Personal contacts help develop child

Classes at School 136 study social community

By CAROL M. TAYLOR

Believing that the school program should embody all aspects of social living, giving the child an opportunity to experience at first hand contacts with the developing forces of his environment, Elementary School No. 136 provides children with time for participation in those activities that lead to understanding of the social community.

The primary opportunity class has been studying about meat and the meat industry as a special studies unit.

They presented a culmination on this unit with Mrs. Sarah L. Manns, supervisor of special education and Mrs. Lena K. Lee, as guests.

• • •

THE CULMINATION began with a luncheon, prepared by the class mother, Mrs. Ida Gibson. This was followed by original riddles, limericks, and a playlet. The children sang and played their own rhythm band accompaniment with instruments which they themselves had made.

The members of the class are: John Barr, Thomas Berry, Donald Blount, William Gibson, Donald Patterson, John Thomas, Carrie Bell Whitehurst Handy, Willard Jones, Regina Kelly, Bennie McDaniels, James Harper.

Mrs. Mabel J. Cooper is teacher.

THE SECOND AND third grade class has been studying about "Our School Community." After visiting many places in our community the class made bread and many different kinds of cake.

To culminate this unit they presented a program for the third and fourth grades. This program included original poems and songs. They also presented an original play entitled "How Well Do You Know Your Community?" The children learned many facts about their community and gained a deeper appreciation of it. Those participating were:

Allen Lee, Bernard Cole, Sandra Hollingsworth, Lamont Turner, Eleanor Richmond, Carol Newsome, Marion Slocum, Dwight McLaughlin, Devold Williams, Whitfield Lee.

Lonnie Covington, Joe Harris, Carlton Gordon, Paula Horton, Clinton Wynder, Thelma Newsome, Frank Alford, Theodora Chase, Heather Jenkins, Arthur Hartfield;

Pamela Black, Phillip Chainey, Barry Colbert, Gary Black, Gilbert Fouch, Roy McMillan, Cynthia Brown, James Scott, Harriet Stokes.

Reginald Smith was the narrator and Miss Carol M. Taylor is teacher.

• • •

THE FIRST grade class held its culminating activities on the unit "Living Together In the Home." The program was composed of songs, stories, and a puppet show, "At Home With the Jenkins Family."

The class shared its learning with the kindergarten class. Those participating were:

Warren Turner, Leonard Frierson, Homer Smith, Marian Gaylord, Joseph A. Barrow, Rebecca English, Warren C. Foster, Thomas Green, Corine Little, Samuel Smith, Lonneal McMillan, Carol Tisdale, Carol Tisdale.

Howard Wiggins was master of ceremonies and Mrs. Blanche J. Strong is teacher.

• • •

THE SIXTH grade presented a culmination of the unit "Democracy As a Way of Life."

The highlights of the activities were a radio quiz program which was a general review of the unit, the presentation and interpretation of the Preamble to the Constitution, and an original skit, 'Democracy at Work." Those participating were:

RODNEY BUTLER, Maurice Middleton, Harold McLaughlin, Delores Cook, Shirley Mitchicks, Stanley Chainey, Samuel Moore, Melvin Shield, Artis Winfield, Rebecca Floyd, Regina Jackson, Jeanette McCoy;

Horace Gwathney, James Montague, Calvin Wilson, Resetta Hartfield, Gayle Tatum, Harold Fleet, Daniel Mabry, Georgia Slocum, Edwina Black, Carolyn Gilbert, Cecelia Johnson, Gloria McLaughlin.

DURING NEGRO HISTORY and Brotherhood week, the children visited churches and places of business to observe progress in their community and to meet living characters who are participating in their community's growth and development.

Speakers from social agencies spoke at assemblies. Most inspiring were Miss Estelle Thomas, executive secretary of the Madison Avenue YWCA, and Miss Mary Arrowwood, librarian in the children's division of Enoch Pratt Free Library.

Third and sixth grade classes were guests of School 115 to view that school's exhibit on Brotherhood.

Mrs. Lena K. Lee is principal of School No. 136.

Teachers discuss TV and biology

—The Effective Use of TV in Teaching Biology" will be discussed when the Maryland Biology Teachers Association holds its annual spring meeting at Morgan State College on April 16.

Plans for the meeting which will be coupled with the academic exhibit of Morgan's new Milton L. Calloway Science Hall were made at a meeting of the MABT's executive committee Saturday at Morgan.

In addition to the discussion of television in science teaching, the Association made plans to hold a panel on "How Can Courses in Biological Science Contribute More Effectively to the Total General Education of students on the High School and College Levels."

MABT will participate in the dedicatory exercises planned for the day by co-sponsoring a luncheon at which Dr. Fletcher Watkins, professor of science education at Harvard University, will be the principal speaker.

MABT President, Dr. Thomas P. Fraser, head of the department of science education at Morgan, described the forthcoming participation of the Association in Morgan's Calloway Hall dedication as a recognition of the importance of cooperative effort and group action on problems of teaching biology."

"The meeting held in conjunction with Morgan's academic dedication of Calloway Hall provides the Association with the opportunity to work with fellow science teachers and all who are interested in good science teaching." Dr. Fraser said.

• • •

A TOTAL of seven scientific societies will hold meetings at the college during the dedication which will run from April 15-17.

Officers of MABT present at the planning meeting in addition to Dr. Fraser included: William T. Moorefield, Board of Education, Baltimore, secretary; Frank K. Thomson Jr., Bladensburg High School, Baldensburg, assistant secretary; Dr. Eliza beth E. Haviland, University of Maryland, treasurer;

Helen E. Hale, Board of Education, Baltimore County, trustee; Etra M. Palmer, Board of Education, Baltimore, former president and trustee; Dr. Russell G. Mawby, University of Maryland, former president and trustee; and Dr. Harwell F. Stuldiven, University of Maryland, College, former trustee.

Progress is charted in unique program staged at School 453

The program committee of General Vocational School No. 453 recently presented a program depicting progress and development of the Negro.

Dances from various nations by the children were under the direction of Miss Betty McLemore. Interpretative dances were by Margaret Gross and Lillian Brooks. The guest speakers were Walker A. Shields, co-ordinator of schools, and Buford Gordon, instrctor of upholstery.

Committee members are: Mrs. Clara Pollard, Mrs. Hermione Weaver, Ernest Lingo and Leon Lofton.

Special training course for elementary teachers

The Baltimore City Department of Education will conduct a special training program for persons who wish to prepare for teaching positions in the elementary schools of Baltimore City.

This program, similar to the one offered last spring, will be open to former teachers and qualified persons who have had at least two years of college preparation, not necessarily in the field of teaching.

The course will begin on April 2nd and continue through June 10.

• • •

THOSE WHO are enrolled will participate in a program of lectures discussions and reading, will observe elementary children in their classrooms and will engage in actual teaching under the guidance of experienced classroom instructors.

Those who are selected for this training and complete it successfully will be eligible for assignment in the Baltimore City Elementary Schools in September 1955.

Miss Mary A. Adams, assistant superintendent for Elemntary Education, says that after all the 1955 graduates of State Teachers Colleges and other colleges, who have applied for teaching positions in the Baltimore City School have been placed, there will remain unfilled about 80 vacancies in the city's elementary schools.

Former teachers and other persons with two or more years of college education who are interested in teaching in the elementary schools of Baltimore City are invited to secure the details of this program from Miss Ruth Richards, specialist in Personnel, Department of Education, 3 East 25th St., Baltimore 18, Maryland.

Arrangements for an interview should be made by letter or phone, BElmont 5-6300, Extension 547 It will be necessary for applications to be completed by Friday, April 1, according to the Department of Personnel.

In the Ring, Bull Fighters Also Pray

MEXICO, D.F. — The Bull Fight Stadium in this city is one of the largest in the world. To Latins, the bull fight is extremely thrilling.

To all Mexicans and Latins, bull fighting requires exceptional skill. It is a stirring, thrilling drama in three acts, a drama of spectacle and stately pomp; an enthralling grim and tragic drama which ends in death for the bull . . . or the bull fighter.

Manuel Rodriguez, known the world over as the famous "Manolete," Carmelo Perez, Rudolfo Gaono and Fermin Espinosa, affectionately known as Armillita, were each killed in the last act of the daring drama of life and death.

• • •

EACH OF the afore-mentioned heroes of the blood and sand arena were known as "greats." Each introduced, invented or added some bit of artistry which is practiced today.

There are many colored persons who follow this art. It is rather difficult to bring them or their names to the foreground, because in Latin countries they are seldom, if at all, tagged with a racial label. However, there is an exception in Spain. El Negro, the great bull fighter, is known throughout bull fight circles. He is billed as "El Negro."

He is one of the greatest box office attractions in the bull fighting business. He is well liked by his companions.

• • •

THE MAJORITY of Americans do not like bull fighting. A large number of them are unfamiliar with what is going on in the ring. They do not know that each motion has some special significance like the dance movements of the Hula Hula girls of Hawaii. There is this difference: The bull fight is an exquisite ballet, a dance of death.

Many Americans who criticize bull fighting as being cruel and unsportsmanlike, think they are being very sportsmanlike — when they turn their backs and walk away, with a high powered rifle equipped with a telescopic lens, call to their guides, Remington shotguns which crashes into the heart of a defenseless, docile deer.

Soon will hide behind a blind, camouflaged to appear as a natural setting, and lure birds with decoy ducks or use the mating call to slay thousands and thousands of helpless birds.

This is not intended to criticize the sport of hunting, but rather my way of saying "what's sauce for the goose should be sauce for the gander."

• • •

A BULL FIGHTER who faces death or serious injury each time he enters the ring and faces a mad, wild snorting bull who charges with every ounce of his half ton bulk may think the deer slayers are somewhat unsportsmanlike.

The brave bulls (brave meaning wild or bad—the Spanish word is "brava"), also have their "ups," especially if they have gored a man. The bull fighter is extremely nervous when he faces a manKiller.

YM drive

The Druid Hill Ave. YMCA's annual membership drive for 500 members and $5,000 cash, closes Monday with a dinner meeting at the branch, according to Rufus Hackett, membership drive chairman.

Reports given at the Thursday night report meeting indicated that members are $2,000 short of the goal, and only 294 members have been reported. Workers are urged to meet their goal by the final meeting Monday.

Bids advertised soon on Cherry Hill School

Bids for the third school in Cherry Hill will be advertised the end of this month, William H. Lehr, director of school facilities told the board of school commissioners, Thursday.

Bid of $863,000 for the new St. Clair Lane school has been accepted and the Southwest School at Abel and Edmondson Avenue is ready for bids, Mr. Lehr reported.

• • •

A STUDY OF the building program of the school system will be made by the Commission on Governmental Efficiency and Economy, Walter Sondheim, president, announced.

Mr. Sondheim said that no suggestions as to the study would be made by the board as it wants the commission to feel free to inquire into any phases of plannings andexecution that it feels are pertinent.

The study is being made at the request of the school board. Such action was planned recently after the board released answers to a number of questions it had raised by the Citizen's Committee for the 1954 School Loan.

At that time a statement was released on behalf of the board which pointed out that the content and scope of the building program is the product of careful consideration by the board, but that the board recognized that it is healthy to have its judgement checked against the opinion of interested people in the community.

• • •

APPOINTMENTS to three teaching positions were approved at the Thursday session. They included Miss Myrtle F. Jones to position of opportunity class teacher, elected to School No. 112; John E. Barnette to a vocational position at School No. 454; and Leonard A. Briscoe to a second-grade teaching position on the faculty of School No. 181.

ON COMMITTEE—Dr. Martin D. Jenkins, president, Morgan College, and Mrs. Verda Welcome, have been appointed by Mayor D'Alesandro to the Urban Renewal Advisory Council, created to advise the city planning Commission on efforts to improve neighborhood housing problems.

Gadabouting in Baltimore

Pot-Pourri of events enliven Lenten Season

...with Lula Jones Garrett

MORE THAN A HUNDRED guests tripped into the Sphinx Saturday afternoon, for cocktails, luncheon and a viewing of Pauline Brooks' fashionable frocks and Nell Sheridan's equally chic hats.

But from where I was sitting it took some discerning to discover who was putting on the show, the guests of the Brooks' Shop. My, but the gals looked good. And the Brooks' ladies! All wore sleek black frocks with that ultra new white note . . . Miss Brooks, herself, in a new torso model with the long waist, a pleated skirt. Mazie Barbour, who was narrator, wore a smart fitted model with small turned-up collar beaded in white and Helena Edmonds, who stages the shows for Miss Brooks, had on a beautiful sheer wool with fringed skirt bottom, wide white collar.

Viewers are especially impressed with the line of fashions for size 16's and ups . . . as well as nifty numbers for the smaller sizes.

The fashion were shown by Miss Mae Leonard, Mrs. Zion Stevens, Mrs. Loretta Maith, Mrs. Marie Bowen, Mrs. Dorothy Reed, Mrs. Gwendolyn Atkinson, Mrs. Ruth Bailey and Mrs. Marie Hawkins.
