Had Separated From Wife

she went on, and found her brother sitting on the sofa. He sat for a minute and then slumped down, police were told, dead from a bullet that tore through his heart.

Police report that investigation revealed that Mr. Wimberly was taking his rifle from a bag when the trigger apparently struck something, causing it to discharge the fatal slug.

Mrs. Wimberly declared her husband had never used the rifle, and in her knowledge, he bought it from Rocky Mountain, N. C., about nine years ago.

Mr. Wimberly is survived by his mother, Mrs. Lina Wimberly and three sisters, Mrs. Annie Wright, Mrs. Maude Jones and Mrs. Johnson.

Funeral services are being held tonight (Friday), at the Concord Baptist Church, where Mr. Wimberly was a deacon. The Rev. J. M. Rayhot, pastor of the church, will officiate.

The body will be shipped to Rocky Mount for interment.

made over a thousand dollars, last month, selling the stuff."

Questioned Thursday about the use of dope in the neighborhood of the school, Ralph W. Reckling, principal, said, "I have no knowledge of it at all."

Douglass High is situated at Carey and Baker Sts., and has nearly 3,000 pupils enrolled.

Thomas Death Spreads Fear

The probe has been stymied at points because persons who have knowledge of the illicit operations are afraid to talk. As one investigator said:

"They will seem to think the death in December of George (Hop Leg) Thomas, has something to do with dope peddling. Then there were those two boys found dead in Northwest Baltimore on Feb. 6."

Thomas, who was well-known in Avenue circles, was fatally beaten in the 1400 block of Woodyear St. It was rumored at the time that he was killed in a gang war flare-up.

However, police denied this. Norris Ross of the 1700 block Ditman Ct., is being held without bail pending a Criminal Court trial on charges of having committed the crime.

Dead Pals Involved

The other youths, Norman Gibbs and Eugene Woodford, life-long pals, and known dope users, were found dead within a few blocks of each other on Feb. 6, the night of the Morgan College robbery.

Dr. Russell S. Fisher, chief medical examiner for Baltimore, reported that both youths died from heroin poisoning. Police were told that Gibbs, Woodford and some other teen-age youths were taking the dope, and the victims apparently took an overdose.

Narcotic experts have been trying for years to educate the public to the dangers of dope addiction, but it is surprising how little the average person knows about it.

Problems Growing in City

Every major city is confronted with the marijuana problem, and many persons attribute Baltimore's constantly increasing holdup rate to a more widespread use of the drug.

It is common knowledge that marijuana cigarettes, or reefers as they are commonly called, can be readily purchased here, and in other metropolitan areas, from street peddlers or even from newsstands.

Reactions to the drug vary. The reefer smoker may become exhilarated or he may be depressed and sullen. Whatever the reaction, his sense of time, space, right and wrong are jarred loose and he is absolutely irresponsible.

Indicted in Morgan Robbery

Frequently, in the reeling, grotesque world of the marijuana smoker, a person will do things he formerly lacked the nerve to do.

The brazen, daylight Morgan College holdup of Feb. 6, was the work, police believe, of marijuana users.

This belief is supported by the statement of a school custodian who reported smelling reefer smoke in a men's room at the college shortly before the holdup.

Reefer Lead to Addiction

The reefer is usually the jumping off point towards a lifetime of dope addiction. A typical case goes like this:

A teen-age girl attends a party and is offered a "new kind" of cigarette. She smokes it, because some of her friends are smoking them, and finds it gives her a "kick." Then she smokes another and another.

Soon she has the craving for the weed and the drug begins its insidious work of fearing her down physically, mentally and morally.

Auto Crash Kills Howard Student

jured, one seriously, Maryland police reported.

A fourth passenger was reported to have escaped with minor bruises.

Mr. Barber, who was studying at the Howard University School of Pharmacy, was reported by police to have lost control of his car and it crashed into a pole. It took police almost a half-hour to free him from the wreckage.

The World War II veteran, who was working as a guard at the Department of Agriculture, had just purchased the automobile a little over two months previously against the protest of his mother, Mrs. Ella Bell of Youngstown, Ohio.

Father Accident Victim

According to his aunt, Mrs. Cornelius Barber, Barber's mother protested her son's purchasing a vehicle because his father had been killed at the age of 29, 21 years ago, in an automobile accident.

A native of Youngstown, Mr. Barber had come to Washington to finish the course in medicine at Howard.

In addition to his mother and aunt, he is survived by a wife, Mrs. Alberta Barber, of the 700 block Park Rd., N.W.; one daughter, Bernita; and an uncle, Cornelius Barber.

manners and friendliness among all pupils."

One of the "helpers" in Banneker School, Barbara is often called on to take charge of classes until a substitute arrives. She enjoys doing clerical work, hopes to be a secretary.

Barbara's favorite subjects are arithmetic, spelling and reading. Her hobbies are reading and the movies. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Tapp, 436 E. Federal St.

The safety contest has been conducted for the past month as part of the Junior Association of Commerce campaign for a safer Baltimore.

Pupils from grades one to six of private, parochial and public schools were invited to submit slogans. Each school sent its best entry to a board of seven judges.

Other Top Slogans

Best slogans from individual schools which won safety campaign pins for their writers included:

"Slow Up, So Children May Grow Up" — Sylvia Wilson, 12, Grade 6B, School No. 159 in Cherry Hill;

"Be Safe Today and Be Here Tomorrow" — Patsy Wilson, Grade 6B, Alexander School No. 112;

"Drive With Care Everywhere" — Shirley Mosely, School No. 139.

Last Rites Held for Pop Murray

6:30 p.m., Sunday. He was rushed to Alexandria Hospital suffering from two broken legs and a brain concussion.

Struck Near His Home

The veteran newspaperman was injured at Washington and Oro-bin Sts., about three blocks from his home, while taking his regular evening walk.

A native of Cincinnati, Ohio, Mr. Murray had lived in Alexandria 67 years. He attended schools in Cincinnati and after graduation from high school, taught at Covington, Ky.

Yet satisfied with his education, he took science and language courses at Howard University. He also studied languages at home and could read German, Latin, Greek and French.

Set Several Precedents

Mr. Murray, who once worked as a proofreader with the Cincinnati Inquirer, was one of the first Federal Government appointees from Ohio under Civil Service.

He took a post in the Records and Pension Division of the War Department in 1883. He retired from Government Service in 1920.

The well known newspaperman was founder of two weekly newspapers, the Alexandria Home News and the Washington Tribune. Both papers are now out of existence. He also founded the Murray Brothers Printing Company at 920 U St., N.W.

Pioneer in Rights Fight

He was director of the Alexandria Dramatic Club, a Sunday school teacher and primary school director of the Roberts Methodist Church, and was an early member of the Niagra Movement, a pioneer civil rights organization.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Delilah Murray (they recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary), he is survived by:

Two sons, F. Morris Murray of Washington and William Murray, a local attorney; two daughters, Miss Florence Murray, of New York City, and Mrs. Kathleen Luckett; 16 grandchildren and 22 great-grandchildren.

Not Paid for Role

Asked why Huggins did not appear in court to testify in a disorderly conduct case, Captain Emerson said evidently the "private eye's" summons did not get to him in time.

Huggins admits that he is unemployed, and insists that he receives no money for laying the groundwork for vice-squad arrests.

He has worked with Captain Emerson in several cases involving alleged liquor law violations.

He once testified that he was "participating" with the police department to a "certain extent."

Another time he testified that

Local Sigmas to Support Civil Rights Legislation

Full support of efforts to encourage passage of President Truman's civil rights program was pledged, last Thursday, at the monthly meeting of Zeta Sigma chapter, Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity.

The group heard a report of activities of the Baltimore branch, American Council on Human Rights. Dr. Robert J. Hill is chairman. Other Zeta Sigma representatives on the council are Alfred T. Dixon, Dr. Douglass Camper and G. Sumner Whyte.

To Back Business Clinic

The fraternal group also voted to co-operate with the Urban League in the sponsorship, next month, of a business clinic. J. Boyd Holden was named to work with the League on this matter.

Lajer in the meeting, Dr. Harry Faggott, one of the hosts for the evening, was elected associate director of social action. Other hosts were Drs. Lawrence Middleton and Socrates Saunders.

Delegates to the fraternity's Eastern Regional Conference in New York April 21 and 22, will be elected at the next meeting.

Others attending the session, last week, included:

Dr. J. E. T. Camper, Dr. G. of Franklin Phillips, Dr. Douglass Camper, Leo Wood, George E. Simms, Alonzo Johnson, Cecil Scott, Edward Wilkins.

John W. Woodhouse, Leroy Gibson, G. Sumner Whyte, Alfred A. Dixon, U. Theodore Hayes, Vernon Green, William T. Buckner, Deaver Smith Jr., Harold Delaney and the Rev. W. L. Pitts.

Brown U. Prof. to Visit Morgan

J. Saunders Redding, author, critic, AFRO columnist and visiting professor of English at Brown University, will spend April 17-18 on the Morgan State College campus.

His visit will be in connection with a series of seminars being conducted among students majoring in English to help them solve study and teaching problems.

Last week, the students heard William Gardner Smith, author of "Last of the Conquerors"; and Miss Shirley Graham, author of biographies on George Washington Carver, Frederick Douglass and Benjamin Banneker. These lectures have been planned to stimulate creative writing.

In addition to a public appearance on April 7 at Enoch Pratt Library, Mr. Redding will hold conferences with Morgan students interested in problems of literary criticism.

511 Wash Cloths Given to Provident

Some 511 wash clothes were presented to Provident Hospital recently during a "shower" sponsored by the Provident Ladies Guild, headed by Mrs. Isabelle Clark.

The gifts were received by Mrs. Maida S. Brannon, director of nurses. She told the group that Provident is endeavoring to raise its standards to rate with the best hospitals in the country.

Towel Shower Next

Each month the Guild puts on a special activity to raise funds to purchase equipment or supplies for the hospital. Next month it will have a towel shower.

Mesdames Anna M. Goodman and Priscilla W. Baskerville are secretary and treasurer, respectively, of the Guild.

Mother of Eight Divorces Mate

Says Hubby Failed to Support Family

Charging that if John Smyth worked two weeks he rested four, Mrs. Lula Smyth of 317 Gwynn Ave. obtained a divorce from him this week, on the grounds that he failed to support her.

The couple were married in 1910 and separated in 1937. She told the court that during their marriage she had done day's work to support herself and their eight children. Adding to these woes, Mrs. Smyth said, her husband quarreled and raised a disturbance because she refused to make one son work against physician's orders. He often told her, she said, "to get out and take her bum with her."

Mrs. Williams Divorced

Mrs. Susie Williams of 2142 Walbrook Ave. divorced Howard Williams, getting custody of their two daughters and $13.50 per week for the latters' support, Tuesday.

Mrs. Williams told the court that her husband threatened her upon several occasions and ordered her from the house.

Resumes Name

Mrs. Bernice I. Kirkland, who charged Leroy Kirkland with fighting her, divorced him and resumed her maiden name, White, this week. The couple were married in 1941 and separated in 1944, when she said she was forced to ask for police protection and to return to the home of her mother.

Mrs. Florence B. Merchant, member of the faculty of School No. 103, filed a petition for a divorce from Lewis Merchant. William T. Burker is her attorney.

Classroom Techniques to Be Revealed On TV

"Baltimore Classroom — 1950," a WAAM-TV program in co-operation with the Department of Education, will present programs by two classes in Northwest Baltimore schools next month.

On Mar. 3 there will be a social studies lesson by the third grade class of Mrs. Lillian Ross at Cappin School No. 122. An arithmetic session will be demonstrated on Mar. 10 by a fourth-grade class of Taylor School No. 122. Mrs. Ida Nicholas is teacher.

The programs have a two-fold purpose. They give parents and the Baltimore community an opportunity to see education in action within a real classroom setting.

Second, the program will trace the progress of a child's education from kindergarten through high school. The series opened at 7 p.m. on Feb. 10.

Each phase of education is illustrated by an actual classroom and teacher in an unrehearsed lesson period in the WAAM studios.

The business office of the Board of Education arranges for the transportation of desks, blackboards, pictures and all other classroom equipment.

School buses bring elementary school children to and from the studio at 3725 Malden Ave.

Stansbury Passes Md. Medic Exam

DR. GEO. T. STANSBURY

Dr. George T. Stansbury, graduate of Morgan State College and the Howard University School of Medicine, recently passed the Maryland State Medical Board examination. He is a resident of Havre de Grace.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton C. Stansbury of Havre de Grace, Dr. Stansbury played football at Morgan and became a member of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity there.

Honor Student at Morgan

While at Howard, he was inducted into the Kappa Pi Honor Society. He was graduated with highest honors from high school, and also was an honor student at Morgan.

Dr. Stansbury now is interning at Freedmen's Hospital in Washington.

Talks at YM Forum Here

NEWARK

Oliver Randolph, Newark, N.J. attorney, and Dr. Frederick Dedmond, head of Morgan College language department, spoke on civil rights at a forum Wednesday, at the Druid Hill YMCA.

Mr. Randolph, an outstanding proponent of civil rights, was an official delegate to the convention that revised the New Jersey State constitution. The forum was sponsored by the Druid Y.

Hoff Bill for Election of Ward Leaders Meets Stiff Opposition

ANNAPOLIS — Faced with stiff opposition from a group of Baltimore Republicans Sen. Stanford Hoff, Tuesday, offered to amend his bill calling for the election of ward, precinct and district executives.

However, opponents urged defeat of the proposed measure, even with amendments.

Sen. Hoff, a Republican of Carroll County and chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, revealed his amendment plan at a hearing before the Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee.

As first submitted the bill required the election of committee members and ward, precinct and district executives.

At the hearing attended by some 30 persons, Mr. Hoff said the measure will be amended to continue the mandatory provision for the election of members of the State Central committees.

Law Ignored

At present there is considerable confusion and neither party seems to be abiding by existing law. The Democrats ignore it and continue to appoint their ward and district executives.

The Republicans have been electing their ward executives, who automatically become members of the State Central Committee. These ward executives have been appointing the precinct executives.

The protestants were led by Miss Helen E. Brown, prospective candidate for the Republican Gubernatorial nomination, who declared that the "rank and file Republicans are opposed to any change in the present system of choosing party executives.

Mrs. Louise Cooper, member of the Baltimore County Board of Election Supervisors, said the proposed measure is "driving a wedge into the freedom of voters of Maryland, which will go deeper and deeper. . . I am 100% opposed to it."

Too Many Candidates

Sen. Della, a Sixth District Baltimore Democrat, who is chairman of the committee, said if the city Democrats aided by the law the voting machines would not be big enough for the number of candidates who might file for ward and precinct executive.

To which Miss Brown replied: "We Republicans have been electing our ward executives for quite some years. If there aren't enough machines, the democratic move would be to get more of them. We need more democracy, not less."

There was considerable confusion as to how the Republicans chose their various executives, until Dave Johnson, a member of the Republican Central Committee and executive of the Sixth District's 18th Ward explained the mechanics of the setup.

Mechanics Explained

Mr. Johnson said the ward executives are elected and they automatically become members of the Central Committee. The ward executives in turn appoint precinct executives.

This arrangement he declared, has been "working very satisfactorily."

He said appointment of executives could easily lead to bossism and machine politics.

Waste of Time

John W. Walters, chairman of the Young Republican League of Maryland, assailed the Senators for taking up such unimportant matters when "there are, so many important things to be done."

J. Larry Greene, corporation attorney and president of the Alexander Hamilton Club, charged sponsors of the bill with "treading on our democratic principles."

Others appearing in opposition to the bill were:

Donald Boyce, member of the Republican State Central Committee; Calvin Anderson a member from the 7th Ward; Charles F. Woodland, 7th Ward.

William Lloyd of Dorchester County, a former member of the House of Delegates; Mrs. Lula E. Frey.

The committee took the matter under consideration. Senators Hoff and Byrnes are co-sponsors of the bill.
