Alabama's New Governor Says He Meant Everybody When He Said 'Y'all Come'

By BILL MARTIN

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — The dawn of a new "day of freedoms" broke across the horizon of Alabama Monday, Jan. 17, when James E. (Big Jim) Folsom was inaugurated governor for the second time and firmly pledged to see that the people of the state have and hold their freedoms.

It was the rarest of days in the Deep South - a day that saw a southern governor declare openly that the freedoms and other benefits of America were the rightful property of all the people—not just a segment of the population.

Governor Folsom delivered his inaugural to representatives of all the people of Alabama—the coal miners, the factory workers, the sharecroppers, the cotton pickers and the big landowners—the big and the small, all the people who had pushed him into office over the bitter opposition of the die-hard element of the state.

* * *

HE TOLD the thousands who had come to hear the inaugural address: "Personally, I am here with one mission: To see that you, the people, may have and hold your freedom - that is my chief mission.

The governor, an anomaly among southern leaders, interpreted the freedoms of the people as:

"Freedom from scare, freedom from faceless information, freedom from character assassination by political enemies, freedom from anxiety, freedom for individual liberty, as against snoopers and stoopers."

HE TOLD the people he would seek "freedom for you to walk among your own - upright, with dignity, fearless and proud. For these things," he said, "we in this nation have died.

"These freedoms, these privileges are precepts rooted deep in the origin of man. They are older than democracy or any other form of government. They stem from the quality which sets man apart from the other creatures upon this earth, and gives to him a power of will to think, to share, to live in peace - and eventually, in plenty.

"These freedoms are the yardstick by which the rise and fall of civilizations are measured. They are eternal and everlasting."

THE ALABAMA governor said his mission is "to protect and to preserve these freedoms and to pass them on to posterity."

Even before his official inauguration as governor, Mr. Folsom attended a ball in his honor at Alabama State College, at which he pledged himself to fight for Alabamans.

"For the past 20 years," he told some 2,500 who attended the ball, "politicians who went around preaching race hatred did not get anywhere in politics.

"I'VE ALWAYS thought that any man, whether he be black or white, if he kicks somebody down who cannot defend himself-he's a low-down, dirty coward. That's the difference in a human being and a beast."

Declaring that he expected to accomplish more in the next four years than he did in his last term in working with colored colleges, the governor said:

"It is my desire for you to have a university. I'd like to see you have a law school and a school of medicine, either here or at Huntsville."

CONSCIOUS OF the effort made by his supporters to get him elected, he told his audience, "It was my pleasure to see more colored people vote in the last election than ever before in the history of Alabama."

In closing the governor stated: "I want every citizen of Alabama, regardless of race or color, to know that you have a friend in the highest place the people of Alabama can give."

It was this same attitude — the welfare of all the people—that permeated the core of the governor's inaugural address. At one part of the address, he spoke of freedom not belonging solely to Americans.

* * *

"FREEDOM," he stated, "and liberty is not a privilege reserved for us alone here in America.

"Today, the colonial peoples of the world are in much the same positions as were the Americans in 1774.

"If the qualities of our Constitution which state that all men have inalienable rights endowed by their Creator — if these measure up to a happy life for Americans, then they also apply in equal proportion to the nations of Africa and the Far East, who have never enjoyed the rights of self-government.

* * *

"THE COLONIAL people of the world are going to get their freedom. They're going one way or another.

"If we don't help them get it, then someone else will — and they'll go the way of the other nations behind the Iron Curtain, by whatever name it's called.

"There can be no universal justice," Governor Folsom declared, "no last full measure of devotion, until all people are allowed to govern for themselves."

* * *

ON POLITICAL inhumanities, Governor Folsom said:

"Using the courts for political prosecutions must stop in Alabama. People are human. Courts are human. It's only human to 'get even' in the courts."

He cited the Magna Carta, forced from ruthless English kings in 1215. "No free man shall be imprisoned or in any way harmed save by lawful judgement of his peers, and by the law of the land."

* * *

THE GOVERNOR also promised to follow through with the pension program he advocated during his campaigning. The program includes a $50-a-month pension "for our old people to provide the basic necessities of food and shelter and medicine."

Although he did not mention the question of public school segregation, Governor Folsom said: "My previous administration gave children of Alabama a full nine months' school term. I want it said of my second term that we took them out of shotgun shacks and put them in buildings."

* * *

GOVERNOR FOLSOM was in opposition to the determination of other southern governors, who, following a conference, declared their advocacy of revising the state constitutions in order to offset the Supreme Court decision outlawing public school segregation.

The liberal leader told his followers:

"I campaigned on a theme of 'Y'ALL Come.' It is a term of friendliness, of neighborliness, of kindliness toward one's fellow man. It is the term that our people use in asking their neighbors over for a visit.

"AND YET," the governor declared, "if one applies 'Y'ALL Come' to its broadest meaning—it brings one closer to the very core of Christianity, in which people would do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

The speech of Governor Folsom was uncommonly new in the area of the Deep South. The fact that it was accepted by a large segment of Alabama's population could be evidenced in the enthusiasm that attended the inaugural parade.

ALMOST 7,500 took part and approximately 10,000 viewed the colorful spectacle.

A new day had indeed dawned in Alabama — a day when the governor — the state's 48th — pledged himself to benefit the people — all the people, regardless of race or color — a day when a southern governor promised to uphold the freedoms of those who had placed their trust in his hands.

In and around Annapolis

By ROBERT PINKNEY JR.

Six members of the Bates High School chapter of the United Nations Youth Club, accompanied by Mrs. Elizabeth D. Herbert went to Baltimore Sunday to attend a workshop-panel discussion on revisiting the UN Chapter.

The discussion was sponsored by the research committee of the organization and held at the UN Headquarters at I. W. Mt. Vernon Pl.

The Northwest Street YMCA basketball league of Annapolis opened on Thursday night at Bates, director Paul Haughton announced.

Scores of the games were Finky's Termites, the defending champions, 87-25 over the Warriors; the Musketeers downed the Fighting nights, 58-14, and the Hawks, led by Harold Covert, a former Bates star with 20, points, trimmed the Eastport Hornets, 73-29.

HERBERT S. Hilliard is president of the newly formed Anne Arundel County Teachers Association Federal Credit Union, formed by colored teachers in the county.

Officers who served as directors are Mrs. Lois H. Carroll, vice president; Louis T. Harding, treasurer; Everett G. Pettigrew, clerk; Phillip Brown, Frank B. Butler and Miss Mary V. Wiseman.

Credit committee members are Butler, chairman; Miss Wiseman, and Mrs. Josephia Morselle.

The supervisory committee includes George Diggs, chairman; Walter S. Mills, secretary, and John Weatherford.

The association, the ninth in the state to establish a credit union, is to promote thrift among its members by affording them an opportunity to accumulate their savings and to provide convenient credit for them.

* * *

FINAL SCORES of the Senior and Junior Colonial basketball league, under the supervision of Sam Mason:

Parole 27, Brownswoods, 21; Spa Road edged out the Jets, 22-20, in the Junior circuit while Parole trounced the Warriors, 34-28, and Brownswoods sunk the Conquistidors, 24-12.

The 9-C and 9-D CORE classes of Bates High School participated in the Anne Arundel County Conservation contest sponsored by the Four Rivers Garden Club.

The students explored the subject, "How Can We Help Preserve Our Anne Arundel County Water Supply?"

* * *

ALREADY HAVING issued 1,000 bicycle licenses, the supply has been used up and more have been ordered, it was announced last week.

The licensing of bicycles at Police headquarters has been discontinued until the new supply arrives. Notice will be given when it will be resumed.

The 1955 March of Dimes Campaign got off on the right foot at Bates recently with the showing of the movie "Sister Kenny."

Fifty homeroom sections at the school will make voluntary contributions to the drive.

Josiah Henry, Baltimore attorney, was guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the NAACP at 8:30 on Wednesday. The program was held at the First Baptist Church on Washington St.

Hubby files but she wins divorce suit

It was a rough day in court for husbands seeking to divorce their wives. Loser in one case was Charles Powell, who sought to divorce Mrs. Mary Powell of 820 Whitmore Ave.

Mrs. Powell won the suit on a cross-bill after testifying that her husband admitted being in love with another woman, and had deserted her a month before their last child was born.

The children were placed in custody of the mother and the father ordered to pay her $20 per week for their support.

* * *

FREDERICK WATERS of 1514 E. Pratt St. had no trouble, however, getting a divorce from Mrs. Rose Waters of Brooklyn, N.Y.

Advised by his lawyer, Roy S. Bond, that the husband had filed a petition, Mrs. Waters sent a letter saying that if he wanted a divorce by all means give it to him.

Mr. Waters was freed after testifying that his wife left him in 1936 after telling him that she was tired of marriage and would rather be by herself.

* * *

MR. BOND was also attorney for James A. Bowie, 1433 Myrtle Ave., who said that he and Mrs. Veronica Bowie were married on June 8, 1928 and voluntarily ended the union on May 15, 1947.

* * *

MRS. GRACE J. YOUNG of 1943 Lauretta St. and a member of the faculty of School No. 139, divorced Reginald Young.

She testified before an examiner, stating that the marriage, contracted on Oct. 2, 1948, ended on August 20, 1951. They found themselves at too many odds to remain together and agreed to separate, she said. Dave Mason, attorney, represented Mrs. Young.

Oral surgery at Howard approved by dental group

WASHINGTON

Oral surgery, a part of the division of surgery, has met all the requirements for full approval by the council on hospital dental surgery and the committee on internship and residencies of the council on dental education of the American Dental Association, accrediting agencies for the American Dental Association.

This accreditation was made known on Dec. 7, to Dr. John A. Turner, head of the department of oral surgery, Howard University school of dentistry, and chief of the three dental clinics at Freedmen's Hospital; one for out-patients, one for in-patients in the general hospital, and one for in-patients in the tuberculosis annex.

Some of the evaluated requirements for accreditation were type of equipment, quality of service, adequacy of facilities, preparation and organization of the staff, and quality of the Dental Intern Training Program.

Dr. Turner is a native of Washington, a graduate of Howard University School of Dentistry, was the first dental intern at Freedmen's Hospital in 1926, and has been chief of the service since 1927.

Current members of his staff are:

Dr. John A. Turner, Dr. Raymond L. Hayes, Dr. Coleman R. Tuckson, Dr. Bernard Kapiloff, Dr. Ethan E. Ware;

Dr. Robert C. McMurdock, Dr. Robert E. Smith, Dr. Hillard W. Freeman, Dr. John Neeley, Dr. Flavius A. Galiber;

Dr. Russell A. Dixon, Dr. Percy A. Fitzgerald, Dr. Arthur Dick, Dr. Joseph L. Henry, Dr. Maria Silberkweit, Dr. Alicia M. Howard.

Interns: Dr. Craig Means, Dr. Arthur Thomas, Miss Mary L. Blakemore, dental hygienist.

Floral shop employee held in $1,180 larceny case

Charged with larceny of $1,180 over a period of 24 months, a 39-year-old deliveryman for a floral shop was ordered held in bail of $1,500 on Friday in Northern Police Court.

Cecil W. Carter, 700 block N. Eden St., was arrested on his job for allegedly taking the money, in denominations ranging from $24 to $50, from Mrs. Ruth Klein of the 2700 block W. Coldspring Le., between June of 1953 and January of this year.

Mrs. Klein claimed that Carter, a longtime employee at the shop, made deliveries, brought back receipts marked paid, then returned to the files and destroyed the receipts before they could be recorded.

She stated that he had a duplicate key to the shop's files.

HU law school has journal

Resident of D.C. is student editor

WASHINGTON

A milestone in the 86-year history of the Howard University School of Law was reached, Friday, with the publication of the school's first law journal.

The journal, to be published semi-annually, in January and June, features scholarly articles by outstanding members of the law profession and honor students at Howard. It is edited by Jeanus B. Parks Jr., a senior, of 3340 22nd St., N.E.

Contributors to the first edition include James H. Murphy of Syracuse University, Malcolm McDermott of Duke University, Warren A. Seavey of Harvard University, Milton M. Carrow, a practicing attorney in New York, and the following students:

John F. Middleton of 1211 C St., S.E.; Wilbert L. Whitsett and William R. Atkins of Pittsburgh; Mrs. Harriet W. Batipps, Media, Pa.; Hubert H. Bryant, Tulsa, Okla.; Charles W. Smith, Norristown, Pa. Albert T. Hamlin, Raleigh, N.C.; Llewellyn Woolford, Baltimore, and Paul L. Diggs, Norfolk.

Other members of the journal staff include Kenneth Brown of Philadelphia and Carrous Robinson of High Point, N.C.

The purpose of the Howard Law Journal, according to Dean George M. Johnson is to train students in legal research, analysis, and expression, and to serve the members of the legal profession and the public.

According to Dean Johnson, faculty supervision of the journal will be kept at a minimum. The present faculty advisory staff is made up of Howard Jenkins Jr., Charles W. Quick, and Herbert O. Reid, all associate professors of law.

New federal aid bill to benefit states with school segregation

WASHINGTON (NNPA)—Sen. John L. McClellan of Arkansas, 22 other Democratic senators and a lone Independent Monday introduced a bill to provide federal aid to the states for the construction of public grade and high school buildings.

The bill is patterned after the Hill-Burton Act which provides federal aid for the construction of hospitals and mental institutions.

That act contains a trick provision which provides that a state plan must provide for adequate hospital facilities for the people of the state without racial or religious discrimination.

REGULATIONS ALSO require that an applicant for an individual hospital construction project give assurance to the state that it will serve all persons living within the area of the applicant.

The regulations make an exception where separate hospital facilities are provided for separate population groups, if the state construction plan makes equitable provision on the basis of need for facilities and services of like quality for each such group.

When legislation to provide federal aid for school construction is considered by the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee and the House Education and Labor Committee, the NAACP and other organizations are certain to press for inclusion of a provision to condition any grants on the absence of segregation in the public school systems of the states to be aided.

Such a proposal is bound to meet with stubborn opposition from southern members of Congress.

Under the bill offered by Mr. McClellan and his colleagues, the southern states, which are seeking to circumvent the Supreme Court decision outlawing segregation in public schools, would be the greatest beneficiaries.

The bill sets out a formula for the allocation of federal appropriations to the states. The formula is based on the number of school children and the per capita income of the states as com-

$12 coat sale saves man from facing larceny rap

George McCargo, 100 block Madison Ave., no longer owns a black and white checkered coat, but at least he's $12 richer and doesn't have to face a larceny conviction.

McCargo told Magistrate Howard L. Aaron in Southwestern Police Court that he had purchased the coat last summer for $15. But Friday John Watson, 500 block W. Mosh- Johnson Watson, 500 block W. Mosher St., spotted him in the street and insisted that McCargo was wearing his coat.

The two decided to settle it once and for all in court. Watson told Magistrate Aaron that he had purchased the coat last fall for $45 and that it had been stolen from him Jan. 4.

* * *

HE SAID he recognized it immediately by a small hole near the left pocket. However, McCargo insisted that the coat belonged to him despite the hole near the pocket.

Breaking the deadlock between the two men, Magistrate Aaron suggested Mr. Watson buy the coat from Mr. McCargo for $12. The two agreed and the case was dismissed.

Lawyer seeks phone service

WASHINGTON

Don Lockett Young, an attorney of the 600 block F St., NW, filed a suit against the widow of his law partner in District Court, this week.

Mr. Young seeks an injunction, temporary and permanent, against Mrs. Ruth T. Gray and Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co.

According to the petition, Mrs. Young is accused of ordering his phone service discontinued.

* * *

THE PETITION asserts that Mr. Young was a law partner of Augustus W. Gray from 1946 until the time of his death on Nov. 14, 1954.

On Jan. 17, the phone service was discontinued, it was said.

Mr. Young seeks $10,000 damages from Mrs. Gray for what he terms "malicious interference with the practice of his profession."

The action was filed through E. Lewis Ferrell, attorney.

Waterfront News

By J. D. WILLIAMS

Within a few days, officials of the local International Longshoremen's Association believe they will sign a new contract with the Steamship Trade Association, calling for higher wages and increases in the management contributions to welfare and pension funds.

Contract negotiations are already underway, with the STA offering an immediate seven cents an hour pay hike, and additional contributions of two cents an hour to both the pension and welfare funds.

The STA is also reported to be offering a further wage increase of six cents an hour in 1956.

* * *

THE PRESENT contract, which calls for a basic wage of approximately $2.36, is not scheduled to expire until Sept. 30, but if the negotiations bear fruit, the new contract will go into effect immediately and extend until Oct., 1956.

Contract talks are always important to the more than 2,500 men (1,600 of them colored) who earn their livelihoods as longshoremen, but this year the talks are even more important in view of the recent heavy loss of trade suffered by the Port of Baltimore.

Realizing that the loss has a direct effect on the amount of work available to longshoremen, the ILA officials are reported considering making certain economic concessions during the contract talks, in order to attract more ships to the port.

* * *

THE MOST important of these rumored concessions revolves around the question of "paid and fee shapes." Under the present setup Baltimore has a "paid shape" which means that when a shipper orders a certain number of men for a job, the men are guaranteed at least four hours pay.

Under the "free shape" system used in Norfolk, Philadelphia and southern ports (which have attracted trade from Baltimore) no such guarantee is made.

While the use of the "paid shape" does impose higher operating costs on shippers in Baltimore, there are also other factors which have been responsible for the drop in work for longshoremen.

* * *

ONE OF THESE factors is competition from the railroads and trucking industry in coastline and inter-costal transportation. These two carriers have taken a healthy slice of the shipping business, by offering faster, and in some cases cheaper transportation, then the shipping lines.

This loss of trade has not yet reached critical proportions, but it has reached a stage serious enough to cause worry among both union and management circles, who know that it takes a lot of ships to keep 2,000 men busy, and at present Baltimore piers are not receiving that many ships.

WALTER HAMILTON DIES

ASHEVILLE, N. C. —Funeral services for Walter B. Hamilton, 77, of 55 Max St., were held last week in Hopkins AME Zion Church. Burial was in the Violet Hill Cemetery.
