Nichols AME Is Dedicated

Son of Namesake Preaches Sermon

PHILADELPHIA

With the tolling of the historic bell in its skyscraping steeple, the Ruffin Nichols Memorial AME Church, 11th and Mt. Vernon Sts., was formally dedicated on Sunday afternoon.

The newly acquired edifice, considered "the cathedral of African Methodism," was named in honor of the late Dr. L. Ruffin Nichols, a pioneer in the denomination.

Bishop D. Ward Nichols, prelate of the First Episcopal District, who delivered the dedicatory sermon and conducted the ceremony, is one of his sons.

Services Draw Crowds

At each of the first two services held in the building on Sunday, the three auditoriums were crowded, and the main hall was filled for the evening services.

Nearly 100 members were signed up for the new congregation; and a $1000 collection was reported for the day.

The first and youngest member of the church was Maurice R. R. Mander, 8-month-old son of the Rev. and Mrs. Sander S. Mander of 608 S. 10th St., who was christened by Bishop Nichols during the morning service.

First official of the new church was Lewis Tanner Moore, attorney, who, with Mrs. Moore, became the first adult members.

Mr. Moore and Dr. Owen M. Smith of Bethel Church, Wilmington, Del., read the formal act of dedication, offering the church for consecration.

Congratulatory messages were forwarded by Governor James H. Duff of Pennsylvania, Governor Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey, and Congressman Jacob Javits of New York.

Compares Minorities' Plights

In his dedicatory sermon, Bishop Nichols presented the "Challenge of African Methodism," comparing the history of the denomination to the history of Israel.

The latter, he said, was brought out of bondage into the Promised Land, while African Methodism was brought out of the bonds of ecclesiastical slavery into the freedom of a new found religion.

He warned against the evils of fear, distrust and envy, urging that peace of mind, soul and attitude become the ultimate goal of all true Christians.

General officers who participated in the services included:

Drs. A. S. Jackson of Washington, financial secretary; P. W. Rogers of Washington, secretary of church extension; J. E. Beard of Nashville, Tenn., secretary of the pension department; and David Norris of Philadelphia, editor of the Christian Recorder.

Also taking part were:

The Revs. E. E. Tyler, J. S. Benn Jr., K. Keeys, W. L. Johnson, and G. H. Craytoh, presiding elders of the First District;

Out-of-State Churchmen

The Revs. S. P. Perry of New England, M. E. Jackson of Newark, N.J., T. E. Harper of Atlantic City, N.J., J. Francis Vanderhorst of Newark, M. M. Ward of New Brunswick, N.J.

The Revs. Y. L. Sims of Riverton, N.J., J. Kelly of Pensauken, N.J., H. A. Hidebrand of Raleigh, N.C., E. A. Hildebrand of Wilmington, Del., J. L. Mims of Chester, Pa.

The Revs. J. A. Portlock, A. C. Clark, G. N. Davis, W. L. Freeman, J. P. Washington, and B. T. Cartwright, all of New York.

Five Choirs Sing

The choirs of Mt. Pisgah Church, Zion Church, Jones Tabernacle, Tyree Church, and the Holy City Chorus sang. Holy Communion will be administered next Sunday morning by Bishop Nichols.

Commemoration services will be conducted through this week, with the Revs. D. W. Tull of Chester, Pa., J. A. Portlock of New York City, and Sherman L. Greene of Boston, Mass., as speakers.

The Rev. John D. Bright of Allen Church spoke Monday evening, and the Rev. M. E. Jackson of Newark, delivered the sermon on Tuesday.

Evangelism Week Set

Next week, union evangelistic services will be conducted each evening by Mrs. Mary Watson Stewart of Detroit.

The $70,000 building, formerly occupied by the congregation of St. Jude and the Nativity, includes an annex and parish house, with recreational facilities and 42 other rooms for auxiliary use.

Until he makes an official appointment to the pulpit during the Philadelphia Annual Conference in May, Bishop Nichols will serve as pastor, with the assistance of the presiding elders of the district.

Thousands Help Dedicate AME Cathedral

Army Studies Holly Mims Case

WASHINGTON

Some disposition of the case of Holly Mims, charged with deserting the Army, is expected to be made following a thorough investigation of the case. Military District of Washington authorities said this week.

Should there be a trial for Mims, the date will be announced soon. However, if authorities decline to give him a trial which is unlikely, then he may receive a dishonorable discharge from the service.

Criminal Investigation Division officials reportedly told MDW authorities they did not know why Mims's former company commander did not send military police to his home to return him to the Army.

Local military police also said they had no knowledge of Mims's absence until notified by Fort Devens' officials. Neither the CID nor MDW authorities could act on any AWOL until they were notified by Fort Devens officials, it was pointed out.

More Church Bias in Md. Disclosed

More gaps between Catholic preachments and practices in the local archdiocese came to light this week, following the AFRO's disclosures of jim crow at St. Mary Church in nearby Piscataway, Md.

Reports from Charles County in Maryland said that colored Catholics there are not only segregated at mass, but also are buried in the rear in church graveyards.

At communion, whites receive the sacrament first. If a colored face appears at the altar rail, the person is either sent back to his seat or skipped over until the priest has completed the rite for members of the other race.

No colored person serves as an usher or handles money in Catholic churches in Charles County, either.

When St. Ignatius Church in Bel Alton, Md., holds its annual picnic, whites handle the cash, selling tickets to colored persons who wish to buy soft drinks or other items.

It is said that this is because a collection box at St. Ignatius was once looted and suspicion was directed—but not proved—against colored persons.

At St. Ignatius, also, it is said that a special communion service is held once a month for colored.

"They even have to park their cars separately at those churches in Charles County," said Mrs. Marguerite Queen of 1834 Frederick Pl., S.E., who was born and reared in Pomfret, Md., where one of the churches, St. Joseph, is located.

At the Sacred Heart Church in La Plata, Md., she says that colored persons sit upstairs only. The stairway to this jim-crow section is narrow, dark and crooked, and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Susanna Queen, who is partially blind, once fell and injured herself in the ascent.

All of these churches, like St. Mary in Piscataway, are within the Washington archdiocese, headed by Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle. He has publicly stated that the Catholic churches under his jurisdiction are open to anyone who cares to worship in them.

This Catholic Church Front Door Closed to Them

Mrs. Sara Sandridge, a member of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Piscataway, Md., talks over the recent episode with James E. Gladden. Her husband works at a white gas station where white customers are now refusing to buy.

Walter Johnson, John W. Munson, and Mrs. Susanna Johnson, all of Accokeek, Md., stand before the door of St. Mary's where white men, members of the church, barred them a week ago, telling them that they would throw them out if they didn't use the side doors and back seats of the church.

Trotter Supper Hailed 'Smash Hit' by Club

"A smash hit" is the way the Women's Democratic Club describes its Trotter Supper which was held recently at the York Hotel Blue Room.

The club credits the success of the affair to Mrs. Dorethea Robinson, chairman of the ways and means committee, and the following persons:

Mesdames Elois Parker, Elsie Wesley, Blanche Days, Dorothy Cherry, Hilda Smith, Grace Johnson, Lillian Hebron, Ada Smith, Zelma Johnson, Queenie Lane, Marie Newton and Pauline Blanchard.

Entertainment was provided by toe dancers Gwendolyn and Shirley Noel, Misses Peggy Rrode and Juanita Melvin.

Catholic Missionary Unit Urges 'Friendship' for All

Rome Report Hits U.S. Bigotry; Suggests Welcomed Attitude for Colored Americans

WASHINGTON

As if in answer to recent happenings at St. Mary Church in Piscataway, Md., Catholicim's chief missionary agency this past week end told all Catholics to show friendship and affection for colored persons.

A report from the Sacred Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith said that every Catholic should pray for more converts in the race.

White members at St. Mary jim-crow their fellow-worshipers, making them enter and leave the church through separate, side doors and sit in the rear at services.

To date this segregation has not been broken down by Father Losinski, pastor of the church, although it is contrary to the stated policy of the archdiocese of Washington.

Stirs Racial Discord

It was also fanning the fires of racial discord, after white men of the church barred the main entrance of St. Mary a week ago and told a group of colored members that they would throw them out if they did not use the "colored" doors and seats.

Father Losinski had taken no action in the matter when the Sacred Congregation's report was issued in Rome on Saturday. It said, in part:

"Colored persons hear and read the great pronouncements of the Holy Father that are full of friendship and affection for them.

"They expect to find these sentiments re-echoed by their Catholic neighbors."

Pray for More

A continued increase in the number of colored converts, the report went on, "should be the prayer of every Catholic, a prayer for his colored brother, a prayer which he utters in union with the vicar of Christ on earth, a prayer accompanied by such an attitude and by such acts that the colored man will know he is welcome."

The report also discussed race relations generally in the United States, pointing out that there is "harsh compulsory segregation in the National Capital, Washington."

Efforts to bring more members of the race into the Catholic Church have increased recently, especially during the past ten years.

There are now 362,427 colored Catholics in this country, as contrasted with about 300,000 in 1940. A total of 8,857 were converted in 1947, the greatest number in 60 years.

'Holy Year' Tours Rumored as Lily-White; Catholics Mum

A Catholic spokesman at the chancery of the local archdiocese said on Wednesday that he did not know of any special racial policy being followed in the "Holy Year" tours of Europe now being arranged for Washington Catholics. Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle will lead the tours which start in April and will include visits to many of the sacred shrines in France and Italy, ending with a trip to the Vatican.

A representative of Cook's travel agency, which is handling arrangements, said he understood that the tours are for whites only, but that an authoritative statement on this would have to come from Catholic officials.

Father Hannon at the chancery said he did not know of such a policy and referred queries to Msgr. John S. Spence of the Bureau of Catholic Travel.

TESTS REVEALING

A county and State testing program in the school and county was completed recently when the Iowa Silent Reading Test was given to pupils in the seventh, eighth, and ninth grades. The results were quite revealing.

Two other tests were also given to the ninth and eleventh grades; the California Progressive Achievement Tests and the California Test of Mental Maturity. Simpler forms of these two tests were also given throughout the county in the elementary schools on the third and sixth grade levels.
