to rear my three little daughters.

"I want to live to pay God back for letting me live (then). I'm very happy today to see freedom in Baltimore City and throughout the United States, through your NAACP. To me it (the NAACP) is God's workshop."

Her reference to death 40 years ago was at the time she went to Johns Hopkins Hospital for an operation and doctors said she was lucky to live. She suffered a mastoid condition which damaged her facial muscles.

"We took more bones out of your head then any human who has ever been here" she recalls a doctor having said.

THIS IS HOME to Mrs. Jackson. She was born May 25, 1889 on Greenwillow St.

"We used to just walk on the streets as teenagers and look at the beautiful homes where colored could not live."

In 1910 she married Keiffer A. Jackson of Mississippi, now a retired moving picture exhibitor.

"I just though he'd be a good man for my children, I married him for his character. Forty-nine years we've been married and I know now I was right about him."

As a teacher for a year in 1910, Mrs. Jackson got some ideas about teachers then and about segregated education.

"Teachers were next to preachers then. They set community examples.

"But I found that colored children had to use a lot of hand-me-down books and got few new ones. The public money was being used to educate white children at the expense of colored children."

IN 1919 MRS. Jackson promised God that if she recovered from her illness she would dedicate herself to His work.

As her children passed high school level, she was confronted with the bars of segregation in higher education.

"I woke up and found that my children could not go to the University of Maryland and other colleges. They wanted to go to the colleges where they could come out and compete.

"To me this was one of the most segregated, Jim Crowed cities to be found anywhere."

A deeply religious woman, Mrs. Jackson had found by 1935 that uplifting a race was a terrific task that called for cooperation from public officials.

"We can't advance our children with liquor stores sitting next to our churches, schools and homes."

IT WAS IN THAT year that Mrs. Jackson spearheaded formation of the Northeast Residential Protective Association with her sister, Mrs. Florence Snowden as president. She also spearead formation of the Young People's Forum which was a popular movement here.

It was in that same year that the late Walter White, national NAACP executive, call ed upon Baltimore to take a more active part in the association's work.

"At the call of Dr. Carl Murphy (president of the AFRO) we held a meeting. Dr. Murphy and the AFRO gave the NAACP its first money, $2,000, and I accepted the presidency.

"I had so many things to prove to me that God did not make us inferior. I knew that all we needed was a chance.

"With that in mind I went out and went to work, without pay, night and day."

HERE MRS. JACKSON paused to compare church life today with other areas such as entertainment and sports where people applaud talent and, in the case of baseball, home runs.

"When the preacher makes a home run for Jesus, if anybody shows any enthusiasm people say they are crazy. When I came up they clapped and said, 'Oh, didn't he preach.'

"Now (and she gave an imitation of how they sit unmoved in church today) they are too good. They go cold; cannot get cold. We need reviving."

A strict abstainer from smoke, strong drink, cards, profanity, dancing and many other now accepted forms of leisure "such as that Freakness thing with its betting" Mrs. Jackson said:

"At 70 you're not going to tell me these things aren't harmful.

"People start off as a social drinker, or they let little card cards at first or they say they just enjoy dancing with another man's wife. But I tell you... too many can't control themselves."

OVER THE YEARS she has labored the death blow to housing convenants, segregated public schools and recreational facilities have been some of the most rewarding for Mrs. Jackson. She sees complete victory ahead.

"I think we are moving along just fine but we can't stop. I learned long ago that when you pause, tire and neglect, you fall.

"All we want as a race of people is equal opportunities so we can play our part. We cannot erase the fight short of this goal."

Being 70 with 35 years on the battle front does not add up to enough for Mrs. Jackson.

"Sometime I would come in and be so tired. But a perfect stranger would call and say police whipped him while making an arrest and there I would go.

"Mind you, not to say he wasn't guilty; just to say don't beat him over the head- let the judge decide it.

"I STILL GO TO the office every day. That's my God's workshop. You couldn't keep me away from there.

"Now I can't keep going as I have, you can't, I think when you get 70 you have a slow down.

"Maybe I can help more, be able to give more through counsel and advice than through energy and work.

"Youth and age working together make a good team in any community.

Mrs. Jackson has some firm ideas about people who will be needed on that team.

"What we need now is people with faith, courage and know how.

Although in her work Mrs. Jackson has often protested actions of public officials, she has made many friends among local and state officials. She will go to bat for one of them just as she does others.

This past week when Mayor J. Harold Grady and ex-Gov. Theodore McKeldin praised Police Commissioner James M. Hepburn at the hearing to determine his fitness for his position, she again said her piece in the matter, sending a telegram to Gov. J. Millard Tawes.

"In my telegram I added to the commendations of Mr. Grady and Mr. McKeldin as to the fine work that Commissioner Hepburn has done.

"We have always found him most cooperative. He has always treated us with courtesy. I said that I feel he is an asset to the community.

"We need a man who has some God-conscience in him.

"Ours has been a service without pay, a dedicated work. That type of person never tires."

MRS. JACKSON'S many friends, and especially her children, are happy to know that she is agreeing to a slow down pace.

Her children are:

Mrs. Virginia Jackson Kiah, an artist and wife of Dr. Calvin L. Kiah of Savannah, Ga.

Mrs. Juanita Jackson Mitchell, an NAACP attorney who has been admitted to practice before the Supreme Court, and wife of Clarence Mitchell, NAACP's Washington bureau chief.

Mrs. Marion Jackson Downs, Pasadena, Calif. teacher and widow of the late Rev. Karl E. Downs.

Bowen K. Jackson, former executive secretary of the Baltimore NAACP, recently moved to Pasadena where he is in real estate and managing a dining room.

Mrs. Jackson has nine grandchildren.

DESPITE HER slow down pace, more proof came on Wednesday evening that Mrs. Jackson is still in the fight.

While downtown to pick up her watch from a jewelry store, she called a cab but was passed by.

"I caught me another cab and followed him until he stopped and I said, 'you did me wrong and I'm going to report you.' He said go ahead and report me' and I did.

"The driver who followed him for me told me this happens to colored women downtown all the time.

"This one will know next time."

As a final say, Mrs. Jackson observed:

"I believe in the Constitution of America, all of it.

"God made us all and He wants us all to live our short span together as brothers. That's Lillie Jackson. That's how I feel at 70."

Truly a remarkable woman. She won't like this, but your birthday greetings will reach her at 1320 Eutaw Pl.

WIFE, CHILDREN MISSING — Jean A. Brown, 35, Norwood, N.J., merchant marine engineer (right) offers $1,000 reward for information on whereabouts of his wife, Mrs. Louise Brown, 34, and their three children (left to right) Stella, 4; Jimmy, 14; and Mary, 10. the grey casket.

The Rev. Mr. Haskins, in his eulogy, said: "There is nothing Wanda, William and Ricky can do now. Maybe it is God's way of shaking us loose. Let those of us who have children left be more concerned about them."

Later, the Rev. Mr. Haskins said, "We have a trailer fire in this neighborhood about every six months. Each time it gets worse. God just doesn't let things happen. We cause them to happen. All that we can do in a case like this is to say, 'I'm sorry.'"

AFTER THE funeral, the grandmother, Mrs. Thomas, still wearing bandages on both hands, her shoulder and her face, told the AFRO: "I think the fire started from the outside from a cigarette in the leaves. I didn't have a fire in the stove inside the trailer.

"Police said the stove exploded. If it did, it exploded after the fire started. The man who saved me made me open the door. When I reached for the children, I could not get them. Something went off inside like a explosion. It knocked me back. Then, I was pulled out of the trailer."

The children's mother, almost prostrate with grief, told the AFRO: "I had just left the children last week to join my husband in Wisconsin."

In addition to their parents and the grandmother, Mrs. Thomas, the children's other relatives are grandfathers, Sidney Vincent and Clyde Parker, an uncle, Eugene Vincent; and two aunts, Gloria and Rita Vincent.

she kissed me back.

"We got up and went over to the front door and Sarah kissed me and she said (I mimic) and her went back together again would I hurt her like I did when we first went together.

"I told her I wanted to go back together with her, so we stood by the door and kissed some more when I reached under my coat and grabbed the gun.

"There was a bullet in the chamber and I didn't know it.

"I pulled the gun out of her right hand with my right hand and that's when it went off.

"She fell and I got panicky and ran. I don't know whether the bullet hit her or not."

OFFICER William Smith, Southern District, told the Court he went to the Fairfield home to investigate the shooting and found Miss Wise on the living room floor and bleeding from the mouth.

She was pronounced dead on arrival at South Baltimore General Hospital at 12:30 a.m., Feb. 2, the officer stated.

The body was identified at City Morgue by a cousin and later claimed by her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Wise.

Officer Smith also testified that he and other officers on the scene found Childs in the neighborhood soon after the shooting and arrested him.

They found no gun in his possession. Officer Smith testified

THE POLICEMAN also testified the gun, a .32 caliber, was found a month later in the yard of the Fairfield home of Childs, he stated. Later disclosed that he purchased the gun from another Fairfield youth.

According to assistant states attorneys Norman Hochberg and James McAllister, the youth had a record for carrying a deadly weapon and served 30 days on that charge in 1956.

Mr. Hochberg said he defendant was also committed to penal institutions on two other occasions.

THE REV. MR. HOUGHTON charged as inexcusable the failure of the sheriff to place guards around the jail when he knew a mob was likely to form and seize Parker.

The minister held up pictures of the body of the mob victim and of the funeral. At the close of the meeting scores gathered around to get a close look at the pictures.

The Rev. Houghton also described the inferior schools and overcrowded second hand school buses out of which one 14 - year - old student fell and was killed this year. He pointed out that the teachers would lose their jobs if they joined the NAACP.

season," said Woodling. "but I've been on teams that have been much worse off than this after a month and a half.

"Besides, I think it's about time the Yankees got taken," concluded Gene who himself was a member of five pennant - winning New York teams (1949 through 1953).

Klaus, obtained by Baltimore from the Boston Red Sox during the winter, took the view that: "The Indians and White Sox have improved. So have the Orioles. We're just as good as they are, so who's to say we don't have as good a shot as they do?"

BOYD, LONG known for his reticence, told the AFRO in his quiet way: "Well, things look pretty good now. All I hope is that we just keep going."

Ginsberg, who was a member of the 1954 Cleveland pennant winners, "We're very much like the '54 Indians. We're playing our games one at a time and hoping for the best."

Triandos is a graduate of the Yankee farm system. He views the Bird surge as "long overdue."

Said big Gus: We had a good club last year and should have done better. We've got a better club this year and I think we will do better. At least, we've got a start in that direction."

TASBY AND WILHELM are the "this - feels - good" members of the Bird clan.

Willie, who has been the outfield rookie sensation of the surprising homelings, hesitates to make any predictions, but admits winning "surely feels great and all I hope is that we can just keep it up."

"If we can keep it up, chimed in knuckleball pitcher Wilhelm. "we'll get our share. Those other fellows haven't had the slump that hit us in the first ten days of the season."

THIS WAS THE frame of mind in the Oriole clubhouse as they awaited the invasion of the Yankees tonight (Friday), for a four - game weekend series.

The high perch of the Birds is due to the fact that their Wednesday night loss to the Sox was only the second setback they had suffered in their previous nine games.

It also means much to Paul Richards' young men that they are behind in their series with only two of the seven rival teams—the Red Sox, to whom they are 3-4 and the Athletics with whom the Birds are 1-3.

THE YANKEES, incidentally, are one of the two clubs against whom Baltimore has had her picture along with the instructions to draw a picture of a two and a half year old boy based on a composite portrait of the two boys shown on the picture.

Tompkins put his talent to work. On Friday, the AFRO published Mike's picture.

Less than five hours later the youngster was in the arms of his parents, the woman who had allegedly kept him for four days was in jail, and a waitress in a Pennsylvania Ave. restaurant was happy she had looked at the AFRO and recognized the picture as that of a boy who was in the place at the time.

SO THERE was your miracle. Not a big one, for we never said it was a big one, but a miracle.

Mike is back at his home now, but the effects of his ordeal haven't quite worn off as yet.

As his father tells it:

"When he gets out of the house he wants to run. He used to be a quiet boy but he isn't now.

"He wakes up at night and he starts to run. Every once in a while he jumps in his sleep, something he never did before."

Mr. Jones said his son told him he had been fed coffee and hot dogs during the four days he was away from home.

Mike's memory of all that happened to him is a bit hazy, but one thing is definite, according to his father.

"He doesn't want to see that woman again."

THE ACCUSED woman, Mrs. Bernice Ware, 40, gave police a non-existing address in the 1200 block Bruce St.

She has been ordered held in $5,000 bail for action of the grand jury on a charge of secreting a child with the intent to deprive his parents of control.

Several persons, with the help of the AFRO picture, had a hand on locating the young ster.

One was Alpheus Bessick 36, 2903 Windsor Ave., who said it happened this way.

"I was in a barber shop in the 1100 block Pennsylvania Ave. when the AFRO boy came in. I looked at the paper and then I saw this lady with the child come into the shop begging for food for herself and the child.

"I followed her to the restaurant and the waitress was reading the AFRO. She (Mrs. Virginia Lawson) showed it to me. We both agreed that was the boy."

Mrs. Lawson sent another customer, Lawrence Lloyd, 1063 Argyle Ave., out to call the police and Mrs. Ware was arrested and the boy handed over to his parents.

IN DESCRIBING the scene when the parents were reunited with their son in the Northwestern Station House, Mr. Bessick said:

"Mike almost had a fit when he saw his mother and father, he ran to his mother and daddy. She was so upset crying she gave him to his father.

"He put his arms around his father's neck and his father kissed him and hugged him."

So we say again it wasn't a major miracle that the boy was recovered, but then miracles come in all sizes.

Mr. Stockett, who lost use of his right arm when he suffered polio as a child, has received many compliments on his real-life likenesses. One of the most recent was last month when former Gov. McKeldin watched him at work on a cartoon depicting him, and said, 'Just to think he does this fine work with only one hand.'

Hike from Georgia wins in tip contest

The newspapermen went to work last week and came with some good stories — and some nice extra dollars at the same time.

One photographer got into the act, collecting $5 for a picture on new magistrates.

Top story money, $4 went for a tip that led to an interesting features story on a man who walked from Georgia pulling behind him a small cart.

There were five tips worth $3 each. They gave information about the suit at the John Wesley Church, baby being born after the mother's death, help given on the story of the missing commuter, the plane crash in Iowa, and finally the story of the young man shooting a woman and then being found below a bridge.

TIPS THAT WON $2 each were for the death of a church worker on a bus and the birth of a baby in a cab in front of a hospital.

For information on sick people in the community a check for $1.50.

Winners of the $1 awards were for accident at Baker and Warwick, child stuck by car at Argyle and Pitcher, accident at Mosher and Ellicott, accident at Aisquith and Hoffman, laundry truck and another truck in mixup and the fire in the 1000 block W. Fayette.

Also, the accident at Charles and Lee, accident Hatmaker St. this side of Fairfield, local physician arrested on drunk driving charge, woman struck by car at Wolfe and Lafayette, fire at wreck at Harford and Federal, accident at Broadway and Baltimore and the fire in the 1000 block Ashburton St.

EACH WEEK THE AFRO sets aside $50 for newstips and news photos and its no sweat at all to be a winner.

All any one has to do to be in the running is to pick up a phone and call the City Desk, MUlberry 5-0015 and say, "I've got a tip." We'll take it from there.

At the end of each week the tips are judged and the winners selected and checks mailed to them.

In case of photographs, they must be brought to the City Desk.

William A. Smith, longtime YMCA worker, is buried

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at the McCulloh St. funeral home for William Arthur Smith, 62, 1106 Division St.

Mr. Smith was taken suddenly ill on Saturday evening and was dead on arrival at Provident Hospital.

The Rev. Baxter L. Mathews, pastor of Union Baptist Church, officiated at the services which were in charge of Earl Gilmore, mortician. Burial was in Mt. Auburn Cemetery.

Mr. Smith was employed at the Central YMCA on Franklin St., where he had been porter for a number of years.

Survivors include his aunt, Mrs. Martha Freeman, with whom he made his home; a brother, John Smith and a sister, Mrs. Beatrice Carter.

SPEAKING in Baltimore at the 19th annual Maryland State Confernce of NAACP, Thurgood Marshall, NAACP's legal chief, told his audience "When you get mad..., act like it." Mr. Marshall said support of the NAACP would prove resentment over lynchings and lack of justice.

LIFE MEMBERSHIP PLAUQES from the NAACP were accepted by these Baltimoreans on Saturday when the Maryland Conference of NAACP branches held its 19th annual session here at Sharp Street Methodist Church. From left are Dr. George Woodland, who accepted plaque for Maryland Dental Society; Mrs. Mary A. Carpenter, who brought a life membership in memoriam in honor of her late husband Harry A. Carpenter; Allen Pratt, president emeritus of the trustee board of Emmanuel Christian Community Church, on behalf of the church, and Linwood G. Koger Jr., for the Real Estate Brokers of Baltimore, Inc.

IN BALTIMORE for the NAACP's 19th annual state conference of branches on Saturday was Dr. John A. Morsell, assistant executive secretary of the national NAACP. Dr. Morsell brought greetings from Roy Wilkins, executive secretary, and the national office.

Gov. Tawes's greetings to NAACP convention

Gov. J. Millard Tawes, chief executive of the state of Maryland, was represented by Josiah Henry, traffic court magistrate, at the 19th annual Maryland State Conference of NAACP Branches on Saturday.

Magistrate Henry said:

"Since I am represen ing the Governor, I will reduce to writing the things that he prepared speech. Highlights of his remarks follow:

"There is a growing problem not only in the United States but in the whole world. India, China and the South Seas have all laid the world problem upon our doorstep.

"Let us not think that there is nothing to be done about our problem.

"There is much to be done. Every man and woman has a responsibility for the race situation in his neighborhood and on one absolute himself from this great responsibility.

"This is a celebration as well as a time for reflection. Let us reflect on the accomplishments of the state of Maryland and those devoted leaders who have gathered here to deliberate and to discuss new plans — a wide program and new attacks — and to reward some of the distinguished NAACP leaders.

"The governor asked me especially to say to Dr. Murphy, whose achievements for years exceedingly that he could not be here with his friend, Dr. Murphy, and wife Dr. Lillie M. Jackson, who has spent a long life of unselfish service in the state and to her race.

"America has become a better place because there is such an organization as the National Association of all people.

Without a doubt the worst blot on our democracy is the position which colored people are forced to occupy in American life.

"DESPITE THE fact that three fourths of a century has passed since the Constitution gave him citizenship rights, there is almost both spine in his rights, there is almost no place in the United States where he enjoys completely all the privileges of other free men, citizenship or citizenship.

"But, we thank God we have lived to see the day and feel the effect of the reaction of the colored population and the creation of organization, the National Association for the Advancement of All People.

"Today, no colored man is willing to accept complacently a second class citizenship and he will not be satisfied until he enjoys all the rights, privileges and the accompaniments afforded to a better class society.

"Briefly, America has owned only one class of citizenship and that is a first class citizenship.
