of making as deeply personal a purchase in such an offhand, anything-will-do fashion.

Yet, think! Scarcely a week goes by but some "friend of the family" gushes off to arrange hurriedly for burial space that another never found the time to provide beforehand. Isn't it almost grotesque that the man who would not allow another to select his neckties will yet thoughtlessly leave the choice of his Family Plot to a stranger? And isn't It pointless when you consider how easily and at what little cost you can own your own private Family Plot in this beautiful, ideally located memorial estate?
