HAPPINESS VS. SECURITY—Elizabeth Taylor, refusing Stewart Granger's offer of marriage, tells him she prefers security to happiness in a dramatic scene from "Beau Brummell," M-G-M's color romance of England's famous 18th century dandy and adventurer, now playing at the Harlem Theatre.

BRODERICK CRAWFORD, as an FBI agent, steps in just in time to save Ruth Roman from being pushed off a cliff. Exciting scene is from "Down Three Dark Streets," now playing at the Metropolitan Theatre.

Republic's tense drama, "The she wolf" now playing at the New Albert Theatre brings to the screen a strange and fascinating story of a savage, sinful, shameless woman feared by her neighbors, beloved by one man, and, in turn, driven by desire for another.

Kerima stars in the title role of the Jules Levey picture which introduces May Britt.

Directed by Alberto Lattuada, who also wrote the screenplay which is based on the famed story by Giovanni Verga, the story concerns the emotionally blazing career of a woman who meets and loves a dashing stranger.

When she learns that he is attracted to her daughter, she unhesitatingly arranges a marriage between him and her daughter.

PRIMITIVE EMOTIONS blaze as the three set up housekeeping in the heroine's modest home, and within a short time a triangle develops which is as explosive as it is emotional.

May Britt portrays the daughter, Maria, while Ettore Manni is Lasca, the emotion-torn hero.

Kerima establishes herself as one of the foremost screen personalities in her current role.

Her previous screen appearance was in Carol Reed's "Outcast of the Islands."

AT HARLEM THEATRE

"Beau Brummell," new M-G-M attraction at the Harlem Theatre, brings to life one of the most engaging and controversial figures of England's flamboyant Regency period — the dashing, reckless, ardent adventurer who gambled life and love on fame and left his mark on the fashions, morals and court intrigues of his day.

With Stewart Granger fitting the title role like a glove and with Elizabeth Taylor, Peter Ustinov and Robert Morley enacting the pivotal characterizations of Lady Patricia Wyatt, the Prince of Wales and the mad King George III, the picture, filmed in color in England, is given both authentic and sumptuous backgrounds.

Its action covers the pomp and spectacle of a parade of the power when he persuades the latter to take a firm stand against England's wily Prime Minister, William Pitt.

But their friendship turns to enmity when Brummell advises the Prince to certify his father, George III, insane and to name himself Regent so that he can marry his mistress, Mrs. Fitzherbert.

When the plan misfires, they quarrel and Brummel, too proud to admit his mistake, is forced to sell his possessions and to go into exile.

The loss of his social position also brings an end to his ill-fated romance with the beautiful and aristocratic Lady Patricia.

MET THEATRE FEATURES 'DOWN 3 DARK STREETS'

A hard-hitting crime drama which shows how the web-like workings of the vast FBI run down a gang of car thieves, a gangster-killer, and an extortionist, "Down Three Dark Streets" is now playing at the Met Theatre through United Artists release.

The picture, a suspense thriller that reveals some heretofore secret crime fighting techniques of the FBI, co-stars Broderick Crawford and Ruth Roman, and features a large supporting cast headed by Martha Hyer, Marissa Pavan, Casey Adams, Gene Reynolds and Jay Adler.

It was produced by Arthur Gardner and Jules V. Levy, and directed by Arnold Laven. It is based on the best-selling novel, "Case File: FBI" by the Gordons.

AN FBI AGENT working on three unrelated cases was shot and killed while tracking down information on one of them.

The FBI assigns agent Broderick Crawford to find his killer and his trail leads him through the murky, dangerous paths of the underworld.

Crawford belives the only way to find the killer is to solve the cases, and they are, namely: finding the hideout of a desperate gangster; tracking down and breaking up a nation-wide auto-stealing ring; finding an extortionist who threatens to kidnap the child of a Los Angeles dress designer unless paid a large sum of money.

ROYAL THEATRE FEATURES 'PUSHOVER'

"Pushover," new suspense drama satrring Fred MacMurray and Phil Carey and introducing blonde and beautiful Kim Novak, currently plays the Royal.

Dorothy Malone is featured in the principal supporting role.

MacMurray, who gave one of the surprising performances of the year as the "train" of "The Caine Mutiny," again plays a "heel," but this time one of the brass-knuckled variety.

IN "PUSHOVER," the star is cast as a tough detective assigned to catch a bank-robber killer.

Instead he succumbs to the charms of the killer's beautiful girl friend, wipes out the killer to grab his $200,000 loot and, inevitably, finds himself on the wrong end of the police guns.

Added attraction stars William Bishop in "Black Eagle."
