this precinct; Douglass, 4).

In Douglass' home precinct, the seventh of the 12th ward, where he polled only 5 votes: Cole received 291 votes; McKeldin, 356; Byrd, 43. Here again, Cole polled 65 votes less than McKeldin; 248 more than Byrd. (Meinicove received 62).

— o o o —

AND IN the 35th precinct, 15th ward, Pollack's residence: Meinicove polled 903 votes; McKeldin, 668, Byrd, 445; Meinicove received 296 votes more than McKeldin, 223 more than Byrd. (Cole polled 52; Douglass, 2).

The only precinct in the district where Cole polled more votes than either McKeldin or Byrd was in the ninth, 13th Ward, where he received 360 votes; McKeldin, 184 and Byrd, 34.

Here, he polled 256 more votes than McKeldin; 324 more than Byrd. (Meinicove got 45 votes; Douglass, 5).

LIT IS the contention of several politicians that these figures indicate:

1. In 25 of Cole's precincts, voters were cast primarily for McKeldin. In many areas, the comparison of the sum total of the senatorial votes with those thought she was referring to Harry Cole instead of myself."

He said that after talking with his niece he drank a coke and went to bed.

— o o o —

SADDENED BY Harry Cole's reported defeat, Mr. Cole said:

"I thought both of us had a chance, but he had a better working organization.

"I don't think he failed. I think the Democrats, by putting that extra candidate in, was what defeated him."

Mr. Cole overruled the contention of some people that his name and that of Harry Cole's were confusing to the voters.

"I can't say that r took votes from Harry Jr. by working together we accumulated votes together. Our names were on the same line but Harry's name came first.

"I may have gained some of his votes and he some of mine."

Because Mr. Cole was employed at the Post Office, he was not able to get into politics until after he retired Dec. 31, 1953. He worked there 30 years as clerk at night, keeping up his law practice during the day.

— o o o —

LAST JANUARY, he satisfied his long political ambition by joining the Theodore McKeldin Republican club "as a means of getting in on the ground floor."

"The political field was open and I was available," he said, explaining how he happened to toss his hat in the ring last June.

"They needed candidates so I filed for the primary. I went in with the purpose of winning since there had been so many failures of candidates who had run before."

In the primary, Mr. Cole had no opposition.

Though advised by politicians that he did not have a chance because "he wasn't well-known," Mr. Cole found this fact to be an asset in his campaign.

"By not being well-known, that meant I had a few friends to help me and no enemies to cross me up," he asserted.

FROM THE other side comes the theory that Douglass captured the 361 votes from voters who couldn't make up their minds between Cole and Melnicove and who wouldn't have voted for either one if Douglass' name hadn't appeared on the ticket.

Or, the 361 votes would have been split between Melnicove and Cole and wouldn't have affected the election results.

Then, too, this group contends that if all the McKeldin voters had also voted for Cole, he would have won in spite of Douglass.

— o o o —

ANOTHER QUESTION which is being asked is, "Was Harry Cole's name confused with Emory Cole's name?"

Looking at the physical setup on the voting machine, both names appeared on the top line, Harry's name being five places ahead of Emory's.

In none of the precincts did Emory poll more votes than Harry, though it is believed that each got some of the others votes.

The figures indicate that Emory polled his heaviest votes in Harry's precincts.

— o o o —

ACCORDING TO the general opinion of many, the apparent confusion was not great enough to affect the tabulation results. Others believe just the opposite.

Citing the senatorial candidates' strengths and weaknesses in the district, Melnicove polled his highest vote in the 13th ward with 6,395. Both Cole and Douglass received their highest in the 15th ward, with Cole polling 5,150 to Douglass' 139.

The three candidates polled their lowest vote in the 17th ward, but it must be remembered that this is the smallest ward in the district, having only seven precincts.

Melnicove polled 309; Douglass, 29 and Cole, 1,807.

— o o o —

THE FIRST question asked is, "What harm did Douglass' 361 votes do to Cole?"

There are two schools of thought on this point.

On is that the scattered votes which Douglass polled would have gone to Cole, giving him a decided majority of 323 votes over Meinicove.

The figures show that over 200 of Douglass' votes were polled in Cole's precincts.

— o o o —

SADDENED BY the other side comes the theory that if all the McKeldin voters had also voted for Cole, he would have won in spite of Douglass.

—Election roundup

C. Diggs Sr. ousted a sitting Democrat to compete in the election.

Powell, Dems sweep New York

NEW YORK — With Congressman Adam Powell leading the way with a margin of 5 to 1, colored Democrats made a clean sweep of Harlem, the Bronx and Brooklyn Tuesday winning every single race in which they met Republican opposition.

The Democratic sweep gave New York its first colored assemblywoman as former Cotton Club dancer, Mrs. Jessie Buchanan, defeated Mrs. Lucille Pinkett in the 12th assembly district, with little opposition.

J. C. Thomas, Democrat, was elected assemblyman from the 11th assembly district; Kenneth Phipps, Democrat, won in the 14th assembly district; Municipal Judge Thomas Dickens was elected city court judge in a borough-wide election in Manhattan, and James Watson was elected state senator, replacing Julius J. Archibald.

IN BROOKLYN Assemblyman Bertram Baker was re-elected with little opposition and in the Bronx Walter Gladwin was elected to the assembly by the Democratic sweep.

Congressman Powell who told newsmen he expected to win by a 5 to 1 margin appeared to have called his shot. He told the AFRO from the home of his mother on Convent Avenue:

"I'm very happy that the people have again given me their support. I intend to introduce a bill in congress to raise the minimum wage scale to a dollar and a quarter an hour; I will press for an expansion of the civil rights program, and do all I can for our foreign policy program."

At 11 p.m. when Mr. Powell talked with the AFRO he said he had been assured of winning since 7 p.m. His GOP opponent, Harold Burton, had not yet sent him a telegram conceding victory at 11 o'clock.

THERE WAS tumult and joy in the lower 12th assembly district headquarters at 145½ St. and Seventh Ave. where Mrs. Buchanan sat with others and heard news of her victory.

"I'm just simply overwhelmed," Mrs. Buchanan said. "What else can I say. I will represent all the people. I will do all I can about this juvenile delinquency problem. I hope that in going to Albany I can inspire more women to get into government and help manage governmental affairs as they manage their homes."

Dawson elected seventh time

CHICAGO — William L. Dawson, incumbent Democrat defeated Genoa Washington, his Republican opponent for Congress in the Illinois election here Tuesday. Washington also is colored.

This will mark Congressman Dawson's seventh term in Congress. He was first elected in 1942 The election rundown in Chicago and the State of Illinois otherwise included the following:

Edward Michael Sneed was returned to the county board (Cook County) as a commissioner.

Seven colored legislators will sit in the Illinois Legislature, six representatives are Ernest A. Greene and William H. Robinson, Republicans; Cornealius A. Davis, James Y. Carter, Charles M. Skyles and Kenneth E. Wilson, Democrats.

Fred Smith, a former representative, will be the lone colored man in the state senate. All are from Chicago.

George Barnes, Republican aspirant for judge of Municipal Court, was defeated but led the Republican judicial ticket with 106,000 votes.

Judge Fred (Duke) Slater retained his post on the Municipal Court bench in the Democratic sweep. Slater is a former All-American football star from Iowa University.

Fred Martin of Hot Springs, Ark., was elected an alderman.

Freeholder named in New Jersey

NEWARK — The Rev. Raphus P. Means, pastor of Anyssinia Baptist Church, a Democrat, became the first member of his race to be elected freeholder in rock-ribbed Republican Essex County.

PHILADELPHIA — Election of a chicken farmer, Democrat George M. Leader, Tuesday, was believed by observers to assure passage of state FEPC legislation.

Leader made FEPC one of the major planks in his platform, while his Republican opponent, Lloyd H. Wood, opposed it.

Beverly Carter, Republican, lost his bid for Congress in the 4th District to incumbent Earl Chudoff, 59,905 to 31,482.

Five colored candidates were elected to State Legislature. They were: Granville E. Jones, Samuel Floyd, Thompson Pettigrew, Susie Monroe and Sarah A. Anderson.

Ga. okays private school scheme

ATLANTA—Two southern states voted Tuesday to keep colored children out of white schools and a third to curb voting of this minority group.

Georgians approved a constitutional amendment to abolish the public school system rather than to end segregation.

Louisiana voters, on the other hand, accepted a proposed constitutional amendment which would continue public school segregation under the state's "police powers."

Most legal experts believe the Supreme Court would knock out the scheme the first time it is tested.

Miss. threatens franchise

Mississippians okayed about 19 to 1 a constitutional amendment setting up new voter qualifications to curb voting of colored citizens.

The Mississippi State Conference of NAACP Branches is meeting in Jackson, Saturday and Sunday, and with the aid of Freedom Fighting legal advisors from New York City will map out a plan to move to have the U.S. Supreme Court declare the amendment unconstitutional.

Courier paid $11,837 for Republican ads

WASHINGTON, (NNPA) — With party control of the next Congress at stake, the Republican National Committee in September and October spent, in an effort to influence colored voters, the largest amount it has ever expended in a year in which there was no Presidential election.

Reports of the Republican National Committee covering the the periods from Sept. 1 through Oct. 28, filed with the Clerk of the House of Representatives, showed an expenditure of $11,837.8 for reprints of the magazine section of a weekly newspaper playing up the actions of the Eisenhower Administration on the civil rights front and in making appointments of colored persons to government positions.

A contribution of $100 was reported from Joel D. Blackwell, an assistant United States Attorney in the District of Columbia. Also reported was a contribution of $25 from Conrad A. Johnson, 2313 Seventh Ave., New York City.

AMONG THE disbursements listed were the following:

Sept. 3—Val J. Washington, assistant to the chairman of the Republican National Committee, advance of expenses, $1,000; Ruther C. Mueller, women's division, advance expenses, $75; Joseph H. Rainey, who ran for Congress from the fourth Pennsylvania district on the Progressive party ticket of Henry A. ## McKeldin wins in D.C. suburbs

While voteless Washingtonians were staging a parade down Pennsylvania Ave. to demonstrate their voteless plight, residents in nearby Maryland braved a chilly rainy day to tramp to the polling places.

In Prince George County, voters favored Gov. Theodore McKeldin over H. C. (Curly) Byrd, while supporting the Democratic candidate for Congress, Richard Lankford over Frank Small Jr.

In Montgomery County, voters turned out in record - breaking proportions to support Governor McKeldin over Byrd and split their votes in the congressional race giving Rep. DeWitt S. Hyde (R.) a slight edge over Edward J. Ryan (D).

— o o o —

IN CHAPEL Oaks, Md., where there are 2,500 registered voters, the following tabulation was reported from two precincts:

18th District, 3rd precinct—McKeldin, 312, Byrd, 148;

18th District, 5th precinct, McKeldin, 188, Byrd, 281.

Democratic leader Charles Jackson in the Chapel Oaks area attributed the failure of Byrd to carry the area, while the other Democrats swept the election to Byrd's publicized attitude in the school desegregation issue.

Out in Montgomery County, Romeo Horad Sr., a Republican leader, said that colored voters turned out to support Governor McKeldin in large numbers as a protest against Byrd.

He felt that Representative Hyde's re-election was helped by this support of Governor McKeldin.

Friedel wins

In the 7th Congressional District, Samuel N. Friedel (D), the incumbent won re-election over his Republican opponent, Edward C. Dukehart by a vote of 29,292 to 40,981.

Sheriff reelected

that the child might live longer. "You can't be sure in cases of this type," the specialists said.

PERHAPS they were right. Today, Mrs. King reports that Susan is under the care of her private physician and is "doing nicely." She is able to walk unaided. A year ago, she held on to things and had to limp. And last year, she couldn't sit up to the table without help. Today, she can do it alone.

She is also able to ride a bicycle, skate and play in the yard with her brothers, James, 8; and William, 2.

She weighs 33 pounds. A year ago, she only weighed 29 pounds. Her hair had been clipped for the rare brain operation last year. Today, her hair is back and she appears to be a happy child.

She is also able to attend Sunday School at St. Katherine PE Church.

— o o o —

FOR HER birthday on Thursday, Susan received a dozen cards from well-wishers who remembered her plight a year ago. there were also a table and chair set, money and toy dishes from relatives.

Her small cousins, Edgar and Gregory Waddell joined with her brothers in wishing her a happy birthday.

The year has also been kind to the King family. When Susan's condition first became known, the father, William King, was out of work. He is a seaman and was unable to get short trips to keep him near home.

Today, Mr. King is aboard a merchant ship in South America, and is expected home by Christmas.

"We are so happy Susan is coming along." Mrs. King told the AFRO. "She has not had any hospital care for a year. She is under the care of her private doctor, and he has been more than a doctor to her.

"Susan can thank all the wonderful people who were so kind to her after reading about her in the AFRO. Please thank them for their help and gifts.

"Her recovery has helped me to know that God is great and God is good."

Herb Shriner says 'thanks'

Terms AFRO's story 'fair'

Herb Shriner, the celebrated Hoosier wit who emcees a television show, "Two tor the Money," told the AFRO this week he appreciated the objective reporting concerning the recent oral fluff on his program.

Shriner, officials of CBS-TV and the P. Lorillard Co., had been asked for statements after AFRO readers complained that his pronounciation of the word neighbors on his Oct. 9th show sounded like a racial epithet.

— o o o —

IN A LETTER to the AFRO dated Nov. 1, Mr. Shriner said: "It is heartening to find understanding where there can be so much misunderstanding, often without reason.

"I think the AFRO's coverage was most fair and served every-one's best interests decently and honestly. My very warmest thanks."

What makes a Lucky taste better?
"IT'S TOASTED"
to taste better!
"I've been smoking Luckies now for eighteen years," says G. James Fleming. "They taste just right to me—much better than the others." Luckies taste better, first of all, because they're made of fine tobacco. Then, that tobacco is toasted to taste better. "It's Toasted"—the famous Lucky Strike process—brings Luckies' fine tobacco to its peak of flavor . . . tones up this light, mild, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better—cleaner, fresher, smoother. That's our story, pure and simple: a Lucky tastes better because it's the cigarette of fine tobacco . . . and "It's Toasted" to taste better. So, for greater smoking enjoyment, Be Happy—Go Lucky.
