Health Talks to Be Given Over Radio, TV

A television program in connection with Health Week will be presented March 28 over Station WMAR-TV at 7:15 p. m.

The program will be sponsored by the health department and the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty of Maryland. It will be one of four programs to be presented this month.

The others include radio broadcasts over Radio Station WFBR each Thursday at 6:45 p. m. and television programs over WMAR each Tuesday at 7:15 p. m.

Other topics will concern eye conservation in industry; the public health nurse in industry; guards against whooping cough, food handler training, "growing old gracefully," environmental sanitation; housing law enforcement and communicable diseases.

'First Run' Films of the Week in Review

One of the outstanding events of the current movie season, "All the Kings Men," based on the Pulitzer Prize novel by Robert Penn Warren, is currently playing the Royal.

The powerful film, the story of a big shot whose world suddenly explodes in his face, co-stars Broderick Crawford, Joanne Drew and John Ireland.

Hungry for power, Crawford's appetites are not appeased by its achievement. Instead, he rides roughshod over all opposition, bumbling his opponents in the dust until his villainies force a few decent people to risk ruin in order to destroy him.

Brutal, forceful and dynamic, he attracts to his service supporters of every stripe including gamblers and crooks; aristocrats and common people, putting them in his hip pocket next to the whiskey and the blackjack and the gun.

AT THE REGENT

The peace-time merchant Marine, like its war-time counterpart, offers plenty of excitement on the Regent screen.

The film, co-starring John Payne and Gail Russell, is a stirring sea thriller, packed with adventure. Payne portrays a rough-and-ready skipper who loses his command when his ship goes aground (similar to the recent grounding of the Missouri), and his efforts to regain his stripes.

His grim fight to regain his command wins the respect of the girl he loves, portrayed by Miss Russell.

The supporting film, "The Great Lover," co-stars Bob Hope and Rhonda Fleming in a laugh-packed comedy.

AT THE MET

A wild orgy in crime is portrayed at the Met in the showing of "Deadly Is the Female," which co-stars John Dall and Peggy Cummings as husband and wife, and partners in crime.

Beginning with small holdups, the pair become victims of their own mounting ambitions, and soon find themselves the quarry of a far-flung police manhunt.

Their wild fight, culminating in an entrapment high in the mountains, constitutes unusual excitement.

Henry Morgan and Dona Drake are starred in the supporting feature, "So This Is New York."

AT THE NEW ALBERT

"Port of New York," now playing the New Albert.

Starring Scott Brady and K. T. Stevens, it's the story of one of the most terrorizing manhunts ever put on the screen.

It shows how men who guard the entrance to America face death and violence to uphold the law and the security of the nation.

But it is more than that. It's the story of real people, the kind you might meet in the course of any day, who summon great reserves of courage and tenacity when faced by viciousness and greed.

AT THE HARLEM

Gilbert Roland plays a prominent role with Spencer Tracy and James Stewart in the big adventure drama, "Malaya," now playing the Harlem.

In "Malaya" he enacts a guerilla patrol leader, who aids Tracy and Stewart in a daring adventure to smuggle rubber out of Japoccupied country.

Valentina Cortesa, hailed as the screen's most exciting newcomer, provides the romantic angles.

In Charge of 1,200 Youngsters

Arthur Samuel Coles (right) former State, city and intercollegiate high jumping champion, receives congratulations from Charles A. Messier, executive director of Boys Club of Newark, upon the former's appointment as director of the organization's Morton Street unit. Mr. Cole is in charge of athletic and character building activities for 1,200 youngsters.

Atomic Physicist to Lead Peace Talks Here on March 19

Colored and white Baltimoreans will join hands March 19 in the sponsorship of a Peace Conference to be held at Christ Episcopal Church Parish House, 1110 St. Paul St.

Overall sponsor of the conference is the Maryland Committee for Peace. Registration of delegates will begin at 1 p. m., followed by panel discussions.

The keynote address will be given at 2 p. m. by Dr. Phillip Morrison, atomic physicist, and associate professor of Cornell University.

Multiple Subjects

Discussions will involve relations between the U. S. and Russia, religion and peace, personal security in the atomic age and human rights and the standard of living under the heading of war tensions.

The committee consists of clergymen, civic leaders, educators and other citizens who have adopted a program calling for immediate outlawing of all atomic and bacteriological weapons of war.

The program also calls for a meeting between the two powers that possess the secret of the atom bomb in order to negotiate and compromise their differences in the interest of world peace.

Sponsors Named

Among the sponsors of the conference are:

Miss Carol Blanton, the Rev. Harrison J. Bryant, Dr. Oscar Chapman, Mrs. Mae W. Downs, the Revs. Clarence L. Fossett, W. F. Foster and Frank J. Frye; Dr. Evan A. Gilkes, the Rev. Octavius Graham, Mrs. Adah Rev. and Mrs. F. F. King, the Revs. Ely L. Lofton and Cedric E. Mills, Orville Moseley, Mr. and Mrs. William Murphy, the Rev. W. Lloyd Pitts, Bishop Alexander J. Shaw.

Miss Mayme Tilghman, Dr. Alexander Walker; Dr. Charles Watts, Dr. William H. Watts, the Rev. E. W. White and Dr. Ralph Young.

Two Digit Suspects Under $1000 Bail Each

Two men were held under $1000 bail each for action of the grand jury Tuesday on lottery charges lodged by Capt. Alexander Emerson.

They were Alphonso H. Allen, 27, 2000-block Lanvale St., and Aaron Stewart, 30, musician, 1900 block W. Lafayette Ave. William I. Gosnell, counsel for the men, entered pleas of not guilty during the hearing at Northwestern station.

Noted Playwright Scores Censorship of 'Stromboli'

NEW YORK — (Atlas) — Elmer Rice, playwright and censorship chairman of the National Council of Freedom from Censorship, last week scored attempts to ban the picture "Stromboli."

Mr. Rice cited press reports that Memphis, Texas, Indiana and Minnesota theatres had refused to show the film and concerted pressure was being exerted on exhibitors by ministerian associations and legislative bodies.

The playwright, along with the NCFC and the American Civil Liberties Union, believes that the picture should be judged on its merit as a piece of motion picture art, and not the personal conduct of the film's stars.

Smith Shuns "Stromboli"

Calling the attack against "Stromboli" another example of movies censorship which should be opposed, he pointed to the aid now being given in the test of the Atlanta censorship board's banning of "Lost Boundaries."

Meanwhile, Christine Smith, Atlanta censur, under fire in Federal Court action which seeks to overthrow her power to ban movies, refused to pass judgment on "Stromboli" until after the all-male Carnegie Library Board sees the film.

Said the blonde censor: "I don't want to get out on a limb on this one, like I did with 'Scarlet Street' and 'Lost Boundaries.'"

Sphinx Planning Gala Mardi Gras

Elaborate plans are being made for the annual Mardi Gras which will be held at the Sphinx Club for one week, beginning Mar. 6 and which will end on Mar. 13, with the crowning of the king and queen. The affair, patterned after the yearly event staged in New Orleans, will be marked with all the gayety, decorations and streamlined entertainment that can be packed into the club.

No expense is being spared to make this year's event outshine all previous attempts, according to Charles Tilghman, proprietor, who will be aided by Creston Woingust in erecting the new creations which they have designed.

Church Anderson's Three Strikes and a Miss will be among the featured attractions on opening night, Monday.

Oliver Travers, baritone, who will be featured in the regular monthly broadcast of the Baltimore Institute of Musical Arts Sunday at 10:00 a.m., over WFBR.

Willkie's Press Awards: Entries Deadline March 25

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (NNPA)—The final date for submitting entries for the Willkie Awards for Journalism, covering material published in 1949, has been extended to March 25, the Nieman Foundation at Harvard University announced Friday.

The three classes of awards are:

1. For the best example of public service by a colored newspaper, $250 and a plaque.

2. For the best example of objective newspaper reporting in the colored press, $250.

3. For the best example of writing other than news reporting (feature articles, editorials and columns), $250.

The Council of Nieman Fellows at Harvard University, which is responsible for judging the awards, has ruled that previous winners may not receive awards in consecutive years.

The awards last year went to: The Norfolk (Va.) Journal and Guide, for public service by a newspaper;

L. e. u. i. a. Lautier, Washington NNPA correspondent, for distinguished correspondence affording member newspapers of the NNPA clear, comprehensive and objective coverage of events significant to their readers, and Simeon Booker of the Cleveland Call and Post, for articles other than news.

No Filibuster Plea Aired

Congress Vote Urged on Civil Rights Bills

NEW YORK— Nine individuals who represented national organizations on the "Round-the-World Town Meeting" of the Air Seminar in 1949, Tuesday, sent a round-robin letter to all members of the 81st Congress appealing against a filibuster on the civil rights program.

Signing the letter as individuals and not on behalf of the Town Hall or of the organizations they represented on the seminar, the nine stressed the "damage to American prestige" caused by racial discrimination in the United States.

"We appeal to each of you to debate fully each one of the civil rights proposals but refrain from obstructionism and undignified discussion," the letter said.

Rights Not Political Issue

"We appeal to you to refrain from any tactics to prevent a fair discussion and vote," it continued, adding, "We appeal to you to think of this issue of human rights as an American and not a politically partisan one."

Persons signing the letter were Walter White, NAACP secretary-on-leave; Alfred A. Aloot, American Civil Liberties Union; Irving Brown, AFL; Edith S. Sampson, NCNW; George W. Welsh, U.S. Conference of Mayors; Saiju Sokonoski, Dr. Clarence Decker, Robert S. Byfield and Robert Hansen.

'Arms and Girl' Makes Pearl Bailey B'way Star

By ALVIN E. WHITE

NEW YORK (ANP) — Pearl Bailey billed as a supporting member of a star studded musical, "Arms and the Girl," reaches stardom herself with three good musical numbers and a flat speaking part in the show.

Miss Bailey and her understudy, Dolorey Martin, are the only colored members of the cast of a show based on the stage play, "The Pursuit of Happiness."

Miss Bailey wins the audience depicting a leader-footed, nimble witted escaped slave, who answers to the name of Connecticut.

In both her dialogue and songs, Miss Bailey gets laughs and applause on a par with that received by the terrific team of Nannette Fabray and Georges Guetary. She is a singer who can act too.

Wants No Bandana

If there has been any disagreement or friction in the company, it was not evident in Miss Bailey's performance Monday night. Without any slavish "headdress, Miss Bailey was on stage a great part of the time in important scenes.

It had been hinted that Miss Bailey, who threatened to leave the show flat last week, did so because either she objected to remarks made when she refused to wear a bandana or because one rumor has it, she didn't like to be called "loveable, an appellation used in the finale of the first act.

The finale includes the song, "Plantation in Philadelphia" is done by the four principals and the entire cast, in a whirlwind wind-up of flashing color and melody.

Songs Rock the House

Miss Bailey sings "Nothing for Nothin'," Plantation in Philadelphia" and "There Must Be Something Better Than Love." In the last number, she has the stage to Mamoudian, the music is by Morton Gould.

She proceeds to "rock the house."

The play is staged by the Theater Guild's top director, Rouben Mamoulian, definitely is one of its stars.
