Baptists send $2,076 to aid Ala. boycott leaders

Additional contributions by members of the United Baptist Missionary Convention of Maryland to aid leaders of the Montgomery, Ala. bus boycott has boosted the total sum to $2,076.31.

Last week the Convention, under the leadership of the Rev. J. Timothy Boodie, president, sent $1,737.31 to the leaders of the boycott.

Omitted from last week's listing were the following churches: Pleasant Hope, the Rev. J. A. Moore, pastor, $25 and Concord, the Rev. J. M. Rayner, pastor, $2.

The additional $342.70 was contributed by the following churches: Wayland, the Rev. W. W. Payne, pastor, $150; Zion, the Rev. W. W. Payne, pastor, Zion, the Rev. M. W. Wilkens, pastor, $94.87;

Friendship, the Rev. Harry Jackson, pastor, $13.08; New Shiloh, the Rev. J. Timothy Boddie, pastor, $85.75; John E. Newman personally contributed $5.

• • •

AT A RECENT meeting the convention, comprising 80 churches and more than 50,000 members, sent copies of the following letter to President Eisenhower, Attorney General Brownell and to the ministers in the Alabama bus boycott;

"On behalf of the United Baptist Missionary Convention of Maryland, 'representing eighty churches comprising 50,000 members, we humbly beseech you to take a personal hand in the grave racial situation now existing in southern states in general, and at Montgomery and Tuscaloosa, in particular;

"We feel that freedom in the free world is at stake. The flagrant denial of the constitutional rights of colored citizens, the bombing of homes of colored leaders, the wholesale arrest of Christian leaders of color, point up to the break down of local justice.

"The Bus company of Montgomery in whose behalf the Mayor invoked the agents of the law, is owned and manned by white citizens who deny employment to colored drivers.

"The police and sheriffs' departments are controlled by white citizens. The local courts, judge, jury and prosecuting attorneys are under the supervision of white citizens only.

"These agents of discrimination could hardly be guardians of freedom where colored are concerned.

"Mr. President, the eyes of the non-free would are upon our Chief Executive and the free world over which he presides."

The resolution was signed by the Revs. W. L. Clayton, chairman; L. G. Reynolds, I. Lugan Kearse, S. C. Churn, J. L. Tilley, J. T. Boddie, president.

Morgan, Christian Center change land

The Board of Public Works approved an exchange of land between Morgan College and the adjacent Morgan-Christian Center, this week.

The deed of ground behind the center, and the house of its director goes to the college.

The college gives the center a small acreage on Hillen Road and $20,000.

Control governing the transaction was approved by trustees of the two institutions a year ago.

THE CHRISTIAN Center Corp. ration owned Morgan College before it was bought by the state.

The purchase price was used to construct the center as a Methodist foundation to serve Morgan students.

It is maintained by the endowment fund which Morgan accumulated as a private institution.

Bishop Edgar A. Love is chairman of the center's trustee board.

Governor McKeldin, J. Millard Tawes, comptroller, and Hooper S. Miles, constitute the Board of Public Works.

Methodist Ministers see integration film

The Methodist Ministers' Fellowship met Monday in the Mt. Vernon Place Methodist Church, the Rev. Albert E. Day, pastor.

Until September of 1955 white and colored Methodist ministers met separately. The Methodist Ministers' Fellowship is a decided step toward integration.

"The Search," a documentary film on integration in Baltimore was the featured event. Samuel Daniels, executive secretary of the Maryland Interracial Commission, spoke briefly before the film. Daniels explained the techniques of the Maryland Commission on Interracial Problems and Relations in finding out how people, different in color, learn to live together peacefully and constructively.

• • •

AS PART of the program Mr. Daniels conducted a questionnaire survey on various aspects of integration in Baltimore. "The results," he explained, "disclose that only between 30 and 40 per cent of the group present have an accurate knowledge of integration in Baltimore."

The Rev. Charles Jones, pastor of the Community Church of Chapel Hill, North Carolina will be their next speaker on March 19.

The Rev. Paul Warner is president of the Fellowship; the Rev. Howard L. Cornish, Director of Morgan's Christian Center. Morgan State College is chairman of the program committee.

Josh White, who is a member of the Epworth Methodist Church of New York City, consented to contribute his time and talents because he believes a potent answer to crime is a positive recreational and character-building program on the part of all community agencies. His two children, Josh Jr. and Beverly, who will appear with him, are living proof of their father's keen interest in creative opportunities and experiences for youth.

• • •

Words to live by

By ROBERT T. NEWBOLD JR.

BALTIMORE

Much of the difficulty in the world can be traced to one word — misunderstanding.

Individuals who had formerly been friends become enemies because of it. Churches have been rent with strife due to it. Business partners have dissolved their partnership on account of it.

Since this is true we should be concerned about understanding people.

• • •

FIRST OF ALL, we should try to be sure we understand what they say. Many are the times we are so preoccupied in thinking about something else until we hear others speaking to us but fail to completely grasp what they are saying.

What happens when we try to repeat what they have said? We misquote and put into their words out of context. We obviously misinterpret what was said.

In order to avoid this, then we should listen carefully to what is being said to us.

In the second place, we should try to understand what motivates people to speak and act as they do.

• • •

A LITTLE BOY in school is known as a trouble maker. His teacher had labelled him a problem pupil. One day she visited his home. She talked with his parents.

As a result of the visit and conversation she discovered reasons why the little boy behaved the way he did in school.

Now her attitude toward the pupil has changed. Why? Because she understands what prompts him to act the way he does.

There are always underlying reasons why people act the way they do. Some of them can be traced back to childhood experiences, others may be related to the breakdown of the family life; and still others can be attributed to the individual's emotional problems.

Hence, in dealing with people we need not only listen to what they say or observe what they do. We also need to try to discover and understand the reasons for these.

• • •

ALL OF THIS suggests that we need to deal patiently with others.

Jesus was very patient with His disciples. They did not quick ly grasp the truths He taught them; but He continued to teach. They were slow to give priority to the spiritual; yet He loved them.

In like manner God is patient with each one of us. Despite our disobedience and selfishness He loves us. He is patient with us.
