Local War Vets View Fighting in Korea as Dress Rehearsal for World War III

will support it."

FRANCIS TRUSTY, 29, of 414 N. Bond St., said, "Korea is the start of the third world war. Aggression leads to further aggression. Korea is another Pearl Harbor."

HENRY BAKER
"My future is with my business, family"

Hasn't Had Job Since 1946

When asked whether he would volunteer, Trusty gave a negative reply, adding, "When will someone volunteer to give me a job? He said he had been unable to find employment since he was discharged in 1946.

"America is the greatest country in the world," said HERBERT T. WARREN, 33, 2002 Madison Ave, a steamship company steward. Warren, an active reservist who was a first lieutenant in World War II, said he would go back into service "at a moment's notice" in spite of the fact that he is a married man and is buying a home.

Vigorously opposed to American intervention in Korea is ELLIOT NELSON, 24, of 2210 Lynbrook Ave, a veteran of 13 months in the Pacific Theater. He declared, "I volunteered the first time and had enough of it. I believe we should let the United Nations settle the dispute."

Would Rather Meet Enemy

Voicing approval of the fighting in Korea, WILLIAM WASHINGTON of 1222 Druid Hill Ave., a vocational school instructor, said, "I would rather go out and meet the enemy than wait until he comes here. I would volunteer for duty in Korea under certain circumstances."

The 24-year-old graduate of Virginia State College refused to elaborate on that statement. Washington served in both European and Pacific Theaters during World War II.

HERBERT T. WARREN
"America greatest country in the world."

ALEXANDER MOORE of 2707 Spellman Rd., Cherry Hill, also approved the American action.

CLARENCE HICKS
"Won't volunteer under any circumstances."

The beached merchant seaman, who has a wife and two children, asserted:

"We should be in it. A lot of people should be most interested in the fighting than they are. I believe the United States will have to formally declare war within a year. Actually we are already at war. I went through the last one, and would be willing to go again."

Vet Hits Jim Crow

Critical of the discrimination that exists in the United States is CLARENCE HICKS of 1547 Pennsylvania Ave. who said he would not volunteer under any circumstances. The 33-year-old tavern manager said he is still suffering from the last war when his feet were severely frostbitten while he was on duty in Alaska. He anticipates all-out war within two months.

Will Volunteer If Needed

"America is the only country I have and I will support it," said DAVID B. JOHNSON, 20, 1421 N. Broadway. He said he would volunteer "if the situation becomes bad enough." Married, with one child, Johnson is employed by the Bethlehem Steel Company.

A 22-year-old father of three said he volunteered for World War II and would volunteer again. Nevertheless, CLIFTON JEFFERSON, of 1533 Madison St. optimistically believes that the war in Korea will be over soon. A confectionery store clerk, Jefferson said, "I guess I'll be working the rest of my life."

HENRY BAKER, 29, of 2417 Madison Ave., believes that he has too much at stake as a civilian to risk another tour in the service. Since he was released from the Army, Baker has acquired a family and assumed the proprietorship of a men's store on Pennsylvania Ave.

See All-Out War Ahead

The businessman is not convinced that the Korean situation will mean all-out war. He thinks, however, that World War III comes within the next ten years. Korea would be regarded as the starting point.

EARL A. KELLEY, 23, of 1029 N. Carrollton Ave., would volunteer "for the betterment of the race, or if the situation is critical enough." The insurance salesman, a Morgan graduate, believes that if the war in Korea is prolonged it probably would develop into World War III.

Will Have to Find Me"

"They would have to come and find me," said MALCOM FREEMAN, 24, of 2009 Bowson St., when asked whether he would volunteer or respond to a draft call. Married since he left the Army in 1946, Freeman said he recently quit the active reserves. He is a salesman of a hair product.

In the event of all-out war, ROBERT H. BROWN, 20, of 1503 Pennsylvania Ave. said he would return to the Marine Corps in spite of the fact that the race has made the least amount of progress in that branch of the service.

Presently employed as a clerk in a men's store, Brown plans to obtain a master's degree in biology, his major subject at Morgan. He thinks the Korean situation will develop into more than a mere skirmish."

Won't Volunteer Again

WILLIAM E. FOSTER, 23, of 2019 Walbrook Ave. was a volunteer during World War II who would hesitate before he would do it again. He would not speculate as to whether the Korean situation would result in World War II. An elevator operator at University Hospital, Foster had no particular plans for the future. "There's nothing to do, but work," he said.

BERNARD SCOTT, 23, 910 E. Preston St., is positive that Korea is a stepping stone to war. A Navy veteran, Scott said he would not volunteer. Nor would he shirk a draft call. He is a student at the Maryland Academy of Arts.

"EASY DOES IT" BY ..... HELEN HALE

WHEN MAKING JELLY or jam, it's best to work with about two quarts of fruit or juice at one time. Working with more will prolong cooking time and cause darkened jellies which often lack flavor.

Use a board to cool the kettle which gives plenty of room for boiling when making jelly. Once the juice has reached the boiling point, let it boil rapidly until the "jelling" stage is reached, that is, when two drops of syrup run together at the edge of the spoon and sheet off.

Don't Pour In Too Much

Jelly glasses should not be poured too full or it is impossible to seal them perfectly.

Always use fresh paraffin since old paraffin may have foreign matter in it, or may have a musty odor for being used and stored.

RECIPE FOR THE WEEK
Currant-Rhubarb Jelly
1 quart currants
1 quart cut rhubarb
1 cup sugar for each cup juice

Crush currants as they heat. When juice flows freely, pour into a jelly bag to drain. Add ¼ cup water to the rhubarb, heat until soft, and then place in jelly bag to drain. Combine the juices and bring to a boil with an equal amount of sugar. Boil rapidly until two drops of syrup sheet from the edge of a spoon. Pour and seal.

Jelly bags may be made of diflangel or several thicknesses of cheese cloth. Let the juice drip without squeezing the pulp and you'll have nice, clear jelly.

Wash the jelly bag as soon as you've finished with it. Pouring hot water through it will remove much of the fruit stain. Launder and store carefully for use another time.

Some Used Twice

Second extractions of juice for jelly making may be made from fruits rich in pectin such as apples, grapes, currants and quinces. Return fruit to kettle barely cover with water and heat gradually. After the juice simmers for 30 minutes, return to jelly bag.

Second extractions of juice will make cloudy jelly unless the juice is strained several times through several thicknesses of cloth.

Some jellies set slowly, requiring as long as a week to become firm.
