Summit Meeting Here Sept. 27 Expected To Draw 500 Leaders

Maryland leaders from every field of endeavor have given speedy and wholehearted support to the Sept. 27 Summit Conference being sponsored by the AFRO-AMERICAN Newspapers.

The day-long Summit Conference of Maryland Leaders, to be held in the Christian Center adjacent to Morgan College, will be opened by Gov. Theodore McKeldin.

AFRO president Carl Murphy, who called the session, says he has been impressed by the enthusiastic acceptances and promises of cooperation which have poured in from throughout the state.

Dr. Murphy said indications are that approximately 500 leaders will converge on Baltimore for the conference.

* * *

THE CONFERENCE is by invitation and only those duly registered persons will be able to participate.

"Our Potential — Releasing Its Power, Attaining Its Maximum Utilization, Achieving Its Realization" is theme of the conference.

The areas of discussion will 1. The role of the church, 2. Schools and parents, 3. Public institutions, a. Political Action.

Typical of the responses to the call for the conference is that of the Rev. Harrison Bryant, pastor of Bethel AME Church:

"It seems to me that it is mandatory, that some of the leaders of our people in Baltimore City and vicinity should meet as early as possible to consider the problems confronting us in the area of school integration and civil rights in general.

"The urgency of such a meeting should not be overlooked.

"I am of the opinion that out of this meeting will come decisions and actions which will be helpful in our city, state and nation at this time."

FROM ANNAPOLIS, Md., Mrs. Lulu C. Hardesty, educator, wrote:

"I will be glad to serve.

"This summit conference certainly is a needed one and congratulations to you for spearheading such a date."

Mrs. Mae Washington, civil rights leader in Cumberland, Md., says, "I think this will be a great conference for our people."

"I wish to highly endorse your proposal and plan. I am most happy to cooperate," declared the Rev. E. A. Hughes, of Oxford, Md.

An NAACP official from Cooksville, Md., Howard E. Holland, stated:

"Hoping and praying that much good will come by holding such a meeting.

"I'm sure if we continue to watch, fight and pray, surely in God's time we as a race will gain victory.

"Hoping we can get our people to realize that there is much to be done."

* * *

ANOTHER EXAMPLE of the importance being placed on the leadership conference was the postponement of its quarterly meeting by the Maryland League of Women's Clubs.

Explained its president Mrs. Beryl Williams:

"Many persons have said to me this summer . . . What is our job now that we are in the midst of integration.

"There can be no better place for us to resolve whatever differences we have than in the coming, and exciting, summit conference."

She rescheduled the league's meeting to Oct. 4.

* * *

OTHER LEADERS have called the conference, "a must," while some commented, "at long last."

Leaders from the 22 counties in which colored reside are expected to be represented.

Resource persons selected from among top leaders will head the workshop sessions at which solutions to various problems will be discussed.

There will be a distinguished speaker for the luncheon.

INQUIRING REPORTER ASKS
Should professional people be exposed as non-voters?

QUESTION

"What do you think the community should do about teachers, doctors and other professional people who fail to register and to vote?

"Do you think they should be exposed?

"If so, how?"

THE ANSWERS

James W. Johnson Jr., 3209 Normount Ave., teacher: "I think such people should be deprived of the right to work for the city government. Certainly they should be exposed — teachers especially. If they don't have sense enough to protect their tax money by voting they shouldn't be allowed to hold the job."

Mrs. Ethel Rich, 1737 Druid Hill Ave., co - chairman of the Womanpower Register-To-Vote Committee: "There should not be any public exposure of professional people who fail to register to vote.

"We should make them conscious that if they register and vote they will be giving moral support to the Rev. Martin Luther King and other courageous leaders in the South who are fighting for the right to vote and also they will become true leaders in our own community by registering to vote."

James Ellison, 31 S. Dallas St., chauffeur: "Sure, they should vote, but I don't think they should be exposed."

* * *

Mrs. Laura Holt, 603 N. Bentalou St., sales - clerk: "I think it's the most ridiculous thing I've ever heard.

"Such people are looked up to as our leaders — they are supposed to be educated and informed.

"I think they should be exposed and their names printed in the paper."

"After all, if they don't set the example, what are others not fortunate enough to have acquired higher education supposed to do?"

Ernest Bland, 1637 N. Broadway St.; hospital attendant: "I think they should be exposed if it could be done without causing trouble."

Charles Cummings, 2310 Bryant Ave., cook: "As far as doctors and lawyers who don't vote are concerned, I believe that they should be exposed and people shouldn't patronize them. Teachers should be taken out of the school system."

"After all, they are letting us down by not practicing what they preach."

* * *

Mrs. Undell Scott, 1149 McCulloh St., stock - girl: "Well they certainly should vote, but I don't think their names should be put in the paper. I think that someone should take them aside and talk to them."

Marshal Dent, 2811 Remington Ave., shoe repairman: "I think their names should be put in the paper in large print. It's the most disgraceful thing I've ever heard.

"This isn't the deep South. Here, everybody can vote. It's shameful that some people don't realize, the value of the voting privilege.

"I'd like to talk to a professional person who doesn't vote, just to see how he thinks."

* * *

James McCoy, 2801 W. North Ave., cab - driver: "I can't understand a professional man not voting. It would probably help if they were exposed. Then they would probably realize just what they have done — or neglected to do."

Clarence Mitchell, 3rd, 1324 Druid Hill Ave., student: "It certainly shows that we have some very ignorant people in positions of responsibility."

"I think they should be exposed for what they are — backsliders, hypocrites and misleaders of the people."

* * *

JOSEPH L. PRESS, 1731 N. Payson St., teacher — "Professional people who fail to register and vote, fail to exercise a great American right given them. They are expected to act as leaders, but are not doing so in shrinking their duty.

"Certainly, exposure would not be the ideal thing, but it might serve to awaken their minds to their responsibility as the leaders in the community.

ANTHONY ALLEN 1.1 3133 Artaban Place, Registered Pharmacist—

"I would say that these people are a little lax in their responsibility, and are not exercising their fullest capabilites.

"There isn't very much that the community can do, and I certainly don't feel that they should be exposed either.

"You are dealing with the individual's own perspective about politics, and this is definitely a personal matter.

MISS BETTY SMITH, 547 W. Lafayette Ave., clerk—"I think that people at the professional level are human, like the layman, and when they don't want to exercise their right to register and vote, it is their own personal business. There is no need to expose them."

Andrew King, 503 Sanford Place, tickerman — "I do think these people should register and vote because they are expected to, but as far as the penalty involved, I don't know what could be done. Besides, this is something that has voluntary implications, and something everyone should feel his right to do.

"Exposing them won't get their vote, but if something could be done in an effort to get the vote, I would be in favor of that."

MRS. ALBERTA BARRETT, 1818 Barclay St., Insurance agent — "I don't see any reason why professional people shouldn't vote.

"Maybe a census could be taken of those professional people who do not vote; and in doing so maybe it could be determined why they don't register and vote as they are expected.

"I don't think they should be penalized, but certainly they should be reminded of their place as first-class citizens.

96,055
Just 3,945 needed to reach 100,000

A total of 96,055 colored persons are registered to vote in Baltimore city as of September 8, 1958, according to the office of the Supervisors of Elections.

That means just 3,945 must register to vote between now and September 22 to meet the register - to - vote goal of 100,000.

The 96,055 now qualified to vote in the November 4th General Election marks the largest number of colored voters ever enrolled in Baltimore.

The 404 colored persons who registered during the five day period beginning September 2 and ending September 6, marks the largest number to register in a single period.

This is due in large measure to the stepped-up drives by various groups in the city and to the fact that persons have been able to register in schools near their homes as well as at the Supervisor of Elections office in the People's Court Building.

Another important factor is that all places where citizens may register are open at convenient hours — 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily and Saturday at the elections office and 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. every day as well as Saturday, at the schools.

Here is the breakdown of colored people registering for the period Sept. — to Sept. 6:

| | Tot. | Dem. | Oth. |
|---|---|---|---|
| TUES., 9/2 | 83 | 18 | 63 2 |
| WED. 9/3 | 81 | 20 | 59 2 |
| THURS., 9/4 | 84 | 10 | 73 1 |
| FRI., 9/5 | 75 | 18 | 57 0 |
| FRI., 9/5 | 75 | 18 | 57 0 |
| TOTAL | 404 | 86 | 309 9 |

I go to register to vote and see a political boss in action

By BAKER E. MORTEN

On Tuesday night, I sallied forth to Carver High School to register so I might vote this November.

Who should I run into but Jack Pollack, the struggling Fourth District political boss, who is all thumbs these days with election worries.

Standing tall, but rather nervous in a gray suit that emphasized baggy trousers, Pollack entered the first floor registration room of the high school at about 8:30 p.m. with a blond couple and two children.

I had just finished registering in a fairly quiet atmosphere of six or eight persons, when Mr. Pollack stepped into the room followed by his company of four.

* * *

"THIS LADY wants to register. Take care of her." Pollack said to registrars with an air of authority.

Two colored persons were in line ahead of Mr. Pollack's party, but they had to stand back.

The matron Pollack brought to register gave her name as Mrs. Carolyn Knox of 2313 Wichita Ave.

Registrars, in questioning Mrs. Knox, found that she had changed her name since the last time she had voted. The Republican registrars ruled that she would have to go downtown to register.

* * *

"OH, NO, MR. POLLACK," one of the GOP registrars said, "she can't register here. She has to go downtown."

Mr. Pollack, who all the time had been standing in the background, literally "blew a fuse" at the ruling.

"It's the law. She can be registered here. I know the law," he snapped.

"Yes, but yesterday when he had change of name registrations, these Democrat registrars wouldn't let them register. They said you said we couldn't do it. So she can't register today," came the reply.

* * *

MR. POLLACK fumed. He stalked out of the room to make a phone call, presumabley to the Board of Supervisors of Elections.

Apparently told that the woman had a legal right to register without going downtown, he came out of the school phone both beaming with explanations.

He said he was sorry there had been a misunderstanding about a similar matter the day before.

The matron, Mr. Pollack brought was registered and they left the school. Outside they entered a white Cadillac parked on Pressman St. and drove off into the night.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Persons who have married or changed their name by court order must register again. They can do so at public schools where registration is taking place or at the Supervisors of Elections office in the People's Court Building.)

* * *

THOSE IN the know report that colored voter registration is mounting by leaps and bounds in the city.

And this is posing a serious threat to Mr. Pollack's long time stranglehold on the Fourth District.

While he was in the registration room, Mr. Pollack peeked over the shoulders of registrars constantly as if checking to see if things were going all right.

He would do this when registrars were processing registrants.

One of the persons registering at the time was a Bentalou St. resident who had previously voted in Baltimore County.

He was filling out an authorization slip to change his voting place.

Mr. Pollack leaned over his shoulder and advised that the address was not included. "Oh, yes, it's there," he was told by a precinct worker.

* * *

WHEN MR. POLLACK looked over the resident's shoulder and saw it was a former county voter, he beckoned. "He can't register here. He has to go out to his county seat."

The precinct worker answered: "Oh, yes he can. This is the place to do it." A registration worker chimed in: "Yes, this is where it's done."

Mr. Pollack stepped back and commented, "I didn't know that."

* * *

IT SEEMED strange to me that a politician would keep such a close check on prospective voters and rush his chosen friends ahead of everyone else to register but then I hear Mr. Pollack is a heavy man in this town.

Being a resident of Baltimore for only a year and registering for the first time to vote in Maryland, I don't rightfully know what to think of Mr. Pollack in light of his actions.

I come from a city, Chicago, where big men display more tact, diplomacy and decorum than Mr. Pollack showed on Tuesday night at Carver High. But, of course, most persons present at the time were colored!
