would reduce the pressure for additional bed space and adequate medical attention.

Some parents of children who are patients at Rosewood protested. Because of the tremendous amount of pressure, Dr. Perkins was forced to postpone the shift.

Not Cancelled

At the time of the postponement, however, the mental health administrator made it clear that transfer plans were not being wholly cancelled but merely deferred.

When the transfer plans again appeared imminent, the parents filed a suit in Towson Circuit Court, before Judge John B. Gontrum, seeking a court injunction to prevent the transfer.

The first week in November, Dr. Perkins received a long list of questions, from lawyers representing the parents, which were of such a nature that he was forced to consult the Attorney General's office.

W. Giles Parker, assistant Attorney General for Maryland, was assigned to handle the case, and he and Dr. Perkins are still at work on the questions.

In addition to the over-crowded conditions found at the Winterode Building, the State health official also recommended that dish washing facilities, food handling methods, and uncovered radiators be corrected.

At first it was feared that the conditions found during the inspection might result in the cancellation of a child care license, annually issued Crownsville.

Application Pending

Dr. Arnold Eichert, superintendent at Crownsville, is striving to correct the unfavorable conditions, however, Early Thursday morning, Dr. Earl K. Holt, assistant Commissioner of Mental Hygiene told the AFRO that an application for a licgse renewal had been received from Crownsville that morning and would "be processed as soon as possible."

To offset the overcrowded pediatric ward, Dr. Eichert is moving the ward to another room in the same building. This room was originally planned for use as a recreation room.

Medical Needs First

The Crownsville director conceded that such recreation is vitally important to mentally-retarded children, but points out that "medical needs have to come first."

As for overcrowding in the dining room, Dr. Eichert declares that can be attributed to the general over-crowded conditions in the Winterode building.

Shortly after the injunction was filed, another assistant Attorney General, Kenneth Proctor, filed a paper with the Court showing that Rosewood was never incorporated as an institution solely for white patients.

Youth guilty of murder

Jury does not recommend mercy

James Edward Robinson, was convicted of first degree murder by an all-male jury early Friday afternoon. The jury was out for over two hours and made no recommendation for mercy.

The verdicts on two men charged with the first degree murder of an East Baltimore grocer, Oct. 6, are expected to be handed down today (Friday), by a 12-man jury and Judge Joseph L. Carter of criminal court.

The panel's decision will come first on James E. Robinson, 22, of the 2200 block E. North ave., who Thursday, requested a jury trial through his attorney Lishwood Koger.

Following this verdict, Judge Carter will hear the trial of the accused accomplice, John E. Mitchell, 24, of the 200 block Bethel ct., who asked for a court trial through his counsel, Joseph Rosenthal.

Premeditated Murder

The grocer, Harry Ezersky, 44, whose store is located in the 1300 block Orleans st., was killed in his car, parked at Eden and Mulligan sts.

On the witness stand, Robinson admitted that he was lying in the back of the car, armed with a .38-caliber revolver, waiting for the man to enter.

Explaining that he and Mitchell, who acted as a lookout man, had intended to rob the grocer, Robinson said, "I let him (Ezersky) get in the car.

"He drove about five feet and then I jumped up and told him to keep moving. I had the gun in my hand the whole time.

Shooting Accidental

"He slammed on the brakes and the gun went off when I fell forward. I thought I was shot when the gun went off. I did not mean to shoot the man. it was an accident."

On the grocer's body, police testified that they found $1,500 in cash and $500 in checks.

Robinson charged that Mitchell was the instigator of the crime. In a signed confession to police, Robinson claimed that Mitchell approached him earlier and asked:

"Come on, you want to go with me and get some money?" explaining that he had seen the grocer counting $200 in the store."

Later, Mitchell returned, Robinson said, handed him the gun and the two went to Eden st. where Mitchell was quoted as saying to Robinson, "Come on, you get in the car, I'm too big to lay on the floor."

Mitchell was waiting across the street, Robinson testified, when the shooting occurred.

Arrested 3 Days Later

Police said they arrested the two men three days later after receiving information from Miss Ann Brown, 14, 2700 block Fisk rd. and John Scruggs, 500 block Baker st., close friends of Robinson.

The gun recovered from a lunchbox at the home of Miss Delores McMillan, 200 block Bethel court, Mitchell's friend, had been wiped clean of fingerprints, police said.

The three friends, who testified as state's witnesses, claimed that Robinson and Mitchell had told them of the attempted holdup and shooting.

Through Robinson's foster mother, Mrs. Myrtle Robinson, 2000 block E. North ave., the court learned that the man was born at Crownsville and had been placed in her home through a social worker.

Learns Real Name

"I took him when he was only 2½ weeks old," the woman said, "and I didn't learn that his real name was Martin Speed until he was 16, when I went to get his birth certificate so that he could join the army."

Insisting that her foster son was "a good boy," despite the fact that he has been in trouble since 1940, Mrs. Robinson said that his misfortune "had nothing to do with the fact that his mother is still a patient there."

"James is very mannerly and quiet in the home, but on the outside he does the wrong thing because of his associates," she said. "He has never been capable of doing anything in his own mind. He is easily influenced by others."

Records showed that during the past 13 years Robinson has spent 22 months in Boys Village; served two jail terms in 1948 and in 1949 was sentenced to six years in the reformatory for assault and burglary, but was paroled last April.

Barrett school wants nurse to fill post at salary of $3,980

In an AFRO story last Friday, we listed the opening for registered nurse at the Barrett School for girls.

The salary listed for the position was $4,262. This is incorrect. The correct salary is $3,980.

We regret the error.
