'Become World Citizens,' Hampton President Urges

Alonzo G. Moron, president of Hampton Institute, told the members of Mu Lambda chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity that they should prepare themselves to "become citizens of the world."

Mr. Moron, speaking at the Dunbar Hotel at the Alphas' annual installation banquet, said that minority group citizens can no longer ignore world problems as the other fellow's business.

He advised the group that in preparing themselves for world citizenship, they should not "look down" on persons who weren't so fortunate as they to receive a college education and to respect the rights of non-college men.

Fraternal Bonds Helpful

Dr. Marshall Shepard, Recorder of Deeds, another principal speaker, told the Alpha men of how fraternity friendships had aided him in his life's progress.

Frank Davis, newly elected chapter president, following an installation of officers ceremony handled by George M. Johnson, dean, Law School, Howard University, pledged that as its new leader he would work for an active chapter.

A tribute was paid to the charter members of Mu Lambda chapter who organized the branch of the fraternity on Dec. 8, 1923. Each charter member was given a scroll.

Those so honored included: Dr. Merril Curtis, Victor Daly, Eugene Davidson, Arnold Donawa, Walter Garvin, William Hansberry, Edward W. Howard, Frank Jones, J. Ed Lowery, Norman L. McGhee, Clarence Mills, Nathaniel A. Murray, Louis H. Russell, James H. Saunders, Emory B. Smith, J. H. N. Waring and Charles H. Wesley.

Emory Smith served as toastmaster.

Pool Room Fight Ends in Slaying

Police Questioning 21-Year-Old Laborer

Police were questioning a 21-year-old laborer today (Friday) in connection with the fatal pool room shooting, Thursday around 2:30 p.m., of Robert Henderson of the 800 block N. Mount St.

According to eye-witness reports, Henderson died when his .32-calibre revolver was discharged during a tussle with the suspect.

Police Report on Case

Police, who were called to the pool room at Lafayette Ave. and Parrish St., said they found Henderson lying near the entrance with a bullet wound in his upper chest.

Taken to Franklin Square Hospital in a municipal ambulance, he was pronounced dead by a staff physician.

The suspect remained at the establishment following the shooting, and told Patrolmen Charles Langohr and Raymond Novak he had been playing pool when Henderson walked over to his table and interfered.

Fought for Gun

When the accused man asked Henderson to move, police reported, they argued and Henderson drew the revolver from his belt.

The suspect told police he grabbed for the gun and in the tussle it went off while still in Henderson's hand. Police said two witnesses corroborated the accused man's version of the killing.

Not Charged Formally

He has not been formally charged in connection with the fatal shooting.

Henderson's body was taken to the City Morgue where an autopsy was performed Friday morning. Funeral arrangements will be made by his wife, Mrs. Ruth Rollins Henderson.

Hampton Institute Head Addresses Alphas' Annual Installation Banquet

SLAPS HARD AT RUSSIA:

Randolph's 'We Would Fight' Speech Hailed

RICHMOND

A resounding "Yes" was given Sunday afternoon in Ebenezer Baptist Church by A. Philip Randolph to the question of whether or not colored Americans will fight on the side of America in the event of a war with Soviet Russia.

Addressing a packed audience of nearly 2,000 persons, Mr. Randolph, international president, Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, asserted that colored Americans have fought for this country ever since the fall of Crispus Attucks, first American to die on Boston Commons for the cause of American independence.

Neither he, Paul Robeson nor any other person has a right to speak for all colored people, he said, but added that in his opinion, based upon wide contact with the masses in every field of work, profession and calling, colored Americans would fight for America.

Would Follow Tradition

In the event of a conflict between the USA and Russia, he said, "Colored Americans would follow their historic traditions of giving their lives and blood for their country."

Continuing, he said that he considers any suggestion "to the contrary by any colored person a flagrant misrepresentation of the spirit of the colored American and a definite insult to his high sense of duty and patriotism to his country, which he has helped to make great with his brawn, brains and blood."

Declaring that America is the colored man's home, he asserted that if it isn't all he wishes it to be, it is his task, obligation and responsibility to make it what he wants it to be through use of every legitimate means of organization, education and agitation.

Demonstrate, Yes, But—

He also recommended use of "dramatic demonstrations, but not with the support, aid or co-operation of the Communists on the left or Fascists on the right who are striking at the heart of American democracy" and who are endangering the progress and hopes of colored people, labor and other minorities.

Like labor, Mr. Randolph declared, the colored minority can only hope to achieve a status of equality, freedom and dignity within the framework of democracy with its institutions and heritage of civil and human rights.

Contrasting American freedom and Russian tyranny, he asserted that colored people in America "who are victims of injustice and wrongs have the right to hire a hall or stand upon a soap box upon the highways and tell their story to the American public and the world."

Of Russia, he said:

"Not even the most violent Communist in the United States or Soviet Russia can claim a comparable right to free expression of opinions — dissenting opinions in the Soviet Union from the iron-clad Stalinist line.

"Not even the old Bolsheviks like Trotsky, Bucharin and Zinovite could challenge the gospel of the Kremlin on any question, political, economic, social or even in the realm of art, music, science or religion."

Mr. Randolph was quick to add a warning however, that we are not satisfied with American democracy as now practiced, pointing out that the fact that we would not turn our hands against our homeland does not mean that we are content with limitations upon democracy and freedom in this country.

Fight to End Segregation

In this connection, he urged that we seek with militancy and aggressiveness, with all our hearts and minds and with every moral, spiritual and intellectual resource to rid the land of "jim crow, segregation and discrimination on account of race or color."

We should also lend our every effort and resource, he said, to the drive to "abolish the poll tax, wipe out jim crow in the armed forces, eliminate discrimination in labor unions and in industry, schools and colleges; on railroads and other means of transportation; in hotels, theatres and places of recreation and enjoyment."

Realizing that Communist co-operation is a kiss of death and that it does not make sense to add to the handicap of being black the additional handicap of being red, Mr. Randolph said, colored people reject the co-operation and support of Communists and their fellow travelers.

"No Part of Communism"

They know, he concluded, that the Communists and their sympathizers would use them as a cat's paw to further the interests of Russia against the U.S. and cited the defeat of Benjamin Davis in NYC last November as proof that we "want no part of Communists or communism."

Sharing the platform was B. F. McLaurin, international field organizer of the brotherhood, who discussed "The Brotherhood's Contribution to the Economic Advancement of the Colored Man."

Sponsors of the meeting were the Richmond division, Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, Train Porters and the ladies' auxiliary, represented by the following persons:

Presidents M. D. Stone, Pullman porters; C. J. Smith, ACL train porters; Mrs. N. Thornton, train porters; M. B. Coppage, SAL ladies' auxiliary; Secretary-Treasurers S. L. Fife, Pullman porters; G. C. McNair, ACL train porters; L. L. McNeil, SAL train porters, and Mrs. E. Dunn, ladies' auxiliary.

Lincoln-Douglass Celebration Set

William Ashby, executive secretary, Elizabeth Urban League, will be guest speaker at the 16th annual Lincoln-Douglass celebration to be held at Charlton St. School Feb. 16. The affair is to be sponsored by Charlton St. School Community Center.

Among the founders of the annual fete was the late Mrs. Mary Burrell, mother of J. Mercer Burrell, attorney and Ms. Emma McCray, church worker and sewing instructor for many years at the community center.

They are: Artistic Chorus, Mrs. C. C. Smith, directress; Harmonic Ensemble, Mrs. M. Worrell, directress; Northern Jubilee Singers, W. Gardner, director; Philemon Junior and Senior Choirs, Mrs. F. M. Gregory, directress; and Celestial Chorus, Mrs. Celestine Johnson, directress.

Demonstration Set

A feature will be the full-dress demonstration of marching and twirling techniques by the 20th Century Drum and Bugle Corps, outstanding youth group organized and directed by Mrs. Rita Cornell.

The entire program is under the general direction of the Community Center staff which includes Saul B. Shapiro, director, Frances M. Gregory, assistant, and Frank C. Fenner, recreation teacher.

Painting Series On at Museum

The "Painting Today" series at the Baltimore Museum of Art will be concluded Feb. 16, with Dr. Louise Averill's discussion of surrealism. The lectures are at 3:45 p.m.

Currently, the museum is exhibiting a fabulous collection of furniture, ancient textiles, collectors' jewelry, and the Cone Collection of paintings, drawings and sculpture.

Free movies will be shown at the Museum on Feb. 19 and 26 at 3 p.m.

Knife Wielder Fined $150 for His Spree

Fines totaling $150 were imposed on Joseph Epperson, of 2013 E. Biddle St., Thursday, after he was found guilty in Northeastern police court of cutting one woman and attempting to cut another.

Miss Cledie Hargrove, also of the Biddle St. address, said Epperson cut her on the head during an argument Wednesday night. Miss Doris Hargrove testified that she escaped being cut by running from the house.

Epperson was fined $100 on the cutting charge; $25 for attempting to cut Doris, and $25 for disturbing the peace.

Hawaiian Hair Corp. One of U.S.'s Oldest

WASHINGTON

One of the oldest beauty culture organizations in the country is the Hawaiian Hair Products Corporation, with headquarters in the District of Columbia.

It was founded by Mme. Bramlette-Willis in 1913 at Indianapolis, Ind. During the early days of the firm, Mme. Bramlette peddled her products by a door-to-door canvass.

This was a hard, back-breaking task, but it paid off, as now her firm annually sells thousands of jars of beauty products all over the United States and several foreign countries.

Headquarters for her organization was moved to Washington in 1924, where it remains. Women from all parts of the country come here to take the Hawaiian System of Beauty Culture training, it was disclosed.

Film Called "Prejudice" Condemns Discrimination

By ALICE A. DUNNIGAN

WASHINGTON

About 400 people of various races and creeds, attended by special invitation, the Washington premiere of the film, "Prejudice," shown at the First Congregational Church here last Thursday night.

The picture showed how a little spark of prejudice might grow into a great flame which would not have an effect upon the individual involved, but would ruin the future of the entire family and have a lasting effect upon the growing children.

This showing of the film produced by Edward L. Dorfmann Productions of Hollywood, was sponsored jointly by the Protestant Film Commission and the Anti-Defamation League, both of NYC.

It has been released to theatres, schools, churches, forums, and all groups interested in the public welfare.

Speaker Define Prejudice

A panel discussion followed the the showing of the picture with the Rev. Angus Dun, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Washington; A Rabbi Goldbery, Richmond Hebrew congregation; Dr. Francis J. Brown, American Council of Education, and Dr. Walter G. Daniels, School of Education, Howard University, served as moderator.

In his discussion, the Rev. Mr. Dun defined prejudice as a prejudgment, o ra judgment before hand, which we carry along before we face the thing. It is a hasty, negative attitude which we develop against certain people. Mass prejudice, he said, is like a desease germ imbedded in a tissue. When we root it out of one place it finds itself in some other tissue somewhere else.

The three weapons which he listed as good instruments against a growing prejudice are (1) condemnation, (2) f acts and truths, and (3) grace.

Says Hatred Unwarranted

Rabbi Goldberg described prejudice as a dislike or hatred for people which is unwarranted or without a cause. Prejudice, he added, is based upon (1) stupidity, (2) ignorance or (3) just plain meanness.

Mr. Brown, an educator, and presumedly an authority on child psychology, stated that prejudice is an adult attitude. "Children accept those with whom they play without prejudice attitude."

He charged the churches of being prejudice of those who worship in different manners. "Differences do not imply better or worse, but simply another way of behaving.

Remedy for Elimination

He said the "American people have for too long thought in terms of groups and too little have we though of persons as individuals —except, of course, ourselves."

Dr. Daniels mentioned intergroup relationship as a means of eliminating prejudice. He cited motives and environment as being two of the main factors which contribute to the growth of prejudice.
