Lafayette Center serves area by serving youths

By ELIZABETH M. OLIVER

There is a place in Baltimore especially designed to give children friendship, devotion, love, daily lessons and guidance toward a happy life as good citizens in the community.

It is at the corner of Arlington and Lafayette Aves., in the St. James Protestant Episcopal Church parish house.

Under the watchful care of the kindly, young assistant vicar, the Rev. Robert M Powell who donates endless hours, some 200 children, many of them underprivileged find healthful relaxation at the Lafayette Square Community Center.

• • •

APPROXIMATELY 850 young people visit the center each week for a total of approximately 3,300 a month.

The Center is open Monday through Friday from 3:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

For the children the center offers basketball, table tennis, pool, quiet games, cooking, sewing, housekeeping, modeling, arts, crafts, dancing, music, group discussion, Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts, girls' personal beautification classes and softball.

• • •

THE CENTER opened in January, 1956 under the direction of ex-Colt team player, George Taliaferro, who resigned in October, 1958 and was followed by Father Powell as leader.

But according to Father Powell, the handicaps of the building, a little tight, squeeze because of over crowding, does not halt the progress of giving the youngsters in the area what they need.

"A good example of what we do is our daily promotion of school homework," he said.

"Many of our children come from large families who can not provide guidance or proper environment for study at home.

"After a survey of the schools and the children's academic standing, we decided to have home work periods.

"The youngsters now do homework, hand it over for me to review before they can enjoy the evening at the Center.

"A return visit to the schools shows that our children have greatly improved in their work."

Father Mr. Powell also stated that although children from five to 12 years of age pay only 25 cents a year dues and children from 13 to 18 pay but 50 cents a year dues, some of them can not afford the sum required.

"That presents no stumbling block," the Rev. Mr. Powell informed the AFRO.

He added: "We allow each child who wishes to do so, to work out his entrance fee.

"They enjoy helping us keep the building clean, washing dishes and doing little chores to 'earn their way.'"

• • •

ACCORDING TO Father Mills, his belief is that the center has helped establish better relationship between teenagers and parents, and has aided family relationships in general.

He says that at one time the church was vandalized by of vandalism have been noted youngsters but no instance in the past two or three years.

The church doors remain closed during the week, but the rector states, "We are thinking of opening them again."

• • •

AS TO the present needs of the community, Father Mills states that a major need is one which involves family problems.

He said: "The neighborhood needs a place where parents may go to get information on problems effecting family life, economy and problems of public assistance.

"Another great need is a neighborhood place where families may receive aid and advice on home problems whether it be children problems or adult problems."

In the future are plans for a settlement house. The rector stated and disclosed that Baltimore has no settlement house despite great need for such an organization.

However, until such time, the center continues to operate on the objective that a center can be a point of activity and service to the immediate neighborhood.

THE ST. JAMES CHURCH provides the building for the Center which includes the first floor 'quiet' room for study and reading, a music room, a large gymnasium and a kitchen; a second floor room for arts and crafts, conference room and study.

In the basement there is a ping-pong room and bowling alley.

The third floor is the place where older teen-agers do some sewing and model airplane building.

• • •

A PORTION of the church budget, as much as it can afford, goes to support the center and maintain the three-story building.

However, with so many young people in need of the center's care not only in the Harlem Park Area but also other areas, a yearly sum of $15,000 is needed and must come from the community.

To help gather in this money citizens may contribute $5 general membership, $10 participating membership, $25, organizational membership, $25 contributing membership, $50 sustaining membership fees.

Citizens may become sponsors with donation of $100 or over and may be named donors with a contribution of $500 or over.

Five Morgan State College students, church and community volunteers also lend a strong helping hand.

Help from the community comes from work groups from the Brotherhood Pilot House Unit that cleans, repairs and redecorates the building, all free of charge.

The Christian Social Relations Committee of the Episcopal Diocesan Woman's Auxiliary supports the project and contributes to the growth of the center financially.

A 31-member Board of Directors serves as a policy making body for the Center and actively participates in promoting the work.

These board members represent citizens groups, churches, city agencies schools and social agencies.

The young vicar, has full-time responsibilities at the St. James Church as assistant to Father Cedric Mills, rector, and manages to carry on the great task of the Center as well.

A native of Cumberland, Md., Father Powell is one of the 11 children of William . Powell and the late Mrs. Edna Powell.

Before coming to the St. James parish in 1957, the Father Powell served as vicar at the Holy Trinity Church for one year during the absence of Father Van Bird who was on leave in England.

A graduate of the Virginia Theological Seminary with a BD degree in 1957, the young minister received his early education in Cumberland and AB degree at Morgan College.

His experience with children and their problems inside and out, varied and includes a year as chaplain intern at the Topeka, Kans., Boys Industrial School for Delinquents, 1955.

During the summer of 1956, Father Powell was on the staff of Rosewood State Hospital as consultant in Religious Education.

He was recently appointed as a member of the volunteer staff at Rosewood where he spends his day-off doing whatever he can for the unfortunate children.
