WITH BIG BROTHERS —Nwabeze Agbim, Nigerian graduate student in social work, at Howard University, is doing field work in Baltimore with the Big Brother Association. Mr. Agbim has been in this country five years and plans to return to Nigeria in 1957 where he hopes to do social work with the government agency there. He also plans to organize a Big Brother movement in Nigeria for maladjusted children.

AKA backs U.N. booth

Among the colorful exhibits at last week's United Nations Exposition was the Liberian booth sponsored by the Epsilon Omega Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority.

In the background of the booth was a huge mural depicting an army of men surging from a modern city, to represent a nation that is moving ahead. The mural was the work of Mrs. Mary Adams, art specialist in the school system, and Cornelius E. Griffin, art teacher at Dunbar High School.

An authentic air was given to the booth by the presence of four girls, dressed in authentic Liberian costumes, letn by Liberian costumes, loaned by Mrs. Tasia Maussaqoi, a native Liberian. The girls were: Misses Mary McCluskey, Gertrude Cornish, Patsie Lyle and Beverly Johnson.

—o O o—

AMONG THE items featured in the booth were a leopard skin, two hand-carved ebony elephants, two cow horns, a pair of slippers, two hand carved wooden figures, a hand made scarf and basket, a cigarette jar decorated with animal skin, and Liberian rubber and rice.

The booth was one of the 60 that made up the exposition and was the only one sponsored by a colored organization.

The Liberian booth was sponsored by the sorority, with the inter-cultural and civic contact committees in charge of the arrangements.

Sorors Vivian Cook, chairman of the intercultural committee and Sarah Raynes, co-chairman along with Elizabeth Carr, chairman of the civic contact committee and Ruby Taylor, co-chairman, were the leaders.

Sixth grader wins contest

A sixth-grade pupil at the Coppin Elementary School No. 132, received $5 on Wednesday afternoon, as the latest winner in the AFRO's Lucky Picture Contest.

She is Allen Strothers, 11, of 1504 Mountmor Court, and her photograph was encircled in a picture of the Gilmor Homes Choir that appeared in Tuesday's AFRO.

In this edition of the AFRO there is another picture in which one person has been encircled. The person in the circle may receive $5 without any strings, by coming to the AFRO office before noon on Tuesday.

—o O o—

THE CONTEST is that simple. If you are the person in the circle, come to the AFRO office for your $5.

Ellen received her money late Wednesday afternoon and full of excitement at her luck she said:

"I will put this money in the school bank until I need it to buy something with."

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hayward Strothers. She has one brother, Charles, and two sisters, Evelyn and Elva.

—o O o—

ELLEN HAS been a member of the Gilmor Choir for a year. In addition to being a singer, she also plays the piano.

It was early Tuesday afternoon when one of the clerks in the office of the Gilmor Housing Project, looked through Tuesday's AFRO and saw Ellen's picture with the magic circle.

She sent the news to Ellen's mother, Mrs. Ella Strothers, who quickly purchased a paper to confirm the report to Ellen's delight.

Teacher demonstrates sculpture technique

One of the highlights of the recent Maryland State Teacher's Convention was the demonstration of paper sculpture techniques given by Mrs. Maxine Lewis, a teacher at the Robert B. Elliott School No. 104, at Clifton Park Junior High School.

Four teachers, under the careful direction of Mrs. Lewis, created paper masks, free designs, and crepe paper figurines.

Mrs. Lewis was personally greeted by the speaker of the day, Arthur R. Young, who was her former teacher and advisor at Columbia University.

—o O o—

ON TUESDAY, Oct. 19, the PTA School No. 104 PTA met at Ames Church.

With Mrs. Mary Murray officiating, the members elected Mary Jewett, president; Mrs. Lydia Wagner, vice president; Miss Clyde Ferrell, secretary; Mrs. Dorothy Thornton, treasurer.

A solo was given by Mrs. Catherine Winslow before the presentation of guest speakers, Mrs. Marion G. Johnson, area director, Department of Education, and Mrs. Lilly W. Stevenson, supervisor of elementary education.

Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Stevenson presented factors contributing toward world conditions today. Some were high cost of living and the desire for material gain, a breakdown in the emotional life of children because of absence of parents from home, the relization of the common man that he has rights and privileges that must be recognized, and the keen competition caused by living in an era of specialization where each individual must measure up to higher standards.

Mrs. Gladys H. Derry, principal, expressed sincere appreciation and gratitute to the speakers for their inspirational and educational messages and to the PTA members for their over-whelming enthusiasm demonstrated by their excellent attendance.

Churches hail mixed schools

Court ruling shows faith

WASHINGTON, D.C. — "The churches will not surrender — we dare not compromise upon this issue."

This declaration was made by Methodist Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of the Washington Area, recently, at Metropolitan Methodist Church, here, when American University entertained church districts for the first annual "American University Day."

Referring directly to disturbances in the schools of Milford, Del., Baltimore and Washington, all within his own episcopal area, the bishop said:

—o O o—

"THOSE WHO advocate violation of the laws of our land contribute to anarchy. The Supreme Court decision is an example of Americanism at its best, and is a reflection of the essential principles of our Christian Faith."

Devotional services were led by the Rev. Daniel L. Ridout, administrative secretary of the Baltimore Area of The Methodist Church.

He reviewed the school situation in the three cities and praised church leaders for their courageous stand on the issue.

"It looks as though many of us have 'come to the kingdom for such a time as this,' he said. "Whatever the cost, we must be bold to affirm anew the universal fact of the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man."

Guild gives Dunbar play

By MABEL HARDY

The Golden Masque Guild presented a play at the senior assembly of Dunbar High School entitled, "Spooky Spectacle." New members are:

Pamela Legette, Arabelle Bowman, Emily Reese Ruth White, Shirley Allsop, William DeShazo, Velma Golden, Ronald Grove, Sonia Stewart, Helen Imes, William Adams, Ruth Harrison, James Spriggs.

Hilda Lancaster, Winfield Freeman, Patsie Lyle, Anita Clark, Ruth Baxter, Raplh William, Patricia Callicut, William Foster, Clifton McDonald, Clarence Campbell, and Norma Wade.

Twelfth graders had the opportunity to see and hear Mrs. Prio Palmer, of England. The "Poets" won the second game of season by beating Armstrong 1-0. Their record now stands at two wins, one tie, and no losses.

Citizen's Day was celebrated at Dunbar with the Girls' Council and Student Council acting as official hosts.

3 named to positions at Morgan

The appointment of Mrs. Adah K. Jenkins as parttime teacher of music was among three new faculty positions approved by the Morgan College Board of trustees on Thursday.

Mrs. Jenkins, AFRO music critic, has studied at the University of Pennsylvania, NYU, Pennsylvania State University and the Peabody Conservatory of Music.

In the department of economics, Bernard B. Lobe was appointed parttime teacher to handle one three-hour course in accounting. He received his B.S. degree from the School of Commerce at NYU.

—o O o—

MRS. BERYL W. Williams was appointed instructor in the departments of mathematics and English, a position made necessary by the increase in enrollment.

A parttime instructor at Morgan for several years, Mrs. Williams earned her A.B. and M.A. degrees from the University of Maine.

Sabbatical leave for the period September 1955 to August 1956, was granted to Dr. Luna I. Mishoe, associate professor in physics.

Dr. Mishoe has received an invitation from Prof. E. C. Titchmarsh of the University of Oxford to spend the next school year there.

—o O o—

PROMOTION—La Vaughn Carraway from handyman to steam fireman; RESIGNATION—Collin A. Butler as shift engineer; DISCONTINUANCE—James C. Rich as watchman.

Wreath for Abe

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (NNPA)—On his Mid-west swing, President William V. S. Tubman of Liberia Sunday laid a wreath on the tomb of Abraham Lincoln, making a side trip from Chicago here to pay his respects to the memory of the Civil War President.

Accompanied by Governor William Stratton, President Tubman also visited the white cottage where Lincoln lived as a Springfield lawyer.

Words To Live By

By REV. R. T. NEWBOLD
Pastor, Grace Presbyteria Church, Baltimore

All of us have been long since carrying in our minds the list of things we wish to achieve. Riches, formal educational training and popularity form a part of our goals.

The basic achievement, however, is frequently ignored. And yet, it is a salient truth that: One of man's greatest possessions is the ability to get along with people.

Without this the other things we own will fail to bring a maximum amount of happiness and peace of mind will elude us.

—o O o—

IF THERE is any one need which our transportation and communication systems make clear, it is the need for acquiring the knowledge of how to treat people.

For one of the great tragedies of our age is that we spend so much time learning how to get along with machines and make so little effort to get along with men.

The net results of this are tensions, disagreements, disunity, fights, divorces, murders and wars.

Since then the toll for failing to learn to get along with people is so great it is well to consider the following suggestions on how to deal with others.

—o O o—

1. DEAL WITH people as individuals rather than representatives of the worse elements of racial groups.

The emerging new social order will require you to have fellowship with people of various races and national origins.

And such fellowship will only be experienced by those who refuse to judge the many by the one, and who will emancipate themselves from stereotypes.

So then the quicker we look beyond the labels and try to see that which is good in the individual, the better we begin to get along with those whose color, national orgin, or accent of speech differ from ours.

—o O o—

2. GIVE THE other fellow the benefit of the doubt.

This simply means we should not be quick to prejudge others. Our conversations concerning them and actions toward them should be according to facts and faith, not mere gossip and suspicions; according to truth and not hearsay.

In dealing with people we should be quick to sympathize and show compassion, while slow to judge and reveal vindictiveness.

—o O o—

3. TREAT GROWN-ups as they are—adults and not children. Men and women resent commands; they will frequently accept suggestions.

They do not appreciate being planned for, they want to be in on the planning. They want to be treated with respect, and therefore rebel against the slightest evidence of disrespect.

They want to retain their own distinct personality rather than be fashioned after the personality of someone else.

They wish to be treated as equals to other men and women rather than subservients to them.

—o O o—

4. TREAT PEOPLE as we would have them treat us. Yes! this is the "Golden Rule." We subscribe to it in words. But do we practice it?

These four suggestions provide a basic check-list by which you can examine your relationships with people.

Go back and read them carefully, for in them you may discover the reason why you are not getting along with others as well as you should.

Money is available for replacing lost chickens or livestock, general facilities wrecked by the storm, tobocco and fruit facilities. The farm agency makes loans avialable for three percent interest and gives farmers 10 years to pay.

THE 7B class recently visited the Walters Art Gallery, accompanied by one of the English teachers, Miss Margaret Spriggs. The trip was taken in connection with their current study of "Myths and Mythology."

The first PTA meeting of the school was held on Thursday, under the direction of Mr. Turner.

On Friday, Oct. 22, Miss Vivian Barrington of the same school, conducted a field trip to the Fifth Regiment Armory to observe the United Nations Exhibition, in coordination with a unit which the classes were studying.

School integration education program organized by local

Members of American Sugar Refinery Local No. 392, CIO, have organized a series of meetings to help inform their membership about school integration.

Mrs. Ruth Shields, chairman of the local's grievance committee, is working with other union officials so that membership of both races can learn how they can help avoid friction in the new program.

She said the local is anxious to meet with other civic groups in carrying on an education program among its members. A meeting will be held Monday, 8:30 p.m. at Union Hall, 1425 Woodhall St.

Prowler sets fire at school

The Phyllis Wheatley School No. 101 at Fremont Ave. and Waesche St., was broken into early Wednesday morning by a prowler or prowlers who are believed to have started a small fire in the building.

The fire was discovered at 3 a.m. and was confined to a desk and the floor around it in one of the classrooms. Police said that entrance had been gained through a broken window in the rear of the building. The window measured 18 by 12 inches.

Every teacher's desk in the school had been searched but police said there was no evidence that anything had been taken.

City College classes in business

The Baltimore City College Evening High School is offering, in addition to the regular commerical and academic curricula, a strong course in business English on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The instructor, Richard Tyler, is giving to his students the fundamentals of business letter writing, credit procedures, techniques and skills used in handling recalcitrant customers through mail, and the basic rules of grammar.

Pupils get big kick out of missing school bell

Who's got the ding dong?

That was the question that pupils at School No. 27, Fayette and Chester Sts., jokingly asked themselves Friday when they arrived for classes and found their school bell missing.

Their questions were answered Monday when Northeastern District police arrested Oscar K. Smith, 27, of the 2200 block E. Eager St., for robbery.

In addition to taking the bell valued at $10, Mr. Smith was charged with taking a record player, four pairs of scissors, and five keys.

He did not testify at a hearing before Magistrate Samuel Gaboff who set bail at $1,000.

Morgan opens Calloway Hall

1,000 attend dedication

A modern science hall constructed at a cost of $983,000 was dedicated to the memory of Milton L. Calloway, Wednesday at Morgan State College.

Over 1,000 persons, including Governor McKeldin, assembled in the auditorium of the new building to hear the dedication address delivered by Dr. Detlov W. Bronk, president, National Academy of Science.

Tribute to the late Morgan science instructor was paid by Dr. James D. Carr, class of 1929 who described Mr. Calloway as "an inspiring and dedicated teacher."

—o O o—

DR. BRONK TOLD the audience that the school was dedicating a laboratory that is to serve as a house for testing knowledge.

"So long as we have colleges such as yours and a will to grow I have no fear for the future of our civilization," he stated.

Governor McKeldin said that he was happy to have had a part in the building program at Morgan.

The presentation of the building was made by Nathan L. Smith, director, Department of Public Improvements, and was accepted by Dr. Carl Murphy, chairman, Board of Trustees.

—o O o—

A TALK ON the occupants' trust was given by Dr. George H. Spaulding, head of the chemistry department at Morgan, and Miss Patricia Smith, student, and president of the Beta Kappa Chi Honor Society.

Dr. Spaulding said: "Our task has just begun. A time is to come," he said, "when the students who labor here will dedicate themselves to finding new values within the old system of values."

A description of the structure was given by Howard G. Hall of the architectural firm of Hall, Borden and Donaldson.

—o O o—

CONSTRUCTION WORK on Calloway Hall was completed in two years.

In addition to classrooms, it contains research laboratories, a lecture room with seating facilities for 300, offices, and two organic chemistry rooms.

Also a general chemistry room, a physics laboratory, physics shop, an apartment for the caretaker, general chemistry room, laboratory for study of radioactive material, and a lecture room.

The invocation was delivered by the Rev. Howard L. Cornish, director, Morgan Christian Center and the benediction was given by the Rev. Leonard C. Anderson, dean of men.

Music was rendered by the Morgan State Octet.

"HUMAN DESIRE," starring Glenn Ford and Gloria Grahame, above, and Broderick Crawford, is now at the Royal Theatre. Second attraction, "Drums of Tahiti," is in Technicolor and stars Dennis O'Keefe and Patricia Medina.

'First Run' Films of The Week in Review

NEW GABLE PIX AT HARLEM NOW

Clark Gable, Lana Turner, Victor Mature and Louis Calhern are the stars of "Betrayed," M-G-M drama in color now playing at the Harlem Theatre.

The picture unfolds a dynamic story of romance, adventure and espionage with the Dutch Resistance during World War II.

Not only is the theme of "Betrayed" one that has never been used previously in films, but the picture is the first to have been filmed almost in its entirety in Holland, with its unusual locations shifting from the capital city of Amsterdam to the Zuyder Zee.

—o O o—

CLARK GABLE, whose last picture was the box-office smash, "Mogambo," has another meaty adventure role in "Betrayed," this time as a Dutch Intelligence officer who escapes from the Nazis and is assigned the espionage training of a Dutch girl whom he comes both to love and to suspect of treachery.

Lana Turner plays the girl, a characterization reported to be even more dramatically effective than her recent stand-out roles in "Flame and the Flesh" and "The Bad and the Beautiful."

MET FEATURES "SUSAN SLEPT HERE"

Have you heard about Susan and what happened to her when she spent Christmas in the bachelor apartment of a Hollywood screen writer?

What happened to her proved to be pretty wonderful and you can find out all about it if you'll visit the Met Theater, where "Susan Slept Here" is proving to be one of the season's brightest attractions.

In this provocative RKO Radio Technicolor production, Susan is a girl about 18 who sleeps in the man-about-town's apartment so that she won't have to spend Christmas in jail on a delinquency charge.

—o O o—

THE WRITER offers her this holiday haven because he feels sorry for and because he thinks she can give him ideas for a movie he is concocting.

Of course, people just don't understand and that includes the writer's svelte society fiancee.

There are plenty of complications and a countless number of lusty laughs before matters are straightened out and Christmas winds up as a happy one for all concerned.

If you think the idea sounds intriguing, you should see the sparkling way it is developed by Dick Powell, as the writer, Debbie Reynolds, as the delightful delinquent, and Anne Francis, as the society beauty.

'WOMAN'S WORLD' REGENT FLICKER

The standard seven-year contract at a major studio is a boon to any star who would free-lance later, according to Van Heflin, who recently concluded such a hitch at the MGM studio.

Van celebrates his new status in Hollywood with one of the seven star roles in "Woman's World," Twentieth Century-Fox's Cinema-Scope production at the Regent Theatre.

Heflin admits that during the seven years at MGM he beefed plenty as most top contract names are apt to do.

"But," he added, "the investment by a major studio in a build up, the acting and business experience, and the enforced counseling by a variety of executives all add up to plus values that a star would have a hard time getting on his own."

'THE HUMAN JUNGLE' AT THE NEW ALBERT

Jan Sterling makes her debut as a singer, and also as a strip tease dancer, in Allied Artists' "The Human Jungle," the sensational police drama co-starring Gary Merrill, in its second big week at the New Albert Theatre.

She sings "It Ain't Gonna Be You," written by Max Rich, as she does her dance act on a runway in an underworld cafe for one of the key scenes of the film.

Merrill's role is that of a captain of detectives, assigned to clean up a precinct in which crime is rampant.

IN DOING SO, he is framed by a criminal syndicate, but manages to vindicate himself only after a bitter fight.

The Hayes Goetz production was filed with the full cooperation of the Los Angeles police department, many facilities of which were used as authentic backgrounds.

Final chase scenes, at night, were filmed in one of the largest breweries of the west.

Joe Loco, Machito at Coliseum Mon.

Every once in a while a musical rhythm creates a new dance craze which rocks the country from coast to coast.

The "Mambo U.S.A." show which comes to the Coliseum on Monday, Nov. 1, for one performance at 8:30 p.m., is dedicated to the tempos that have made the Mambo and the Rhumba the most popular dances of the fifties.

In keeping with this thought, "Mambo U.S.A." has gathered together the outstanding Latin-American stars of music, song and dance and have assembled them in a neatly packaged show.

HEADING THE BILL are Joe Loco and his quintet, Machito and his orchestra, Carlos Ramiriz, and the Facundo Rivero quintet.

Authentic Latin dances will be demonstrated by the Arthur Murray Dancers plus the world's finest mambo-rumba dance teams.

All this, plus the versatile comedy of Tun Tun which has gained him the title of the "Prince of Mirth."
