'I didn't mean to kill him,' vet says

Tells mother about slaying brother from prison cell

"I didn't realize I had cut him, I didn't want to. I wouldn't have killed my brother for anything in the world."

These were the words that a mother of seven children heard from one of her four sons Tuesday after he had been charged with stabbing his older brother to death.

From his cell at Central District Police Headquarters, William Henry Smith of the 1700 block Brady Ave., Fairfield, told his mother, Mrs. Louise Ross, about the slaying although he left the most important part unanswered.

THE 27-YEAR-OLD ex-serviceman who served, two years in the Navy never told relatives what touched off the altercation between him and his 31-year-old brother, Harry E. Smith.

Although two sisters and a younger brother were at home when the stabbing occurred, they were not able to shed any light on what happened.

When Southern district policemen Sgt. John Stricker, Officers William Kowalski and James Harriman arrived at the Brady St. home, they found Harry with stab wounds in his neck.

They were met by Blango Ross 14, who stated that he witnessed the fight between his two stepbrothers.

* * *

MR. SMITH died enroute to South Baltimore General Hospital without regaining consciousness. William, in company with a third brother, Albert, surrendered at the Southern District station about an hour later.

Relatives said the two brothers were recently laid off from their jobs by a construction company. Both are native Baltimoreans and attended Dunbar Junior High School.

Mrs. Ross said she learned of her son's death when she arrived home from her job on Lake Drive.

"When I saw two police cars in front of the house I knew that something was wrong," she stated. "I saw Ida crying and I asked her what was wrong and she said 'nothing?' But I knew better.

"June then spoke up and told me that William had stabbed Harry," the mother continued.

* * *

ASKED IF the brothers had ever fought each other before she replied: "Not that I know of.

"Harry and William never had any trouble. I just can't understand it," she said. "I can't figure it out. To me it seems as if the whole thing was more of an accident than anything else. Those boys loved each other."

Mrs. Ross said her son Blango said he heard the men argue but didn't know what it was about. William she said "apparently at first didn't realize that Harry was dead because he just turned and walked away after striking him."

When she visited the jail Mrs. Ross said her son said: "Mom I didn't realize I had cut him."

Funeral services for the slain brother will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Randolph J. Collick Funeral Home, 1412 E. Preston St. After 5 p.m. Friday the body may be viewed.

There is little likelihood that William will be able to attend his brother's funeral. The laws of the city jail do not permit it. If he makes a request, however, to view the body before the funeral, prison authorities may grant him permission.

Mr. Smith is survived by his wife Elsie; a nine-month old son; three sisters, Mrs. Ida Yarbourgh, Mrs. June Brown and Miss Jean Ross; and four brothers, Albert and Blango Ross, and Clifton and William Smith.

Schenley campaign ads appear in AFRO

The largest pre-holiday newspaper campaign in the history of the brand will be used in December by Schenley Distrbutors Inc. for its Schenley Reserve blended whiskey. Large - space copy will appear at frequent intervals in more than 450 newspapers, including the AFRO-AMERICAN.

"Emphasis in the campaign will be placed upon the Schenley Reserve decanter, the largest - selling gift decanter package in the industry, which will be available again this season but in limited supply," Mel Singer, brand and manager, said, "Newspapers will carry the lion's share of our great holiday campaign because they enable us to reach the local market in a way provided by no other media," Singer said.

Heroin floating about Baltimore

Two ounces of heroin, enough to make 800 capsules of the drug, selling for $3 each is floating around Baltimore, and the local narcotics squad has picked up the scent.

The drug was shipped to the city this week from Washington and is believed to have been destined for a local drug ring which planned to use the heroin to take care of addicts during the Christmas holidays, when money is in circulation.

While narcotics men know the drug is in Baltimore, they have been unable to find it. However, indications are that the catch is too big to remain in hiding for long, and police stand better than a 50-50 chance of tracking it down, before the peddlers have a chance to dispose of the drug in capsule form.

* * *

POLICE HAVE more than a passing idea as to the identity of the man who is heading the ring, but to date he has managed to stay out of trouble by nimble footwork that has made it impossible for police to trap him with any incriminating evidence.

For several months, the city has been relatively free of any major traffic in the drug trade, and when police learned this week that a large shipment had been sent to the city, they swung into action.

Headed by Lt. Joseph Carroll, members of the narcotics squad picked up ten of the city's known dope peddlers and addicts and subjected them to intense questioning, this week.

Later, one man was booked at Northwestern and one at Northeastern police stations. They were:

* * *

CLARENCE (KNOCKY) Porter, 41, of the 1300 block Argyle Ave. St., who was ordered held in $4,000 bail for the grand jury at a hearing in Northwestern police court. Police said they found two capsules of heroin on Porter when they arrested him in the 500 block of Biddle St., and a search of his room turned up a hypodermic syringe and needles.

WILLIAM O. McCOY, 24, of the 1300 block Central Ave., who was ordered held in $3,000 bail for the grond jury at Northeastern police court. Police said that when McCoy was arrested he threw two capsules of heroin to the ground. They were recovered.

Lieutenant Carroll testified that McCoy told him he was working for a man named "Walter" and that in return for selling the drug, "Walter" gave him a few capsules for his own use and paid his rent.

BIDDLE—In loving memory of our dear mother, EMMA, who passed away December 2, 1947:

Mothers are those who never complain
Tho the trials be hard to bear.
Mothers are those who always give
A love that is so hard to share.
We miss that love and always will,
We miss her face or wisdom still,
No artist can paint us a picture so fair
It takes a true mother, her love, Faith and Prayer.

Daughters,
ETHEL, MYRTLE AND JANESTA.

COLE—In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, THEODOCIA A., who passed away two years ago, December 5, 1952:

Two long, lonesome years have passed
Dear Mother and Grandmother,
Since the angels came for you
Yet through the mist of those lonely years,
Your loving face comes smiling through.
Each lonely hour that we have spent
Is woven through and through,
With golden threads of fond thoughts
Dear Mother and Grandmother,
Just for you.

Your Loving Children,
CLARETTA, THEODOCIA, BERNARD, GLADYS AND ERMA
GRANDCHILDREN AND GREAT-GRANDCHILDREN.

The rolling stream of life rolls on
But still the vacant chair,
Recalls the love, the smile and the voice
Of my darling mother, who once sat there.

That one so full of life and hope
Would breathe his last good-bye.
