Rev. Mr., Mrs. Redd found years challenging, rewarding

The Rev. Samuel Beverly Redd, minister of Mt. Ararat Baptist Church, and Mrs. Redd, the former Ida Maye George, reaffirmed their marriage vows in a formal ceremony, Sunday afternoon, as hundreds of members of the church and guests from across the country looked on.

The celebration marked the 25th anniversary of their marriage.

Said the couple, "We are grateful to God for this glorious privilege to again pledge our troths. With things being what they are, 25 years is a long time to be married, or to be anything when more than one party is concerned. But we made the grade. We have weathered the joys and sorrows of 25 challenging and rewarding years."

* * *

"I can," said the Rev. Mr. Redd, "remember the happy walk down the aisle on our wedding day, so much in love, so happy beyond belief. But the love with which we marry is only the beginning. I wouldn't have understood then how much more there was to come, how love would grow richer each year with each struggle, with each success.

"Marriage isn't happiness, but creating a marriage is. Happiness is the by-product of learning to love and learning to live meaningfully. Learning to love deeply through all the joys and sorrows of human existence is a lifelong task over failure as well as success.

"The hopes and dreams we have shared, the way we have faced life's ups and downs, so to speak, have made us realize that life together is filled with more joy than either one of us deserves."

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Redd met in Elizabeth, N.J., where she was visiting a friend. At the time he was with the Progressive Life Insurance Co. During her two weeks' visit he was outwardly trying to sell her insurance, but obviously selling himself. They dated for a couple of years and were married in October, 1945. The family now consists of three sons by the Rev. Mr. Redd's first marriage, two daughters-in-law and 14 grandchildren.

The sons adore their mother. Says Samuel T. Redd, the eldest son, a member of the staff of the Charles H. Law Mortuary, "We weren't allowed to even think stepmother. She wouldn't allow the word 'step' used in the home. She wouldn't even call the entry to the house steps. She called them the stoop."

The other sons are Bernard Redd and Samuel T. Redd.

The Rev. Mr. Redd is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel B. Redd Sr., of this city. His wife is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Shiloh George, progressive farmers who owned and operated a plantation at Southwest, near Albany, Ga.

The Rev. Baxter L. Matthews, pastor emeritus of Union Baptist Church, performed the ceremony on Sunday. The anniversary prayer was by the Rev. Marcus Moore, Mrs. Sunya Harris and Miss Florence R. Shipman were soloists. The Lord's Prayer was by Samuel T. Redd. Mrs. Lucille Johnson presided. Mrs. Marlene Elliott was organist, and the father-elect was Deacon Willie Williams, chairman of the Deacon board.

Mrs. Redd wore a gown of silver embossed nylon, designed with an empire waistline, a round neckline and long Bishop sleeves. Her headpiece was a bouffant veil of imported French net held by tiney silver rosebuds.

She carried the same Bible she carried in the original wedding, the lume covered with lace, topped with two white orchids and showered with silver and white satin markers. Her slippers were silver. Her earrings silver and pearls and her necklace a strand of pearls.

Mrs. Naomi Brown was matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Hazel Perkins, Mrs. Guinevere L. Redd, Mrs. Louise Holmes, Mrs. Sadie McDuffie, Mrs. Virginia Thompson and Mrs. Gloria Jones.

Donna T. Redd was flower girl. Charles R. Redd was ring bearer.

Bernard Redd was best man. The ushers included Charles Carter, Alonza Barkley, Randolph Redd, Samuel T. Redd, Roland H. Holmes and Ernest Jones.

The bridal attendants wore gowns in rainbow colors and carried bouquests of Figi mums, tied with ribbons to contrast with their gowns.

Mrs. Louise Lassiter, with Mrs. Lucille Johnson, were directresses.

The celebration brought a number of out-of-town guests to the city. Among them were:

Miss Faye D. Lyles of Hartford, Conn., Mrs. Artexas of White Plains, N.Y., Mrs. Dorothy Kerr of San Francisco, Calif., Mrs. Florence Taylor of Detroit, Mich, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Adams of Toledo, Ohio.

Dr. Roby Thomas of Los Angeles, Calif., the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt McIntyre of Washington, D.C., Mr. and Mrs. and Mrs. James Paimer of Newark, N.J., Mr. and Mrs. Frank James of Newark, N.J., Mrs. Marguerite Holmes of Cleveland, Ohio.

Miss Melba Laser of Emmans, Pa., Mrs. Geneva W. Davis of Albany, Ga., Mr. and Mrs. Eddie H. Lawrence of Fort Pierce, Fla., Mrs. Irene C. George of Albany, Ga., Mrs Delaphine Brown of Jacksonville, Fla.

The Mt. Ararat Baptist Church congregation was invited en masse, and among the other guests invited were:

Messrs. and Mesdames Thomas Hill, Troy Crosby, William Wright, Vernon Washington, Bernard Jones, Ernest R. Jones, George E. Gunther, Jr., LeRoy Duncan, Shelton T. Coles, Carl Norwood; CHECKMATE.

Write yourself a loan in the privacy of your own checkbook.

Checkmate is a special service you can add to any personal checking account at Maryland National Bank. When you apply and qualify for Checkmate, our Bank makes standby funds available to you. Bank money. And it can be anywhere from $500 to $2,000, depending on your income and other factors.

Then, when you find a bargain you can't pass up, or have an emergency need for cash, just write a check wherever you are. We'll cover for you. No loan-type red tape! On your next monthly statement your Checkmate loan appears as a separate item. You'll see how much of your standby funds you've used, how much is still available.

And Checkmate costs you nothing till you use it. Repay your loan just as quickly as you want, or in easy payments at low bank rates. Apply now. Then when your checkbook says "no" Checkmate will say "yes." And if you aren't banking with us, can you think of a better reason for switching to Maryland National?

Ali dispels all doubt that he is fit and ready

The fight between Muhammad (Clay) Ali and Jerry Quarry Monday night, will be carried over closed-circuit television at the Civic Center.

ATLANTIC (UPI) — Muhammad Ali is in shape. He dispelled all doubts on that score Wednesday.

As he is wont to do, the former world heavyweight champion touched off a spark in the pre-fight lull.

* * *

None of the trouble predicted for the last 3½ years during Ali's — or Clay's — suspension from boxing has materialized for his comeback bout with Jerry Quarry on Monday night.

The Atlanta police department has not even made any special plans for the bout, and local posts of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars indicated they don't have any plans to demonstrate.

Clay went through a routine seven-round workout amidst some jeers on Wednesday afternoon, but after he was finished even those country types in denim workpants came over to shake his hand.

"You're a good fighter," said one man, his face covered by a stubble of beard, a beer can in his hand and his hands toughened by work. "But you're gonna have to be careful you don't get hit so much against Quarry."

One man with his front teeth missing, added, "You're a good sport, Mr. Clay."

It has not been the kind of reception that was predicted for Ali since he was suspended for refusing to go into the Army in 1967.

However, Clay, who has been subdued during most of his training, suddenly brought things to life when he was examined along with Quarry by Drs. Calvin Brown and James Ellison at the pre-fight physical.

"Do you really believe you have a chance against me?" Clay needled.

"Listen," Quarry snapped back, "Nobody won a fight because he has a big mouth, I don't like much you've been saying."

The 28-year-old Ali knew he had won this round out of the ring from the opening parry as soon as Quarry's Irish temper showed.

"I beat every man I ever fought," Clay deadpanned. "Men like Patterson, Liston, Chuvalo. I was the champion before anybody even hard of Jerry Quarry."

"But I'm not Chuvalo or Patterson," Quarry countered. "All it takes is one punch to shut your mouth. I know I can win."

"Well, if you do you'll be the greatest fighter in the whole world," Clay said, "but you don't have a chance."

* * *

One of Clay's sparring partners, Willie Johnson, piped up, "You better call the undertaker, Quarry."

Suddenly Quarry was on his feet shouting at Johnson, "Listen, bum, I was knocking you out in the gym when I was just a preliminary fighter."

That was the cue for the trainers to step between the fighters and lead them back to the dressing rooms. Ali winked, however, as he left the arena on his way to place a basket of flowers on the grave of the Rev. Martin Luther King.

"They certainly are in good shape," said one of the doctors. But Clay knew already that he was in shape just like oldtimes. — vocally and physically.

GEE WHIZ!! — One of the prime concerns of Delaware State College tomorrow (Saturday) will be Craig Gee (No. 16), shown ripping off a gain against Virginia Union last weekend behind the blocking of Ron Grant (64). Although the Hornets boast ranking as the top defensive team among the nation's small colleges, they will be underdogs to the CIAA's unbeaten Bears in the latters' homecoming at Hughes Stadium.

Bears favored in homecoming

The incentives connected with homecoming combine with the smell of a trip to the Astrodome to render Morgan a decided favorite to beat Delaware State College tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon at Hughes Stadium.

Morgan, hoping to win the CIAA title, also hopes for a post season game against the Southwest conference champoins in the Astrodome as a reward.

Although the Hornets are the top-ranked small-college team in defense in the nation, it is doubtful whether they can stop the devastating Morgan attack that has inundated the last three Bear opponents.

Despite coach Earl Banks' insistence that he is not sure his team has played up to its attack potential, Morgan has tallied a total of 152 points the last three Saturdays, victimizing North Carolina Central, Maryland Eastern Shore (Maryland State) and Virginia Union.

The rotund Bear mentor has spent the entire week counseling his players not to become complacent.

"The tendency is to look at the 6-0 score they (Delaware) settled for against St. Paul's, and figure they can't be much," says Earl. "But that is exactly what may have happened to Delaware.

"In all probability, they took St. Paul's too lightly, and when it dawned on them that they weren't playing the game on past records, it was too late to do anything about it.

"Once the other fellow suspects you're playing him cheap, he becomes determined to try to give you a lesson — and usually succeeds.

"We've whipped Delaware pretty good in the past, and we're unbeaten in the conference up to now. That could add up to complacency, and that's why I hope my talks and the homecoming atmosphere will keep us alive." . . . LACY.

Old nemesis Knicks here

The New York Knicks are in town to meet the Bullets at Civic Center tonight (Friday).

To coach Gene Shue and Baltimore basketball fans there's a more appropriate spelling of the name Knicks. It goes in n-e-m-e-s-i-s.

The Bullets have been the New York team in the past but not when titles were at stake. In each of the last two seasons, Baltimore has lost in the playoffs to Willis Reed-Walter Frazier et al.

That is why a near-capacity crowd is expected for tonight's first meeting of the season.

* * *

The Bullets, sparked by the second-half scoring of Kevin Loughery and Jack Marin, gradually pulled to a 117-105 victory over the Cincinnati Royals Wednesday night.

A four-basket surge by guard Norm Van Lier had put Cincinnati ahead for the last time late in the third period, 78-76, but then Loughery and Marin began hitting.

Marin hit for 26 points in the contest and Loughery chipped in with 17.

Gus Johnson was the Bullets' high point man with 27 points, 16 of them coming in a hot first half.
