'Safety – Dim Lights,' New Driving Slogan

Col. Carey Jarman, superintendent, Maryland State Police, has announced the installation of a new safety slogan sign on the rear bumper of State Police patrol cars.

The new safety slogan is "SAFETY — DIM LIGHTS."

Commenting on the problem of highway safety, Col. Jarman said:

"The hazards of night driving are many, but there is none more dangerous than the blinding headlights of an approaching car.

"All of the rules of common sense, courtesy and safety, as well as the motor vehicle law, demand that drivers dim their lights approaching other cars at night.

"Among the fundamental safety rules for night driving are the following:

"Lower your headlight beams (dim your lights) for approaching vehicles.

"Use your lower headlight beams (dim your lights) when driving in a fog and reduce your speed.

"Don't look directly into the lights of approaching cars—watch the right-hand edge of the road.

"Keep your windshield clean. Slow down when facing the glare from approaching headlights.

"Don't raise the beam of your own headlights—two blind drivers are more dangerous than one.

"Be sure you can stop within the range of your headlights.

"Watch for pedestrians."

Fruit Growing Clinic Held at Virginia State

PETERSBURG, Va. — Over 200 vocational agriculture teachers, farmers and farm agents attended a fruit-growing clinic at Virginia State College recently. They were welcomed by President R. P. Daniel, who pledged support in providing a strong agricultural program for the State.

Henry Brooks, a graduate of Virginia State College, served as fruit consultant. Others on the program of lectures and demonstrations were C. B. Jeter, assistant State supervisor of agriculture; R. W. Newsome, assistant agent, and Dr. P. J. L. Lockett, Dr. W. L. Watson and Richard H. Dunn, all of the college division of agriculture.

17th CPA Opens Office in Harlem

NEW YORK, N.Y.—The nation's colored certified public accountants reached a total of 17 here last week as Parnell F.F Drayton announced the opening of his office as a CPA on 125th St. in the heart of Harlem.

Born in Panama and a product of the College of the City of New York, Mr. Drayton is married to the former Elsie Jackson.

Welfare Expenditures Under $1,204,337 Figure of '49

Despite increases in payments for all types of assistance except one, the State Welfare Department last month spent less money than it did in January of last year.

Payments for January, 1949 totaled $1,204,337. Last month they were $1,137,907. Old age assistance payments, however, dropped from $435,270 in January of last year to $289,269 last month.

Welfare officials pointed out that the change in the figures reflects the change from a fiscal to a calendar month for old age grants in Baltimore City.

Other Categories

In other categories, increases were noted in aid to dependent children, which jumped from $454,580 to $512,600; aid to the blind, $18,600 to $19,412; general public assistance, $204,967 to $213,812; and boarding home care, $60,920 to $102,844.

In all divisions, Baltimore carried the brunt of the State's caseload.

Of 11,946 persons assisted in old age, Baltimore assisted 5,663. Of 16,891 dependent children assisted, Baltimore supervised 12,443 cases; and of 475 blind individuals assisted, Baltimore's caseload was 302.

Under general public assistance, Baltimore handled 3,473 of the 4,928 cases in the State.
