils for the first time on Thursday. The school will help ease overcrowding of other educational facilities in the area. The building cost $1,943,320. It has 27 classrooms, an auditorium with a seating capacity of 350, a gymnasium, and a cafeteria large enough to feed over 500 pupils. There is also a five room health suite, an art service room, a library, and a utility room.

'NOW HERE'S WHAT WE'LL DO:'—The faculty of the new Rutland Elementary School at Rutland and Federal Sts., are eyeing last minute instructions on the fall curriculum from vice-principal Mrs. Kathryn T. Frisby (seated at table at right in light dress). Five of the 31 faculty members are absent.

'Must educate public to needs of education'—Eisenhower

"We must educate the whole public to the needs of education."

Dr. Milton B. Eisenhower, president of Johns Hopkins University, offered this suggestion Wednesday afternoon to teachers and officials of Baltimore's public schools.

Dr. Eisenhower was guest speaker before an assembly of the teachers at Memorial Stadium.

The occasion was the School Board's annual greetings, prior to the opening of city schools for a new term.

• • •

DR. EISENHOWER stressed five points additionally, which he said were necessary in the field of education.

1. Salaries at all levels must be raised, until they will attract and help to keep competent instructors.

2. Teacher-training standards must be improved.

3. More buildings are needed, not only for students, but because scientific equipment requires more space.

4. There must be a greater concentration on true educational subjects, eliminating costly subordinate ones.

5. More aids, including more scholarships, must be given students to facilitate their continued education.

• • •

"WE WILL keep freedom in the United States," he said in quoting Thomas Jefferson, "so long as there is rising education and understanding among all the people."

He lauded Baltimore's school system, stating that it is recognized throughout the nation as being superior and above all above average.

Dr. Eisenhower pointed out that 45 million young people were enrolled in schools throughout the country last year.

He said 32 million were in elementary schools, 9 million in secondary schools, and 3.6 million in colleges and universities.

This total figure, he said, represents an increase of 4 million over two years ago.

The increase, Dr. Eisenhower pointed out, was higher at the college level where 45 per cent more students were enrolled than in 1951.

Their age group was up only 2 per cent, he said.

He stated that 25 per cent of all students who finish high schools enter college.

This porportion will rise to 50 per cent in a few years, he predicted.

A million dollar program to match a million dollar school building

"This is a million dollar building.

"Our problem here is to establish a million dollar program to equal the cost of the building.

"What we, the administration, the faculty and the parents of the children must realize is that unless we get the results commensurate with what we put into the job—our efforts, time, and labor,—then, we are wasting our time."

That's the message before the new Rutland Elementary School which opened for the FIRST time yesterday (Wednesday) at Rutland and Federal Sts., in the words of its principal, Edward Murray.

The beautiful three-story brick structure cost Baltimore's taxpayers some $1,943,320, and it is equipped with over $15,000 worth of furnishings.

• • •

IN ADDITION to its 27 classrooms, it has an auditorium with a seating capacity of 350, a gymnasium, equipped with a cafeteria large enough to feed over 500 students.

It is also equipped with a five-room health suite, an art service room, a library, and a utility room.

According to Mr. Murray, the building and facilities should be able to conveniently accomodate about 1000 pupils.

Thirty-one teachers are on hand to take care of the enrollment.

This number include a gym instructor, and a music instructor who will also handle the band.

• • •

SHAPED LIKE a figure "7", the new school, which encompasses an entire city block and includes a spacious playground, will help ease the cramped and overcrowded conditions which previous prevailed in the schools in this vicinity on East Baltimore.

Its pupils will come from School No. 20, at Eden and Federal Sts.; No. 99, at North Ave. and Washington St., No. 135 at Chase and McDonough, No. 143 at Hoffman and Eden, and No. 146 at Preston and Eden Sts.

One characteristic of the classroom facilities deserves special note and that is the way they are tailored to fit the size of the occupant.

This fact was most obvious in the two large rooms reserved for kindergarden use.

One gets the uncomfortable feeling of being an intruder as he enters these rooms.

There is a distinctive "Alice in Wonderland" atmosphere for the seats, desks, and even the toilet facilities, are hardly knee-high to a grasshopper.

It is obvious that, while a grown-up feels out of place here, the tiny tot will probably feel delightfully at home.

ALONG THE walls of the corridors are lockers large enough to accommodate the belongings of two persons.

Soft pastel colors cover the walls, and reflect the eye-soothing fluorescent lighting.

"I'm not minimizing the job in keeping it this way," Mr. Murray said of the new building.

"I have four children of my own and I know what it takes," he added jokingly.

• • •

ALONG WITH its regular courses, the school will also offer a "mixed opportunities" class for mentally retarded children.

"The class will attempt to help the mentally retarded child reach the level of his ability," Mr. Murray explained.

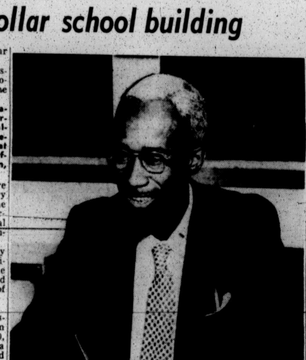
In small groups of 20 or less, the special class will be matched with special instructors.

In preparation for the confusion of opening day, cards were sent to the parents of the children telling them what class the child had been assigned to, and his new teacher.

Thursday, signs in the playground, teachers, and pupils and parents specially tutored for the occasion, helped to facilitate the assignment of classes so that every tot found his place in the building with a minimum of trouble.



A MILLION DOLLAR PROGRAM to fit a million dollar building is what principal Edward Murray believes is appropriate for the new Rutland Elementary School which opened for the first time Thursday. Some 1,000 pupils, most of them taken from the overcrowded schools in East Baltimore, will attend Rutland.
