Fla. sheriff was honor Dela. guest

By SAMUEL HOSKINS

MILFORD, Del. — On the night of Nov. 6, 1951 two youngsters were shot down in cold blood along a lonely backwoods road about halfway between Raiford and Tavares, Fla.

One of the victims died instantly. The other managed to survive by exercising superhuman discipline and self-control. He did this by pretending he was dead while bullets were being fired into his body.

Later, he told a horrified world that the self-appointed executor was none other than the sheriff who, at the time, was his "legal protector."

—o O o—

THE GUNSHOT victim who died along the swampy Florida road that night was Samuel Edwards, one of the four suspects in the infamous Groveland (Fla.) assault case.

The second defendant was Ernest Thomas, also of Groveland, who was shot to death allegedly while attempting to escape.

The third of the suspects, a minor, is serving a term of life in prison for a crime, which to all legal evidence, he did not commit.

—o O o—

THE FOURTH suspect is Walter Irvin, World War II veteran who is labeled as the defendant in the "Little Scottsboro" case.

Currently, he is facing a death sentence, imposed by court which—according to the NAACP—was dominated by fear of mob violence.

The sheriff who figured in this infamous case, which has shocked the sensibilities of law-respecting people throughout the world is Willis McCall of Lake County, Fla.

McCall was a guest of honor, Thursday night, at the "victory Rally," called to celebrate the ousting of the 11 colored pupils from the Lakeview School.

He has appeared as guest speaker at a number of meetings sponsored in Sussex and Kent Counties by W. Bryant Bowles and his so-called National Association for the Advancement of White People.

The burden of his speeches has been to tell first-hand "How to handle them."

On at least one occasion he alluded to the bomb killing of Harry T. Moore, NAACP coordinator in Mims, Fla., on Christmas night, 1951.

"That's the way we handle them in Florida," he said.

—o O o—

LAST THURSDAY afternoon when the Milford board of education kicked the 11 colored pupils out of the local high school, it surrendered to mob pressure—Florida style, flavored with a dash of "Mein Kampf."

The instrument of application was the NAAWP, headed by William Bowles, alias W. Bryant Bowles, self-announced national commander of the United American Veterans.

The tactics were reminiscent of those so well remembered from Germany and Italy during the early 1930's.

The hate campaign was well under way Thursday, Sept. 23, when the State Board of Education indicated it would back the local board on its vote to integrate the high school here.

The first important public meeting of the group, however, was not held until Sunday, Sept. 26.

—o O o—

UTILIZING LOUD SPEAKERS on trucks and even attacking one to an airplane, a huge crowd was siphoned in from all nearby towns and as far away as Maryland and West Virginia.

Followup meetings were held in Gumboro, Sept. 28; Laurel and Dagsboro, Sept. 29; and a protest rally scheduled for Milford, Sept. 30, the day the board surrendered.

Even after the board's capitulation, meetings were held in Georgetown and the Lord Baltimore School District, Oct. 2.

The cast of speakers included the following: Bowles (of course) who has a record of police arrests extending from Florida to Maryland;

—o O o—

JOSEPH M. DANES of Hartley, self-announced graduate of Delaware University, who pledged to see to it that each candidate of both major parties declare himself for or against segregation;

THOMAS DIXON, caustic critic of the United Nations, who said the United States should resign from UN and that world agency should get out of this country;

CHARLES P. WEST of Milsboro, head of the Delaware NAAWP, who resigned three days after he volunteered for the post;

THE REV. MANAEN WARRINGTON of Selbyville, who employed the threadbare technique of quoting the Bible to "prove" God never intended the races to mix; and

MRS. MILDRED P. SHARP, near Milford, who is yet to get over the thrill of hearing her own voice come out of the other end of a sound system.

With a few minor variations, the tenor of the speeches was the same from meeting to meeting.

—o O o—

HERE ARE A FEW highlights from the speeches:

The United States Supreme Court is composed of nine men who have no previous experience at interpreting the law.

The court's ruling in the school cases will cause the nation to be "mongrelized."

The decision resulted from influence exerted by Jews, the CIO and the NAACP.

Justice Felix Frankfurter (a Jew) once received $1,000 from the CIO which backs the NAACP which (in turn) was founded and is run by Jews.

The press (Newspapers, radio and television) is dominated by left-wingers.

School integration could not be permitted because already one of the colored boys had attempted to make a date with a white girl.

—o oO—

THE GREATER tragedy, however, is the growing evidence that Gov. J. Caleb Boggs, States Atty. Gen. H. Young and Dr. George E. Miller Jr., state superintendent of public education, surrendered to and/or collaborated with Bowles, McCall and Company.

How else may these facts be explained?

The state board of education took the position that the original Milford board, which admitted the colored student not only acted within the law, but had no other alternative.

Yet it took a position which literally forced the board to resign en masse.

Over a week the Bowles mob ran about the area inciting mob action and practically forcing hundreds of pupils to remain away from school.

Yet, it was not until after the colored children had neen ousted that Attorney General Young take official note of the fact that the agitators perhaps were violating state laws.

—o O o—

THE GOVERNOR denied that he made a "deal" with Bowles to call of his agitators and the colored children would be dismissed.

Yet, before the board made public its decision, Bowles revealed he knew what the decision would be.

The NAAWP leader went so far as to practically prove the names of two members of the new board were submitted by him.

And in a final "magnamious gesture," the self-styled "Florida Cracker" prior to the board's ouster action made this statement:

"... We want them (the colored pupils) to know that wherever they are transferred to we (the NAAWP) want to help them to get an education."

And they said it couldn't happen here!!

Elks alerted to school situation

Commendations to police head, school officials

Representatives of Elks lodges and temples throughout the city held a special meeting Wednesday night to bring members up to date on the school situation.

The meeting was called by Lloyal Randolph, exalted ruler of Monumental Lodge and grand trustee of the grand lodge; and Mrs. Pearl Brown, daughter ruler of Great Southern Temple and grand treasurer.

When anti-integration school demonstrations were at their height Monday, the Elks leaders contacted the grand exalted ruler, Robert Johnson, in Philadelphia.

—o O o—

HE IMMEDIATELY wired his approval of whatever plan the local Elks undertook to help alleviate the situation through its Civil Liberties program.

Since the demonstrations had quieted down by Wednesday and school attendance neared normalcy, the group realized that no drastic action was necessary but they agreed to remain on the alert.

Speakers commended the city school officials, the police department, the city solicitor, and Judge James K. Cullen who in a court case this week upheld the action of the school board in effecting integration.

—o O o—

JOSIAH F. HENRY Jr., assistant grand legal advisor, was named chairman of a resolution committee to send telegrams of commendation to these persons for their "courageous action."

Speakers at the meeting included Mr. Randolph, Mrs. Brown, Mr. Henry, Truly Hatchett, grand assistant commissioner of education; and U. Theodore Hayes.

It was pointed out that students of Southern High School who are members of the Spirit of Chesapeake Lodge Junior Elks have set "a fine example" for other students.

Guests included Mrs. Vivian Allevne representing the National Federation of Clubs; Miss Mayme Tilghman, president of the Master Beauticians Association; Mrs. Lena Lee, school principal; and Harry A. Cole, a candidate for State Senate.

Matron gets 6 years in man's death

Mrs. Frankie Mae Walker, 30, 1805 W. North Ave., was sent to the State Reformatory for Women for six years on manslaughter and common assault charges, growing out of the death of her 54-year-old common-law husband, Sherman Dickerson, last August.

Judge Emory Nile sentenced Mrs. Walker on Wednesday in Criminal Court. She admitted she grabbed his .32 calibre pistol and fired at him five times when he threatened her during an argument.

—o O o—

THE ARGUMENT developed as to whether a phonograph record in the cellar should be moved to the center of the room during a crab feast party, in order to cut down on the noise about which police had complained.

One of the bullets hit Miss Arnetta Edwards, 2900 block W. Lanvale St., a guest in the home.

Judge Niles gave Mrs. Walker five years on the manslaughter charge and one year for shooting Miss Edwards.

TOWSON, Md. — Oct. 21 has been set for the hearing in case of Miss Lillie Mae Harris, Chase, Md., mother who has been charged with neglect of three small children.

Judge J. Howard Murray last week ordered a further investigation in the case and said he would schedule another hearing when it is complete. Miss Harris is the mother of a two-year-old Jerome Harris, who died at Johns Hopkins Hospital on Sept. 18.

—o O o—

POLICE were notified and an autopsy performed when hospital officials noted the child's body was covered with brusies from the 'top of his head to the sole of his feet."

The autopsy report had not been completed by the Medical Examiner's office at presstime. Any criminal action in the case must await this report, according to police.

New charges placed against men in jail

The police department reached into the Maryland Penitentiary and the House of Correction on Tuesday and came up with two men wanted in conncetion with a store burglary last October.

The two prisoners appeared in Northwestern Police Court where Magistrate E. Everett Lane ordered them both held for action of the grand jury.

From the Penitentiary where he is serving 15 years for armed robbery came Leroy (Lee) Jones 38, of the 700 block N. Calhoun St. He was charged with the robbery of the store in the 1200 block Druid Hill Ave., and the passing of 12 forged money orders allegedly taken in the robbery.

Bail was set at $7,000.

The second man was Robert Lovejoy, 23, of the 600 block Cumberland St., held in $1,000 bail on the burglary count.

THE NEW CHARGES against the prisoners were placed after an intensive investigation conducted by Det. Sgt. James Butler and Det. Lloyd Johnson. First break in the year old robbery came recently when police arrested a man identified as Sherman Hinson.

After Hinson was questioned, detectives began a search for Lovejjoy and Jones and found both men already serving time in other cases.

Hinson pleaded guilty to a burglary count in Criminal Court on Monday and is awaiting sentence.

Sgt. Butler testified the three men broke into the store and took $517 in cash, cigarettes, stockings, and a checkwriter and 32 blank money orders. Twelve of the money orders were later filled in and cashed for a total of $550, he added.

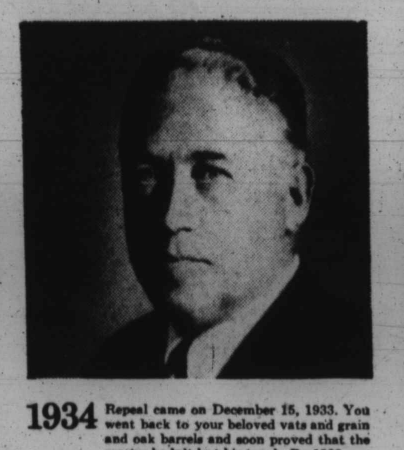
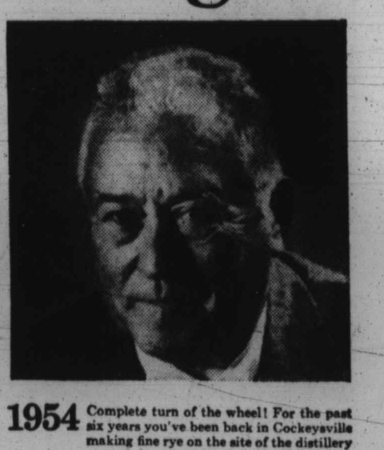
This is your life, Frank L. Wight!

1904 You went to work as an apprentice in your family's distillery. Six years passed before your Dad was satisfied you knew everything a distiller should know. Then he went to Europe, leaving you in charge. As luck would have it, in 1911, you made a Maryland rye so fine that in 1937 it was to sell for $50 a bottle.



1934 Repeal came on December 15, 1933. You went back to your beloved vats and grain and oak barrels and soon proved that the master hadn't lost his touch. By 1938 you were again making the largest-selling straight rye—the kind of rye that made Maryland whiskey famous the world over.



1954 Complete turn of the wheel! For the past six years you've been back in Cockeysville making fine rye on the site of the distillery started by your forefathers, Hyatt and Clarke, in 1868. You're the dean of Maryland rye! Happy anniversary, Mr. Wight—and many happy days to come.

Beauticians told to use vote in democracy fight

Use of the vote and support of the NAACP are the two most effective weapons in the fight for full integration, Mrs. Cordelia G. Johnson declared, here, Sunday.

Mrs. Johnson of Jersey City, N.J., and president of the National Beauty Culturists League was speaker at the second Middle Atlantic Regional mass meeting held in the Paterson Asbury Zion Church.

Where representation on State Boards of Cosmetology has been gained, it has been because of voting strength, Mrs. Johnson said.

She pointed to the opportunities of beauticians to not only exercise their franchise, but to point out the necessity of voting to their customers.

—o O o—

MRS. JOHNSON also urged beauticians to be active participants in community betterment. "When I look around at what my girls are doing, I'm well satisfied," she told the group. Beauticians, she said, are active throughout the country in church work, the American Red Cross, the Urban League, and in their specific interest, polio centers. In the latter they not only make substantial monetary gifts, but also give of time and service.

Angelo Brooks presided at the meeting.

Other speakers included:

Mrs. Agnes Giordona, chairman of the Maryland State Board of Cosmetologists; Mayme Tilghman, president of the Master Beauticians Association; Mrs. Virgie Waters, president of the Maryland State Beauticians' Association, which was host to the onference; Miss Geraldine Polk of South Hill, Va., Mrs. Mary M. Lucas of this city and Mrs. Ruth Valentine, Norfolk, regional director.

—o O o—

WHILE IT HAD been announced that 200 delegates were expected to attend the regional meeting, less than 30 turned up at the session, Sunday. Miss Tilghman said, however, that a larger number was expected at the business sessions.

The regional conferences are new in NBC which is the oldest organization of beauty culturists in the country, having been established in 1919. Mrs. Johnson has headed the body for 16 years.

—o O o—

AT THE business session on Monday, Mrs. Valentine remained regional director. Other officers for the coming year are:

Mrs. Virgie Waters, Baltimore, treasurer; Mrs. Mary Lucas, financial secretary; Mrs. Evelyn Benson, chairman of the educational committee;

Mrs. Florence Reid, Norfolk, recording secretary; Mrs. Dorothy Dixon, Baltimore, assistant recording secretary; Mrs. Mary Lucas, Baltimore, financial secretary; Miss Geraldine Polk, South Hill, Va., chaplain; Mrs. Ethel Felder, sergeant-at-arms; Mrs. Mary Franis, reporter.

Washington was selected as the site for the 1955 regional meeting.

Delegates attending the meeting were:

Miss Geraldine P. Polk of South Hill, Va.; Misses Elizabeth Lassiter, Jessie Northington, Maggie Whitener; Mesdames Maude Epps, Mary Harden, Florence Ried and Jennie Whitehouse of Norfolk, Va.;
