Try pork chops with applesauce stuffing

The planning of dinners is more than half the battle, and we'll wager there are a good many more homekaers who are the "I-hate-to-plan" type, tinen of the "I-hate-to-cook" school.

This, of course, results in a good deal of tilting at windmills come time to mount a super market expedition. If you resist planning, try a little self-psychology. Each week make yourself pick up at least one new recipe and one new product or food you've never fixed before.

• • •

In the new product category, give a try to the new seasoned coating mix for pork. As with the other seasoned coating mixes, you just shake the meat in the seasoend coating mixture, which already contains the needed shortening, and pop it in the oven.

Pork chops come out with a crisp, golden, and nongreasy crust and a nicely juicy interior. It's good for just plain chops, and for when you want to add a little something and still keep the meat simple, as is the way with these Pork Chops with Applesauce Stuffing.

• • •

Another trick in planning is to think color, and often flavor combinations will come along just fine. With the chops, add a touch of orange and green to complement the meat's golden brown.

Try Sweet and Sour Carrots, a quick takeoff on a package of frozen carrots with brown sugar glaze. And for the green, cucumbers, jellied in a pretty mold.

• • •

Pork Chops with Applesauce Stuffing requires one cup of packaged stuffing mix, a half cup applesauce, six double rib pork chops, split for stuffing, and one envelope seasoned coating mix for pork.

Combine stuffing mix and applesauce. Spoon into pockets of pork chops, using about two and a half tablespoons of each. Coat chops with seasoned coating mix as directed on package.

Arrange in a single layer on rack in shallow pan. Bake at 425 F. for 50 to 60 minutes. Garnish with fruit, if desired. Make six servings.

Hospitals join to save in purchases

A predicted savings of some $4 million a year, to be passed on to the patients, is the aim of five Baltimore hospitals that have formed a joint purchasing organization.

The hospitals are the Johns Hopkins, Good Samaritan, Church Home, the Greater Baltimore Medical Center and Union Memorial.

They have formed a corporation designated the Hospital Service and Supply Center Inc., to reduce operating costs by combining purchases of expendable items.

This setup requires each hospital to relinquish some control over individual purchase, storage and distribution of supplies. The joint effort is thought to be unique and the initial one in the country.

Good Samaritan's Jim Good Samaritan's Jim Luber, former director of purchasing, is director of procurements.
