Women lose out in work field because of inefficiency-Jones

Women are faring worse than men in the local employment field, chiefly because of lack of training, Alvin Jones of the Department of Employment Security said, this week.

One of the speakers at a jobs clinic held at the Pennsylvania Avenue Branch of the Pratt Libraries by the Maryland League of Women, Saturday, Mr. Jones told the group lack of efficiency is keeping many out of typist jobs and practically all out of the garment industry. In the stenography field, he said, there are plenty of jobs, but few who come into his office can pass the required tests.

Sales opportunities for men are on the upgrade, he said, because the buying power of the group is being realized. There are still few colored engineers, electricians, draftsmen, yet, but only because lack of opportunity for experience in the field, he said.

Other speakers on the panel were Benjamin Foreman of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare of the Social Security Board; and Dr. W. O. Bryson Jr., professor of economics of Morgan State College.

In contrast to the local picture, Dr. Bryson said that there is a slight upward trend of women in the labor field, nationally. Though there has been a loss of two million in employment since the end of the Korean War, the country still has a 25 percent increase in employment over 1940, he said.

The highest increase is in the West, Dr. Bryson said.

Mr. Foreman estimated that there are 24,000 persons in the Baltimore area eligible for social security who are not drawing benefits. These include widowers, widows and dependent children and parents.

He urged periodic checks on social security status.

Mrs. Vivian Alleyne, president of the League, presided at the clinic.

The clinic was arranged by the employment committee, of which Mrs. Mabel Waters is chairman.

YOU CAN'T SAY now that friends can't keep a secret.

Dr. Edward McDaniels had made plans for his birthday and everyone went along with him. But his wife, Bernice, had made other plans and much to his surprise they were for him. He had no idea of a party with all the trimmings.

Those gathered were:

Olga and Martin Rodney, Trudy and Jerry Lack, Jimmy and Albert LaForrest, Vashti and Bernard Christmas, Llwellyn and Orris Walker, Pally and Earl Anderson, Mildred and Mickey McDaniels;

Daisy and Raymond Mitchell, Janice and Hardin Tribble, Mildred and George Greene, Ohera and Norlington Mitchell, Elsea and Sterling Johnson, Mabel and Eugene Byrd, Vivian and Sidney Burnett;

ALPHA KAPPA ALPHA sorors, meeting at the YWCA, Saturday night, had a batch of things to preen over.

They had had a beautiful success with their United Nations bazaar participation (through an under-written project, had garnered enough shekels to handle their own budget) had garnered top artists for the series of concerts (Etta Moten and Lois Towles on Dec. 10; Duke Ellington on Jan 8;—Hindu Dancers Shivaram and Janki on Jan 12) will have Rivers Chambers for their May 19th dance; had their delightful "Sisterly Yours" parties all set for March and their Founder's. Day affair for February.

The chapter had four transfers: Marion Downs, Erma DeBeal, Sylvia Waters and Barbara Mallory and a charming guest, Edmonia Towns of Prairie View, Texas.

Soror Emma Bright presided.

THE BALTIMORE GUARDSMEN tee off with their annual Thanksgiving shenanigans, come next Friday and Saturday.

They'll start the ball rolling with their formal dance, Friday night at the New Albert from 11 p.m. to 3 a.m. Invitations call for a champagne sip commencing at the magic stroke of twelve.

On Saturday, the G-men will host members of affiliated chapters, their wives and sweethearts at a brunch at the Club Tijuana. The affair is set for 1 p.m. and slated to last until 6 p.m.

The guests will be wined and dined and exposed to modern sounds by a jazz group from up New York Way.

Saturday night will be the clinchey, when the Guardsmen come on with their closed party, which is considered one of the highlights of the social season. Party is scheduled from 11 p.m. to 4 a.m. at the New Albert.

For both affairs, Johnny Sparrow and his band will be handling the music chores. Sparrow, recording star who is very popular along the East Cost, has a swinging style that should make both affairs top drawer.

present the World's Greatest Disappearing Act

When it's a Lancaster Brand Ham, watch it disappear. Before you can say "come and get it" it's gone. Your family will love Lancaster Brand Ham once they taste it. That distinctive old-fashioned smoked ham flavor talks for itself about. Appetizingly good with that fork cutting tenderness. All Lancaster Brand Hams have their shank ends removed along with excess fat, so they're shorter, leaner with proportionately less waste.
