Chef-Boy-Ar-Dee Pizza Pie

Long a food favorite of Italian cooks and housewives, pizza pie can now be made to perfection in any American home kitchen with the new Chef Boy-ar-dee mix. This latest addition to the Chef family is the only pizza pie mix in which the cheese is separately packaged, to sprinkle over the sauce before baking the pie. Adding the cheese to the sauce in this way gives the true classical character of a real pizza pie to this new mix. Another exclusive feature is that shortening is combined with the flour, to give just the right chewy, but tender, texture to the crust.

Besides the cheese and the flour-shortening combination, the pizza pie package contains dry yeast for leavening and a generous eight-ounce can of the specially blended Chef pizza sauce. The 15½-ounce package of mix is enough for five generous servings, whether you bake it in two nine-ounce pie pans or a big 11 by 14 inch rectangle.

Directions for making are given on the package. Interesting variations may be made by adding mushrooms, anchovies, sliced sausage or uncooked hamburger before baking.

Perhaps the best way to serve pizza pie is right out of the pan it's baked in. But if you want to pretty it up slip the pie to your best Italian plates. A couple of pie or cake servers or turners will do the job without breaking the pizza.

Tuna makes tasty dishes

Simple ingredients served in a different way can make an every day meal into an extra special one.

Inexpensive canned tuna can be prepared in many delicious ways. The fish lends flavor to other foods so that even a small can will yield a main dish for an entire family.

—o O o—

SOME PEOPLE open a can, heat its contents and put it on the table. Others take that same can, add a touch of magic and come up with a heavenly dish that tastes like their very own secret formula. Thats just what happens when you follow the many ways to dress up a can of tuna fish.

A delicious well-seasoned sauce, vegetables or hard-cooked eggs are part of the secret. Many other ingredients too numerous to mention are the rest of the secret. The combination? You have a dish fit for a king—or your husband.

Turkey Puff

Your family will cheer leftover turkey when you serve it to them in tempting Turkey Puff.

Here's a good way to use bits of turkey if you are lucky enough to have some of the holiday bird left after the big feast day. Turkey Puff combines the leftovers in a delicious blend of tender spaghetti, crunchy bread crumbs, seasoning and fluffy beaten eggs.

When it's baked, Turkey Puff has a crispy crust to contrast with its tender interior. Serve it hot with creamed vegetable or mushroom sauce. A tangy relish of fresh apple slices topped with cranberry sauce stars will be a most welcome addition to the menu.

As pretty as it is tasty, Turkey Puff will be the main attraction of your next club luncheon. It is a meal-in-one when complemented with a crisp salad, tender, flaky, hot biscuits with butter or margarine and steaming cups of coffee.

Turkey Puff will prove to you how versatile macaroni products are. They eke out all kinds of leftovers and help stretch more expensive foods. Though macaroni products provide valuable amounts of plant protein and food energy, they are one of the least expensive foods on the market.

If you'd like a distinct texture contrast for Turkey Puff, try sprinkling French fried noodles over the sauce. You can purchase French fried noodles or make them yourself. Here's how. Place uncooked noodles in a flat-bottomed wire basket or strainer and fry in deep hot fat (365°F.) until golden brown. Drain. Sprinkle lightly with salt.

- 4 ounces spaghetti, broken
- 2 cups hot milk
- 1 cup soft bread crumbs
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- 3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
- 2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
- 2 egg whites, stiffly beaten
- 1 cup turkey or flaked tuna

Cook spaghetti in boiling salted water until tender (about 7 minutes). Drain and rinse. While spaghetti is cooking pour milk over bread crumbs. Let stand 10 minutes. Add salt, pepper, butter or margarine and egg yolks. Fold in egg whites. Carefully fold in cooked spaghetti and turkey and pour into greased 8-inch square pan. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 50 to 60 minutes. Serve hot with creamed vegetable sauce or mushroom sauce.

Makes 4 servings.

Beef and potato meals

Meat has been the backbone of man's diet from the beginning of time. At the beginning of this century a family and guest in a Washington mansion used such meals as Porterhouse steak and mashed potatoes with "trimmin's."

There are numerous ways of cooking meats to preserve quality—with dry heat and with moist heat. Here is a combination from the Marie Gifford Kitchen that gets a special note — Beef And potatoes! With double enthusiasm there's rich brown gravy, too.

Tender flavorful beef with well-seasoned potatoes gives you best eating ever. Even weight-watchers should enjoy meat and potato meals for it offers nutritive values far more valuable than mere calories. Accent the meat using small servings of potatoes and omitting the gravy. Choose this menu for a change and you will be amazed at the raves from the family:

Individual Pot Roast

- Brown gravy
- Whipped potatoes
- Buttered broccoli
- Celery curls
- Olives
- Fruit cup
- Cookies
- Coffee
- Milk

Here's the recipe for Individual Pot Roast:

- 2 lbs. boneless beef
- 1/8 tsp. pepper
- 1 Bay leaf crumpled
- 1 tbsp. lard
- ¼ cup water or boullion
- ¼ cup flour
- 1½ tsps. salt
- ½ tsp. Oregano
- ½ cup sliced onion.

Cut meat into six or eight individual servings and coat with mixture of flour, salt and pepper. Brown in lard in heavy pot roast kettle, turning pieces of meat to brown well on all sides. Add remaining ingredients, cover, simmer for 1½ to 2 hours until meat is tender. Remove meat and make gravy. Skim off any excess fat. For each cup of liquid, add 2 tbsps flour mixed with ¼ cup cold water. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Arrange meat in "nests" of Whipped Potatoes on large chop plate or platter, serving gravy separately. Makes six to eight servings.

Odd Fellows hold fall conference

The District Grand Lodge No. 14 Odd Fellows, and the District Grand Household No. 27, held their annual fall group meeting Sunday at Asbury Methodist Church, in Nanticoke, Md.

Highlighting the conference was the unveiling of a monument in memory of the late Past District Grand Master W. W. Conway.

Participating in the ceremony were E. J. Williams, Princess Anne; Jessie L. Nichols, Frank Butler, Annapolis; Leslie Gaines, William Biddell, district grand master, William Fletcher and cornelius Smith, both past district grand masters, and J. A. McDowell, principal Worcester High School.

Music was furnished by Mesdames Elsie Biddell and Bertha Wright, both soloists.

Apples in spotlight for holiday weekend

Two outstanding events this week. Not only is this National Apple Week but the "spooks" are preparing for the all important fun night—Haloween.

Since the U.S. apple crop is slightly over last year's, now estimated at 103 million bushels, there are plenty of apples for the time-honored holiday games, says Gwendolyne Clyatt, food economist, University of Maryland Extention Service.

Apples hanging from a string for a "no hands" eating competition, or in a tub of water for ducking, will be familiar contests used for Halloween.

—o O o—

THE APPEALING flavor and crunchiness of the apple, the most ancient of all fruits, along with the many tempting ways and ease with which it can be served, should be conductive to frequent use on menus.

Then, too, apples are a very wholesome fruit. They are a source of several of the protective vitamins and essential minerals. To get the most food value from an apple, it should be eaten raw with skin on, for in that way we keep vitamin "C" value intact. That goes for apples eaten out of hand or served raw in salads or in a fruit cup.

Knowing the different varities of apples and best use for each variety is essential for wise selection. The Delicious is the most popular from standpoint of demand. It is excellent for eating out of hand or for use in salads. The Stayman is probably the finest all-purpose apple. It is a favorite of many for eating fresh as well as for cooking.

The Golden Delicious is fittingly named, it is both golden and delicious, with qualities which make it desirable for both eating and cooking purposes. The Rome Beauty is perhaps the best for baking but is fine for all methods of cooking.

APPLES CAN BE a boon to menu planning since they are one of our most versatile foods. They can be served in the form of applesauce or added to pancake or muffin batter to give added zest to any breakfast. For lunch, they will go nicely in a fruit salad or cup, and, for a hearty dish, fried apples with bacon, ham or sausage, make a good combination. Apples can be treated as a part of the vegetable course for the main meal. They can be scalloped, for example, with sweet potatoes or cabbage. For dessert, there is a choice of many apple dishes, such as dumplings, fritters, upside-down cake, sherbets, brown Betty, and the ever-popular apple pie.

UNITY VOCATIONAL — The club met Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Branch, 604 N. Fulton Ave. Mrs. Henrietta J. Locks is president; Mrs. Cora Branch, secretary; Milton Jackson, business manager.

Drink Coca-Cola
Emlen Tunnell
great safety man of the professional New York Giants, takes time out to enjoy a bottle of delicious Coca-Cola.
The harder a man plays football, the more important it is that he rest and relax whenever he has the opportunity. Champions always play hard. That's why you'll find champions in football . . . and in every other sport . . . enjoying "the pause that refreshes" with delicious Coca-Cola. How about you? The harder you work on your job, the more important it is that you pause every once in awhile to refresh. And for more than sixty-five years, ice-cold Coca-Cola has been America's favorite refreshment. Turn a little moment into a big rest by enjoying a frosty bottle of Coke. Where you work . . . where you play . . . where you shop . . . you'll find familiar red coolers for Coca-Cola. And don't forget to keep a husky supply on hand at home.
Follow the Champions. Have a Coke... and Work Refreshed
