New voters tell why they registered

NEW VOTERS — This AFRO photo was made at the supplementary voter registration center at Mondawmin Shopping Center last Saturday. These are some of the persons who added their names to the books before the October 5 deadline. PANEL 1, Carl Knight, 21-year-old seaman in the U.S. Navy. PANEL 2, George Johnson, 22 year-old construction worker. PANEL 3, Edward Cooley, 21-year-old meat company employee. PANEL 4, Bernadette Simmons, 21-year-old police clerk. PANEL 5, Ralph Dennis, 22-year-old Morgan State College student. BELOW Paul Carter, 22-year-old electrician, Mrs. Barbara Spence, 23-year-old factory employee, and Charles L. Carter who's already a registered voter he says.

A long line of persons waiting to register to vote for the November 3 election stretched its way along the mall at the Mondawmin Shopping Center this past Saturday as hundreds sought to get their names on the books before the October 5 deadline.

An official from the Board of Supervisors of Elections who manned the supplementary voter registration booth at Mondawmin estimated that by mid-day more than 200 new voters had registered.

The AFRO talked with some of these persons who were registering for the first time and got the following reactions:

Carl Knight, 21, 2000 cl. Penrose Ave. — "I heard the announcement and decided to come up and register. I wanted to vote in the primary but I couldn't and considering the way things almost turned out I want to make sure I get in there and vote this time" Mr. Knight, a seaman in the U.S. Navy, is stationed outside of Washington, D.C.

Mr. and Mrs. William Alton, 25 and 22, 4500 block Bonner Road — "The reason the ones we want in office are not selected is because not enough people get out and vote. Stop sitting home crying and get out and vote.

"If you don't get your man in the first time keep going back until you do." Mr. and Mrs. Alton see "black people" as the biggest issue of the election.

Edward Cooley, 21, 4300 block Seminole Ave. — "I decided to take advantage of this opportunity to register because as a result of the primary I thought it was my duty to vote. It was a very close election."

Mr. Cooley, an employee of a local meat company, sees the drug problem in the black community as the biggest election issue.

Miss Linda Smith, 21, 2200 block Ellamont St. — "I just get tired of seeing the wrong people get put into office. Now I can make a contribution too." Miss Smith is a keypunch operator at Westinghouse.

Paul Carter, 22, 1800 block Lynhurst St. — "I'm working to get Parren Mitchell elected as the first black congressman from Maryland. Next to that the biggest election issue is employment." Also registering at the same time as Mr. Carter was his sister, Mrs. Barbara Spence, 23, who lives in the 100 block Diener Pl.

Both were urged to register by their older brother Charles L. Carter, a Columbia resident, who says he's running a private campaign to get as many people registered as possible.

Ralph Dennis, 22, 3100 block Garrison Ave. — "The primary influenced my decision to register. The biggest issues facing the voters in the November election are drugs, student activism and race relations." Mr. Dennis is a student at Morgan State college.

An interesting sideline to the voter registration activities occurred when four eager young men showed up to register but were turned away because they had not reached twenty-one. Asked about their motivations for wanting to vote they told the AFRO:

"I want to change some of the things going on," R. W. Bellamy, 19, commented.

"Every high school graduate knows enough to vote," Gregory Williams, 18, feels.

All of the young men felt they were mature enough to vote and said that they were unaware that the law lowering the voting age to 18 had not yet been passed in Maryland.

American Airlines announces full fare, ¾ fare, ⅔ fare, ½ fare, no fare.

If you're taking the family on vacation, American Airlines can save you a bundle. With our special low family fares.*

Here's how they work if you're going to Los Angeles for example: Dad pays full fare—$292.00 (round trip). Mom pays ¾ fare—$219.00. Children between 12 and 21 pay ⅔ fare—$194.80. Children between 2 and 12 pay ½ fare—$146.00. And, of course, a child under 2 goes for free.

What's more, you can fly any day of the week except between 1 P.M. and midnight on Friday. And 1 P.M. and midnight on Sunday.

Now, if the only thing that's holding you back is cash, cheer up. American accepts all major credit cards, including bank credit cards. Such as Master Charge and BankAmericard. Plus we have our own credit card.

Another bonus is our free Treasure Chest Booklet. It's packed with discount coupons worth up to $100.

One last point: If you're traveling alone, we have a special money saving fare for you, too. Just call your Travel Agent. He can help you get the most for your money.

So if you thought the cost of flying was getting sky high, think again.

American has brought it down to earth.

It's good to know you're on American Airlines.

*Family fares applicable in continental U.S. and Canada. All fares include federal taxes.

MR. AND MRS. BYRON HUGH THOMAS were married in Saint Gregory The Great Catholic Church, Baltimore, Saturday. The bride is the former Miss Brenda Patricia Best.

Miss Best bride of Bryon Thomas

A double-ring ceremony in Saint Gregory The Great Catholic Church, Saturday, united Miss Brenda Patricia Best and Byron Hugh Thomas.

The Rev. Fr. Belschner and the Rev. Mr. Wise officiated. James Wise Jr. was organist. The soloist was Miss Raynette Shipman.

Miss Best, a Morgan State College student, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cesley L. Best, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a wedding gown of white brocade, fashioned with a high neckline and embroidered with pearls. Her veil of silk illusion was attached to a headpiece made of the same material as the gown. She carried a nosegay of bridal roses, stephonotis and ivy.

Miss Cecelia Mitchell, maid of honor, wore gold satin peau. Her dress featured ruffles at the neckline and hem, and a panel at back which was also bordered with ruffles.

The bridesmaids wore dresses designed like that of the honor attendant, but in emerald green, and the flower girls, Judy White and Jamette Strickland wore dresses in gold.

The bridesmaids were Wendy Bailey and Camillia Blackwell of this city; Miss Lenora Petty of Philadelphia, Miss Marian Stevens of New York City and Miss Carolyn McDonald of Jersey City, N.J.

Keith Fisher was ring bearer. The ushers were Walter Best, Eric Taylor, Ralph Hughes and Michael Armstrong.

Eugene Tannymore was best man for Mr. Thomas. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Thomas, a graduate of Morgan State College and a programmer for I.B.M. in Washington.

The color scheme of emerald and gold was further carried out at the reception which was held in the church hall. The couple is honeymooning in Bermuda, this week.

It's an Old Forester kind of day.

And in the past 100 years there's been a lot of them.

Look for this 100th Anniversary symbol on every bottle of 86 and 100 proof Old Forester.

At 86 or 100 proof "There is nothing better in the market."

Illustrious Women

By BRENDA WRIGHT

It's not a "man's world" and Air Force Sgt. Valerie Jones, granddaughter of Mrs. Helen Jones, W. Saratoga St., Baltimore, is proving it.

She ascends to the to pof the Yokota, Japan aircraft control tower daily as one of the first women controllers in Japan.

Sgt. Jones, who has spent the last two years in the Women's Air Force (WAF), is one of three women given equal status in the "highest" job in Yokota.

Assigned to the 2127th Communications Squadron, Sgt. Jones arrived in Japan Aug. 7, after volunteering for Air Traffic Control School while in basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

"Weather service was my first choice, but now that I'm in th ebusiess I find it an interesting and very good field," she said.

She added that there's a great deal of responsibility in the job since she controls people's lives and a million dollar aircraft.

• • •

Sgt. Jones, who graduated from Roland Park High School and attended Morgan State College, received her controller training at Keesler AFB, Miss.

The 16 weeks of study included in-flight regulations, fundamental training on tower procedures and weather.

• • •

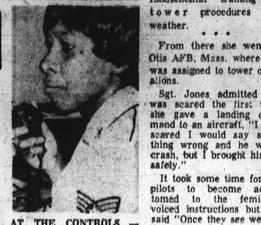

From there she went to Otis AFB, Mass. where she was assigned to tower operations.

Sgt. Jones admitted she was scared the first time she gave a landing command to an aircraft, "I was scared I would say something wrong and he would crash, but I brought him in safely."

It took some time for the pilots to become accustomed to the feminine-voiced instructions but she said "Once they see we can do the job, we are accepted."

The pilots now answer with polite "Thank you, Maam's."

Sgt. Valerie Jones will be stationed at Yokota for the next two years, and unsuspecting pilots landing on the runway will hear a was once a "man's world."

AT THE CONTROLS — Sgt. Valerie Jones, one of the first women controllers in Japan, gives landing instructions to aircraft Yokota, Japan control tower.
