4 years for cellar lover
"She took my money, offered to love me and then had me jailed.
"I met her in a bar and spent around twelve bucks buying her drinks. She said she didn't have enough to drink and then we got two half pints of gin. We even went to a dance after that.
"She told me that I reminded her of somebody she was in love with at this time and said that she thought that she could love me too.
"I asked her where we could go. It was raining hard, so I told her I thought we could duck in an empty shack across the street, because I had to go home to my wife."

THIS IS the story James A. Lucas, 39, 100 blk. W. Henrietta told a packed criminal courtroom, Wednesday. He was charged with criminal assault on the mother of two teen - age daughters.
Judge E. Paul Mason, however, did not believe him. He sentenced Lucas to four years in the state penitentiary.
The mother, Mrs. Sadie Jones, 35, told the court: "I had a few drinks with him and he told me he wanted to show me something in this vacant building.
"When we got in there in the basement, he knocked me unconscious. When I came to, he was attacking me."

Two First Baptist Churches to worship together Sunday

The congregations of two First Baptist Churches will worship together Sunday at 3 p.m.

One congregation, located at Caroline and McKlderry Sts., is marking its 120th anniversary and claims to be the oldest colored Baptist church in Baltimore.

The other congregation, whose church is in the 4800 block of Liberty Heights Ave., was established for whites 10 years earlier and set up the mission which developed into the Caroline St. church.

Sob Sister

"The Lord helps those who—" the Bible says.

O.K., girls, it's Leap Year Day (Wednesday) Speak right up and help yourselves. And I never did see any advice which I don't take myself.

Governor Leader has a refreshing sense of humor. He showed it often as he talked with some 80-odd members of the weekly press at a conference in his Harrisburg offices, Friday.

SPEAKING ABOUT a pending piece of legislation, he grinned and advised us: "It's in the senate. It isn't easy to get bills out of the senate, you know. They have about 400 of them still over there."

It was a very informal discussion, in a relaxed manner, the governor talked while keeping both hands in the pockets of his neat gray suit. He wore a light blue shirt and red and blue striped tie.

His pictures don't do him justice. He's really much younger and personally a more handsome man he appears in print.

MRS. ANNE NEWLY appointed FEPC. He said the 9-man committee will take the oath of office on Friday. Harry Hughes (Pa.) Democrat has been named chairman. He is president of the Pennsylvania Industrial Council, CIO.

Senate confirmation of the appointees was granted last week.

Next point on the agenda is how much of a monetary appropriation they will need, where it will come from, and exactly how they will operate so as to determine how much staff is needed.

WHEN I sign a check, using one of the bank's pens hampered by a chain to the desk, even I would swear that the signature is forged.

Militant attorney, David Levinson entered Hahnman's hospital for a serious operation this week. Drop him a line of cheer.

"TOO LATE" is the sad understanding that Dolly doesn't approve of intermarriage.

The way I understand it, Dolly doesn't approve of marriage, period, or otherwise.

Greater St. John acknowledges gifts

A dedication service was held at Greater St. John Baptist Church, last Sunday evening, at which the receipt of five recent gifts to the new edifice was acknowledged.

The gifts included:

A public address system, donated by the 12th District Democratic Club; a communion table, given by the Missionary Society of the church; a crucifix, made and donated by Nathaniel Scruggs, a member; a Pulpit set, donated by the Baltimore City Board of Education; and an electric bulletin board, given by the William Jackson Funeral Home.

Music was furnished by the Senior Choir, the Banks Hallelujah Gospel Chorus and the Heavenly Stars Gospel Singers. Scripture was read by the Rev. William L. Jeffries and prayer offered by Louis Cox.

JUST BEFORE the sermon, the Rev. Mr. Banks, pastor, asked the congregation to rise and bow their heads, while the organist softly played, "Nearer My God to Thee," in silent prayer to the memory of the late John Irvin Adams, who was a faithful member of and contributor to Greater St. John.

The Rev. Mr. Banks preached on "Keeping Balanced in an Unbalanced World." He admonished his hearers to keep level heads, practice complete co-operation and exhibit brotherly kindness, one to another.

He said "right here in Turner Station, with a population of less than 15,000, we are not together. We should be as one; then all things are possible through God, who strengthens us."

AFTER THE sermon, the Rev. Mr. Banks led the congregation in reading the litany prepared for the dedicatorial service. He then introduced the Rev. Willis Jeffries, a member of the 12th District Democratic Club, who listed some of the accomplishments of the organization.

He also paid special honors to Irvin Adams, one of the founders of the club, to whom he pointed and said:

"I know he would not want me to say this, but there sits a wonderful man and a philanthropist who has given of his time, his money and far more than we can enumerate here, to make this club and this community what it is today."

The Rev. Mr. Jeffries closed his remarks by urging all Democrats to work together to make the 12th District 100 per cent democratic on the next election.

Mr. C. Quinn Jackson, a Turner Station businessman and president of the 12th District Democratic Club made the final remarks.

Funeral Saturday for Mrs. Gatewood

Funeral services for Mrs. Esther B. Gatewood, 62, 545 Norford Pl., who retired in 1946 after 25 years of teaching, will be held 1 p.m. Saturday at Grace Presbyterian Church. Burial will be in Arbutus Cemetery.

Mrs. Gatewood, wife of Henry B. Gatewood, died Tuesday. She had been ill for the past nine years.

A graduate of the old Coppin Normal School, she took courses at Hampton Institute, Va. She was the daughter of the late John and Emma Gatewood.

Other survivors are a sister, Mrs. Marguerite Hawkins, and a cousin, Dr. Harry Ross, Washington.

will be buried Sunday after funeral services at First Baptist Church, Matthew County, Va.

Mr. Black, a chef, was the husband of Mrs. Bertha L. Black, a local nurse. A native of Matthew County, he had been in Baltimore for 23 years

Other survivors include a sister, Miss Alice Black of Norfolk, Va. and two cousins, Mrs. Margaret Glover and Mr. Martha Wharton.

MARTHA E. BROWN

Requiem High Mass was sung for Mrs. Martha E. Brown, 763 Franklin St. at St. Pius Church Thursday morning.

Mrs. Brown, wife of Thomas Brown died Saturday following a heart attack.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth Richardson and Mrs. Evelyn Sheppard; a son, Bernard Williams and a sister, Mrs. Mary Ellis.

Accelerated classes planned for schools

The Woodbourne and Pimlico Junior High Schools will have accelerated classes next fall for the gifted children and the "A" courses are available at four senior high schools will be extended to include two.

Authority for these actions came Thursday at a meeting of the Board of School Commissioners. The accelerated junior high school program now available only at the Robert E. Lee School No. 49, is designed to make it possible for a bright pupil to complete three years of work in two.

The "A" program, now available at Douglass, Polytechnic Institute, City College and Western qualifies graduates for advanced standing in college through college board examinations.

Candidate Stevenson is 'deeply-disturbed' over racial tensions'

NEW YORK — "Deeply Disturbed" by the mounting racial tensions in the South, Adlai E. Stevenson, 3rd, early 1900 era urged "gradualism" in southern desegregation, and urged the White House to summon Southern colored and white leaders to Washington to arbitrate the situation.

Visiting his New York headquarters to greet supporters and receive an award, the Democratic leader said his approach was:

"I am deeply disturbed by the mounting racial tensions in the South and I think the situation merits the prompt attention of the President.

"The office of the President has great moral influence and prestige and I think that it could well be used to explore ways and means of allaying these rising tensions."

Singer's widow accuses officer

PHILADELPHIA

Since her famous husband was killed in an automobile accident, Mrs. Mamie Gaither of 1637 N. Seventh St. has struggled to care for their five children. She was married to a member of the Orioles singing aggregation.

On Thursday night, two officers, identified as McCann and Jaruma, went to her home. They rang or knocked for admittance to the family's first-floor apartment.

Mrs. Gaither's little girl went to the door. While she did not open it, she called through "Who's there?" Came the answer:

"THE POLICE, open up. We came to investigate the disturbance here."

Then Mrs. Gaither went to the door. While she was trying to assure the officers there was no need for police in her apartment they pushed their way in.

Mrs. Gaither contends that the two officers assaulted her before she was able to run to the telephone. She, herself, called for police protection. When additional policemen arrived on the scene, they, too, beat her, the widow insisted.

Cecil Moore, who is representing Mrs. Gaither, stated that there were approximately 35 officers on the scene.

WHEN HER teen-age nephew, Edward Lewis, tried to aid her, Mrs. Gaither said he, too, was beaten. While she was arrested and taken to the 19th and Oxford Sts. station, he was carried to the Youth Study Center.

At a hearing on Friday morning, Mrs. Gaither appeared before Magistrate Clarence Frieded at the 19th and Oxford Sts. station. She had been slated on disorderly conduct, resisting arrest and assault charges.

The defendant was discharged on all counts with exception of disorderly conduct. She was fined $10 and $2.50 costs. Upon advice of her counsel, Mrs. Gaither paid double the amount, $25. Mr. Moore explained that this was to enable him to file an appeal in Quarter Sessions Court.

Deaths

MRS. E. O. WOINGUST

The Rev. Marion Bascom, assisted by the Rev. W. A. Fry, officiated at the funeral of Mrs. Elsie O. Woingust at the Charles R.-Law Funeral Home last Friday.

Mrs. Woingust, wife of Creston (Doc) Woingust died Feb. 20. Burial was in Arbutus Memorial Park.

Survivors also include two daughters, Mrs. Marian E. Taylor and Miss Eulalia Woingust, Morgan State College student; three sons, Preston L. Jr., Norman E. and Roderique Woingust.

JOHN S. BLACK

John S. Black 56, 1729 Druid Hill Ave., who died last Friday, is survived by his wife, Mrs. Martina Black, a son, John S. Black 36, 1729 Druid Hill Ave., who died last Friday, is survived by his wife, Mrs. Martina Black, a son, John S. Black Jr., and a daughter, Miss Mary Black, both of Philadelphia and South Africa will be presented by the Germantown Civic League Thursday night.

THE PROGRAM is set for Faith Presbyterian Church.

Speaker will be Mrs. Louis Lehman who accompanied her husband on a visit to these areas last year

Mrs. Lehman is president of the Women's Prison League. Program proceeds will be devoted to civic and charitable work.

HEY, WAIT A MINUTE: Before the "This Is Your Life" program was televised from Philly last week, word got around that one of the fabulous Dilly Family was to be featured. It turned out to be Mrs. John B. Kelly who was a supporting character paying honor to Dr. Catharine MacFarlane, the noted gynecologist and cancer specialist.

But a lot of folks thought it was going to be a glamorous and glamorous Grace.

MY SISTER (whom I love dearly, despite the fact that she isn't quite bright) expressed her disappointment thusly:

"I turned on the program with handkerchief in hand.

"I was all prepared to weep over the mournful plight of beautiful, talented, famous and rich Grace Kelly struggling through the hardships of fame and fortune, and then making the supreme sacrifice to become the destitute, pathetic wife of a handsome, rich and famous prince."

Oh brother! How maudlin can you get.

Hit-run death case pastor 'not guilty'

"I saw a man dash across the street on Arlington Ave. He seemed like he was in a daze. I pulled around him and kept going. To my knowledge, I didn't hit him. I heard no screams or shouts . . ."

The Rev. Edward H. McNair, pastor of St. James Methodist Church, Towson, was speaking Thursday in Traffic Court.

He was charged with two traffic offenses growing out of the hit-and-run auto death of William Johnson, 49, of 912 Arlington Ave., who was killed last November.

Chief Magistrate Stanley Scherr found the Rev. Mr. McNair not guilty of failure to stop after an accident and failure to render first aid.

MRS. JOHNSON was pronounced dead upon arrival at Provident Hospital after he was removed from the scene of the accident at Arlington and Riggs Ave.

"Doctors stated that the man suffered from a chronic heart disease," argued John J. Sweeney Jr., attorney for the Rev. Mr. McNair.

"The autopsy showed that the deceased had 3.2 alcohol in his blood stream," Mr. Sweeney said. "He had only a broken leg."

• • •

MRS. VIOLA AYERS of the Arlington Ave. address, who said she was the dead man's friend testified: "The car came around the corner and struck him. It kept going. I screamed, 'Oh, by God!'

"I stayed there until the ambulance arrived."

Edward Clapp Jr., a Morgan College student, said he and another student chased the car driven by the Rev. Mr. McNair on the night of the accident.

"We were at the filling station on Arlington near Riggs," Mr. Clapp testified. "We chased the car and found it in an alley about seven or eight blocks from the accident. We took the license number."

A police officer said of the the Rev. Mr. McNair, "I didn't smell any odor of alcohol on him. After we brought him in the station and gave him some coffee, he settled down and gave us a statement."

IN SUMMING up the case, Magistrate Scherr said, "I think the deceased and this lady, Mrs. Ayers, had been drinking. But I do feel that there is circumstantial evidence, as testified by the officer, which shows that the skid marks led up to the body.

"It does appear that the side of the car was wiped off with a rag," he added, referring to pictures of the car presented in evidence.

"It's a strong circumstantial case," Magistrate Scherr observed further. "But if I found him guilty, it would be a jail sentence. I find him not guilty."

AFTER THE verdict, the Rev. Mr. McNair looked happily relieved in a dark pin-striped suit. He shook hands with Mr. Clapp, who testified against him.

The Rev. Mr. McNair was accompanied to court by George Sides, president of the board of trustees of Saint James Methodist Church, and James Will, secretary.

Before Thursday's trial, the Rev. Mr. McNair had been found not guilty of a manslaughter charge in Criminal Court in the same case.

LIVES TO TELL—Willie Williams, 43, 46 L St., Nw, was run over by a train Tuesday morning but lived to tell about it.

'Johnson tried to get out of the way. He couldn't'

WASHINGTON

"All at once, the train loomed up."

After escaping death as he lay between the tracks under an oncrushing train Tuesday, Willie Williams, 43 unit block L St., NW, made this remark to the AFRO at Freedmen's Hospital.

He is reported in fair condition.

His companion, Jonas Johnson, 27, formerly of the unit block Fenton St., NW, was unable to escape the oncoming train. His head was severed from his body.

"I dropped to the ground when the train switched tracks, put out its lights and speeded up,"

'The nurse said it was too cold in the house'

"We have no heat in the bathroom. We have two children and they have to take a bath in the kitchen."

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Shields of 452 E. 22nd St. charged in Housing Court on Tuesday that their landlord, Arthur Brown of 621 E. Pennsylvania Ave., Towson, failed to provide them with adequate heat in their $15 a week apartment.

Magistrate Marshall Levin observed, "This is like the transit strikes. One side is blaming the other. But there's no heat."

THEN HE postponed the case until March 6, pending an investigation by a city inspector.

"I'm going to take an authority what the inspector says," Magistrate Levin told the landlord. "If a case is established against you, I must hold you for grand jury action."

Police Officer Stephen J. Cutlatta testified, "I sent Mr. Brown a notice on Feb. 8. I went back but there was still no heat on the second floor."

"BEFORE CHRISTMAS, we didn't have much heat," Mrs. Shields told Magistrate Marshall Levin. "My little girl caught measles. The public health nurse said it was too cold in the house."

Mr. Brown said, "I immediately contacted Mr. Smith, who services the property on contract. He said he has every reason to believe there has been tampering with the furnace."

'Come on, baby,' he said and stumbled into jail

"Come on, baby, and go with me."

Attractive Policewoman Mary Jean Crawford testified in Northwestern Police Court on Thursday that the remark was made to her by George Carter, 23, of 1015 Dukeland St.

The remark led to the arrest of Carter and two of his friends, Lennie C. Clay, 22, of 1421 Myrtle Ave., and James Nelson, 24, of 1622 Madison Ave.

They were accused of assaulting two plainclothes men when they attempted to keep the officers from arresting Mr. Carter.

"WHY DID you try to pick her up?" Magistrate Milton H. Talkin asked Carter.

"She was walking down the street," Mr. Carter answered. "And I said, 'Good evening.' Then I said, 'You don't like me, do you? I noticed the other evening that you wouldn't speak.'"

Mr. Clay said of the plainclothesmen, "A man asked them if they were officers. But they wouldn't show their badges."

Mr. Nelson said, "I still don't know that these two are officers."

Magistrate Talkin assured them that both were officers. He fined Mr. Clay and Mr. Nelson each $50 and costs. A fine of $25 and costs was imposed on Mr. Carter for disorderly conduct.

'He threw the steak in the garbage . . .'

"He walked out of the bedroom and back to the kitchen. He threw the steak in the garbage.

"He came after me. I got the knife to keep him off me. I ran out and called police. I'm tired of this man beating on me."

Mrs. Lucy M. Williams, 36, of 1720 Before St., testified in Northwestern Police court against her husband, Robert L. Williams, 45, a merchant seaman.

Both stood before Magistrate Linwood G. Koger Sr. on charges of disturbing the peace.

A POLICE officer testified, "We heard a woman screaming. When we arrived there, the house was in a shambles. Mrs. Williams had this knife." He held up a paring knife.

Mrs. Mary Briscoe of 2020 Druid Hill Ave., mother of Mrs. Williams, said, "He called me and said, 'You'd better come and see about Lucy Mae before I kill her.'"

• • •

MR. WILLIAMS denied the charges. "I asked her why she gets high and put food on the stove. She told me, 'I'm big enough to do what I want to.'"

Magistrate Koger said, "You aggravated her when you took a perfectly good steak and put it in the garbage can."

He fined Mr. Williams $25 and costs, and Mrs. Williams $15 and costs.

Ardent church worker dies

PHILADELPHIA

Mrs. Ila Howerton, ardent church and charity worker of 1728 Norwood St., died Saturday at Hahnemann Hospital. She was 58 years old.

Entering the hospital on Valentine's Day, Mrs. Howerton had undergone a minor operation.

The body may be viewed from 7 to 8 p.m. Thursday at Holsey Temple C.M.E. Church, Hunting Park Ave., east of Germantown Ave. Funeral services will follow immediately with the Rev P. L. Hailey, pastor, officiating.

MRS. HOWERTON was commissioned by the church to visit the sick members of the congregation. She was also affiliated with the Senior Choir Missionary Society, the S-W Club, and was one of the hostesses for the annual mammoth tea.

She was also a loyal worker with the AFRO Home Service League.

MRS. HOWERTON was a native of woodruff, S.C. She had lived in Philadelphia about 16 years.

Survivors include her husband, Stephen Howerton; her mother, Mrs. Lenora E. Baird of Asheville, N.C.; and three children, Donald, Betty and Delores Howerton.

'810 murder' pops up again

Roosevelt Warren, 27, 1800 block E. Biddle St., son of a man recently sentenced to 12 years in prison on a second degree murder charge, was ordered held in $1,000 bail for the grand jury on Thursday at Northeastern.

Warren was charged with assaulting his mother, Mrs. Ruby Warren, and Robert Maye, a friend of Mrs. Warren's. Police said the youth became angry when he came home and found Maye in the house.

The youth reportedly threatened Maye with a pistol and then threatened to hurt his mother.

His father, North Warren, was sentenced to prison in the "810 Murder" of Milton Bacote, who was knifed to death in a spats over numbers. conditin . 222ao
