Summons

conducted an investigation for the NAACP.

Also present was Tusheard Walker of the 2400 block W. Lafayette Ave., who took time off from his job to appear in court where he told Magistrate Aaron that he had witnessed the incident, and had identified Brown in a lineup of police officers held at the Northwestern station house.

ACCORDING TO the Whiting boy, the alleged incident took place at Lexington and Calhoun Sts., and in addition to flashing a gun, the officer also destroyed the bat used by the children to play baseball.

With this information at hand Magistrate Aaron began a sharp examination of Mr. Walker over whether a gun had actually been displayed.

To this, Mr. Walker replied:

"I saw him pull the gun. I got his license number and he asked me what part I was playing and I told him that I did not think it was right to draw a gun on children."

"What color gun was it?" asked Magistrate Aaron.

"I don't know what color gun it was, but I do know that it was a gun, there is no doubt of that," answered Mr. Walker.

"ALL RIGHT" said the magistrate, "I'll issue a show cause summons." As he began to write out the summons, Magistrate Aaron paused and asked Mr. Allen:

"Isn't this a policeman."

"Yes it is," said Mr. Allen, "but I don't think that makes any difference."

The magistrate completed filling out the form as Mr. Allen asked:

"On a summons like this, suppose the man decides not to appear?"

"Then I might have to issue a warrant for failure to appear and fine him $5."

"And then what," asked Mr. Allen, "suppose you issue another summons and he doesn't show up again?"

"I can do the same thing again, I've got a lot of summonses," the magistrate said.

—Girl slain

an unidentified person stumbled over the Green girl's body, as it lay in a rear courtyard between the houses at 125 and 127 Schroeder St.

The shouts of the discoverer quickly aroused the entire neighborhood and in a few moments the area was alive with spectators. Their presence attracted the attention of Sgt. Albert Pariser, who was driving by in a radio car.

In a few moments the officer was joined by policemen from the Southwestern District, and members of the homicide squad, the crime laboratory, and the medical examiner's office.

FOR ALMOST three hours the girl's body lay in its original resting place as police photographers snapped the scene from all angles, and the scene was searched for possible clues.

While this activity was in progress, scores of spectators swarmed around the area in an effort to catch a glimpse ofthe girl's body. The child was fully clothed and her skirt had been pulled down about her ankles.

There were several splotches of blood near the girl's legs and police said there was evidence that the girl had been killed at a different place and her body dragged to the spot where it was found.

THE GIRL'S body presented a pathetic picture as it lay on the concrete courtyard near an unused refrigerator, while police outlined in chalk the figure of the slain girl.

Eventually the body was taken to the morgue, where an autopsy disclosed the then-ager died of manual strangulation and death had taken place about five hours before the body was found, at approximately 2 a.m.

On the night before her death at 8:45, Louise had been sent from her home at 107 N. Schroeder St. to a grocery store in the 1000 block of W. Lexington St., to purchase a bottle of soda for her grandmother, Mrs. Viola Mason, with whom she lived.

That was the last time any member of her family saw Louise alive. Police reported that she apparently never reached the store, only a short distance from her home.

WORRIED OVER the unexplained and strange absence of her granddaughter, Mrs. Mason went to the Southwestern district at midnight to file a missing person report.

Returning to the house, Mrs. Mason, and her husband, Joseph, spent a restless night as the hours ticked by with no sign of the young girl they had reared from an infant. Their long vigil finally came to an end early Wednesday, when the grim news people running past their home.

In a few moments a neighbor hurried through their front door and told them their beloved granddaughter had been murdered.

"There was nothing we could say, it was so sudden, so unexpected ad so much of a shock," Mrs. Mason later told a reporter.

NEWS OF THE girl's death quickly spread through the area where Louise had grown up and where the people knew her as a quiet girl whose manners were beyond reproach, who spent most of her time at home, and who had never been involved in any type of trouble.

"She was a wonderful child who never gave us a moment of trouble. She liked to read and to sew. Once in a while she would go to a party, but her main interest was in her work at school, and she never wanted to miss a single day," said her grandmother.

The substance of the grandmother's description of Louise was echoed by the residents in the area, by the storekeepers, and by Harold Seaborne, vice principal at the Booker T. Washington Junior High School, where Louise was in the ninth grade.

"Her record was perfect here at Booker T." said Mr. Seaborne. "She had an average in the high seventies, and her teachers all spoke well of her. The children in her class have been grieved by the news of her death. She was a good child."

THE OLDEST of three children, Louise planned to study commercial art. She was rather small in stature, standing four feet and three inches, and weighing less than 90 pounds.

After the autopsy, the girl's body was turned over to the Williams Funeral Home, 222 N. Schroeder St., where funeral services will be held on Sunday at 2 p.m., with burial in Mt. Auburn Cemetery.

In addition to her grandparents, Louise is survived by her mother, Mrs. Florence Hall of the 1000 block W. Fayette St., a sister, Elizabeth, 12, and a brother, Thomas, 14.

SPECTATORS DRAWN—Discovery of the crumpled body of Louise Green, 16, on Wednesday morning in the rear of the 100 block N. Schroeder St., attracted more than 300 persons who milled about the area as police conducted an on-the-spot observation. Though the neighborhood is thickly populated, residents reported that they heard no sounds at the approximate time the girl was strangled and her body dumped in a courtyard reached through an alley shown in the picture.

important role in the discharge rate at Crownsville, the lowest in the state.

WHAT CAN be done to ease the situation at Crownsville?

There has been a number of suggestions made for improvement of the hospital, some of which are listed below:

OVERCROWDING — At present, colored mental patients from the Eastern Shore are sent to Crownsville, and they now number 600. There is a state mental hospital at Cambridge which is used by white patients from the Eastern Shore.

When the hospital was built in 1912, the state made no mention of race when it appropriated construction money, and it has been the policy of the hospital to admit only white patients. At present there are only 610 persons using the facilities designed for 1,400.

It has been suggested that the colored mental patients from the Eastern Shore be transferred to the Cambridge Hospital, thus reducing the Crownsville population by 600.

It has also been suggested that additional feeble minded children from Crownsville be transferred to Rosewood, which is set up to handle patients in this category. A recommendation was made several years ago that the 300 Crownsville children be moved to Rosewood, but to date only 15 have been shifted.

The state has started a construction program at Crownsville but it will not be completed in less than 18 months. Meanwhile, the overcrowding continues.

UNDERSTAFFING — It has been suggested that attempts be made to recruit better personnel through a recruitment program and an attractive employment program, plus an increase in the number of authorized positions.

LOW PER CAPITA COST—Suggestions have been made that appropriations be boosted and to that end, Dr. Clifton T. Perkins, commissioner of the Department of Mental Hygiene, has requested an additional sum of $1,470,157 for next year, over the $13,764,000 granted for this fiscal year.

"The biggest single new item is $411,829 for 117 new positions needed to take care of the increased number of patients expected (635) for the purpose of opening new buildings, and to provide more adequate coverage in areas which are now the care of patients," Dr. Perkins said.

LACK OF TIES WITH THE BALTIMORE COMMUNITY — It has been suggested that colored citizens be named to the board at the hospital, and that more attempts be made to establish a working relationship with the Baltimore community to set up a better set of relationships.

Exams scheduled for eight jobs

Examinations for eight permanent state jobs have been scheduled for March 30 at Eastern High School, 33rd St., and Loch Raven Blvd.

Interested persons may file an application and take the examination on that date for the following jobs: Auditor, grade III, comptroller's office; auditor, grade IV; charge nurse, custodial officer, laboratory assistant, registered nurse, senior stenographer, and senior typist.

-YMCA

Doesn't it?

A.—I personally believe in immediate integration.

THE INTERVIEW continued: Q—Can a Y member, who happens to be colored secure a room at the Central Branch?

A. — Speakers and colored men who have been in interracial groups have been housed here. Under other circumstances, colored men are referred to the Druid Hill Ave. Branch. (Editor's Note—The Central Branch YWCA houses women of all races.)

Q—Can a colored man become a member of the Central Branch?

A.—No one has applied. I do not know what would happen.

Q—Can colored residents eat in the dining room and use reading facilities at Central?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Is segregation right or wrong?

A.—It is wrong.

Q.—How can you keep on doing wrong and square it with your conscience, and YMCA principles upon which you claim to operate?

A.—I personally say it is wrong, but we have 3,000 members, some of whom will have to be educated.

Q.—Is the YMCA kept segregated because you are afraid of losing many of your strong financiers and industrialists? If so, aren't you pitting money ahead of morals and Christianity?

A.—The YMCA receives no money from industrialists or financiers for its operating budget. The money is raised through memberships and other activities and contributions of the Community Chest.

Q.—The executive secretary is the power of the YMCA. If he recommended integration wouldn't the Board of Directors concur? If they do not follow at once, shouldn't he keep making the recommendation until success is attained?

A.—The executive secretary is not the power. The board carries the greatest weight. They do, however, give great consideration to recommendations of the executive secretary. I do not believe that such a recommendation would benefit all persons concerned.

Q.—Don't you believe that the board should let God in the YMCA before they pray to him before opening all meetings? It may be that God is colored.

A.—That is a good point editorially.

Mr. Easton is a native of Leonia, N.J. He has been in Y work for 27 years. He assumed his present duties in 1951, coming from the YMCA in New London, Conn.

suit says that the yough had not been to sleep the night proceeding the trip.

According to the suit, the boy was dozing in the car and was awakened by his father and asked to take over at the wheel.

The accident occurred at night, the suit states, and the youth was driving at a high rate of speed on Route 40 in Sussex County, Va., on a wet and slippery road, when the car left the highway and turned over. The elder Mr. Zachary was killed.

THE SUIT SAYS that Miss Johnson was burned by hot motor oil and received serious scars over her body. In the action filed by her mother, Mrs. Mary E. Johnson, the girl seeks $25,000 damages.

The mother asks $5,000 for medical expenses and loss of her daughter's service. Albert H. Frankel, attorney, is handling the case for the Johnsons.

Session to study problem of ringworm

A symposium on the problem of ringworm in school children will be held Monday at 2:30 p.m. at the Fannie L. Barbour School No. 161, Saratoga and Schroeder Sts., under the sponsorship of the Joseph Lockerman School No. 100.

Scheduled to appear as speakers are Mrs. Dorothy Lewis, a kindergarten teacher; Dr. David Bacharack, skin specialist from University Hospital; and Dr. Sybil Mandell, chief psychologist of the Baltimore City Health Department.

Lightfoot appeals

CHICAGO (ANP) — Attorneys for Claude M. Lightfoot, 45-year-old executive secretary of the Illinois Communist party, filed notice of appeal of Lightfoot's conviction with the U.S. District Court here last week.

At liberty under $30,000, Mr. Lightfoot was sentenced Feb. 15 to five years' imprisonment and fined $5,000. He was the first person convicted on the basis of mere membership in the Communist party and knowing the party's aims under an untested section of the Smith Act of 1941.

Downingtown gets freedom tribute

DOWNINGTOWN, Pa. — At a ceremony, following a dinner on Feb. 22 at the Valley Forge Military Academy in Wayne, the Downingtown Industrial School received a George Washington Honor Medal for the excellence of its school program from the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge.

Specifically the award was made by the foundation's national awards jury after a study of Downingtown's 26th successive original pageant featuring the 49th annual commencement last June 10.

It was entitled "Broken Bounderies" and dealt with the American way of wiping out boundaries based upon race, color, and creed. Representing Downingtown was the author and producer, Raymond A. Lemmon.

TO RUN IN FOURTH — These three men will be candidates in the elections in the Councilmanic race in the Fourth District. Mr. Dixon was a successful Democratic candidate in Tuesday's primaries. Mr. Koger and Mr. Lansey faced no opposition in the primary and are Republican candidates. Others in the race are Maxwell Alpert (incumbent) and Solomon Liss, Democrats, and Harry Brinsfield, Republican.

ers, a little over 33 per cent of the Republicans and Democrats turned out for the elections.

The Democratic party, this time, however, drew nearly 2,300 more voters. It should be noted that some of these votes came from the additional four precincts which are included in the Fourth Councilmanic District.

There are 70 precincts in this area compared to the 66 precincts in the Fourth Legislative District.

HERE IS THE breakdown of the home precincts of each candidate:

Henry, in his home precinct, of 11th, of the 13th Ward, led with 58 votes. Randolph ran a close second with 47 votes.

Payne, in his home precinct, the 10th, of the 13th Ward, polled 34 votes. Randolph led with 106 votes.

Randolph, in his home precinct, the 6th of the 13th Ward, polled 34 votes, Alpert led with 139 votes, Dixon, second, with 122.

In the 27th precinct, 13th Ward, where Callaman and Perkins reside, each polled 41 and 58 votes respectively. Randolph led this area with 61 votes, Dixon second with 59 votes.

IN DIXON'S home precinct, the Fourth of the 14th Ward, he led with 69 votes. Randolph ran a close second with 59 votes.

The AFRO figures do not bear out the rumor that Pollack cut Dixon in the election. In all of the wards in the district, Dixon held a winning spot.

He carried the 14th and 17th Wards besides the additional precincts in the Fourth and 16th Wards. In Pollack's wards, the 13th and 15th, he ran third.

It is also interesting to note that he made third place in Pollack's home precinct, the 35th of the 15th Ward.

Both Liss and Alpert made poorer showings in the 14th and 17th Wards but balanced their loss by polling heavier votes in the 13th and 15th Wards.

Lafayette Cts. still delayed

23 must wait
big repair job

After a delay of four weeks to give contractors time to re-do plaster work and complete the installation of heating units in three apartment houses, a Housing Authority spokesman revealed, Wednesday, that it isn't known definitely when the new Lafayette Courts will open.

The time limit is based upon the fact that a new method of plastering is being used for the first time, and the new tenants must wait until that job is completed.

WHEN CEILING cracks developed in the apartments two weeks ago, a sub contractor from Washington was hired to do the work over. It may take a week for the new men to complete work on the first of three apartments, it was learned.

When completed, Lafayette Courts will be the second city housing project to operate on a non-segregated basis.

The first, Fairfield Homes in Curtis Bay, was opened to both races shortly after the Housing Authority of Baltimore City announced a change in policy last June.

LAFAYETTE Courts is a huge 21-acre slum clearance project located a few blocks east of City Hall on Fayette St. Construction work started in August, 1953.

For the first time in Baltimore the project will feature high-rise buildings.

The six 11-story buildings and 17 two and three-story buildings cover 16 per cent of the land area with the remainder devoted to grass, supervised play spaces, walk ways and parking areas.

Dixon nominated in Fourth District

1st Democratic candidate for City Council post

Over 20,000 of the 49,000 registered voters in the Fourth District turned out to the city primary election, Tuesday.

Some 15,000 Democrats in the area cast their ballots, over half of them voting for Mayor D'Alesandro who washed out his six opponents with a total of 79,557 votes in the entire city.

Of the seven colored Democratic councilmanic candidates seeking election, Walter Dixon in the Fourth District was the only survivor polling 5,157 votes. He is the first to ever be nominated by the Democrats for City Council.

RUNNING WITH Dixon in the districts May 3 general election will be Solomon Liss, who polled 6,531 and Maxwell Alpert, incumbent, who polled 6,326 votes.

The defeated colored candidates in the Fourth District were Lloyal Randolph, 2,275; J. Howard Payne, 1,672; Josiah Henry, 1,611; Ernest Perkins, 1,304 and Melvin Callaman, 1,243.

Dixon told the AFRO, this week:

I am deeply appreciative of the efforts exerted by my friends the election. Words fail to express my gratitude and I wish to assure my constituents that I shall do my best to represent them."

THE REPUBLICAN candidates, who did not have a primary are Linwood Koger Sr., E. Gaines Lansey and Harley Brinsfield, white.

Approximately 4,000 of the 14,000 registered Republicans in the Fourth cast their ballots, Tuesday. Half of them voted for Samuel Hopkins who won the Republican nomination for mayor with 14,345 votes.

Leon Abramson, present Fourth District councilman, captured the Democratic Council president nomination with 44,213 votes. His Republican opponent will be J. Marshall Boone who polled 13,742 votes.

DR. R. WALTER Graham, Democrat, won the election for comptroller with 60,331 votes There is no Republican contender for the office.

On the councilmanic level, a complete turnover occurred in the Fifth District.

Jacob Edelman, present councilman from the Fourth, polled the highest votes in the area with 12,325. Running with him in the general on the Democratic ticket are Leon Rubenstein, William Schaefer and Michael Hankin.

Charles Law, who polled 3,013 votes in the area, had the highest vote of the six defeated colored candidates.

THE TWO defeated incumbents in the Fifth were Frank J. Flynn and John H. Reed.

In the sixth District, John McMenamen and William Hudnet were re-nominated. Also on the ticket for the general is Thomas Fallon.

C. Lyman Schueler and James Welsh, incumbents, from the Second District, will face the general election with Joseph Mach.

The primary, termed as the hottest election in many years, caused many candidates to begin their final hour campaign before sun-up.

AS EXPECTED, the "ghost" vote charges, geared against the Jack Pollack machine during the campaign, did not frighten voters from the polls.

And the Pollack machine, despite the bucking from numerous opponents rolled smoothly to a decided citywide victory.

versity for medical students and their families.

According to Robert A. Larabee, director of the Redevelopment Commission, the new housing in the area will have an "open occupancy" policy, but Mr. Templeton has challenged this.

"That does not mean anything," he says.

The Urban League director claims there are not any colored at Hopkins to qualify for the dormitory and feels certain that the private builder will not open his apartments to colored tenants.

THE GROUPS Mr. Templeton plans to convene again include the NAACP, Eastside Community Committee, Federation of Neighborhood and Civic Associations, ADA, the Maryland League of Women's Clubs and the Urban League.

"We are going to do everything in our power to get the federal government to become more interested in this matter, this discrimination against colored tenants," said Mr. Templeton.

Mr. Larabee, however, declares that the dissatisfaction over the project comes from a "complete misunderstanding about the whole area.

That the federal government is becoming more interested in the local situation was apparent, however, when last week Leroy Smith, relocation advisor for the Urban Renewal Administration, was in Baltimore investigating the situation.

The present revised plans of the Redevelopment must be approved by the Urban Renewal Administration and then passed on by the Board of Estimates.

LOCAL GROUPS have compared the Broadway Area project to the Waverly Area project where colored tenants were removed in a slum clearance project and the only new homes constructed were for whites only.

According to the new plan, the 30-acre redevelopment area is divided into 10 lots.

On one the Hopkins dormitory will be erected. In another, apartment hotel and medical offices. In a third, garden apartments.

On a fourth lot a Sunday school building will be erected for the First Baptist Church and in a fifth a new St. Phillip's Lutheran Church.

IN THE sixth lot there will be a development for stores. Only lot Seven, located between the Chick Webb Recreation Center and the new Eastern District Health Building, has not been decided on as to use.

In Lot Eight, the new health center is located and instead of housing the plans call for the remainder of the space to be used for parking facilities.

Lot Nine has been earmarked as the site for a new 24-room elementary school.

Critics of the new plans claim the new school will (1. be located "near a junk yard" and (2) ninety-nine per cent colored because of the surrounding neighborhood.

Lot Ten will be utilized as a playground for Dunbar High School. The latter has the largest enrollment of any high school in the city but little or no space for recreation.
