School Board grants pleas for security guard

AL RUTLEDGE

"We have done what we can but it is not enough; we need your help and we are holding you accountable," Mrs. Colyn Harrington, president of the Windsor Hills Elementary School PTA told the School Board last night in a passionate plea for a security guard at the out-of-the-way facility which was the site of a daring daylight robbery three weeks ago.

Two teenagers with guns drawn held up the cashier and vice-principal in the school's cafeteria, escaped with about $55 and knocked Mrs. Doris Wallace, principal of the school, to the floor in the process.

The concerned parent told the Board that the small school with its population of 782 students and located deep in Windsor Hills at Alto Rd. and Mt. Holly St., is in fear and "we feel our children are not safe without a guard in that secluded area."

Board members, also concerned with the problem of safety in the schools, voted unanimously to instruct the Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Thomas Sheldon, to find a guard for the school immediately.

Mrs. Harrington was supported in her plea by James Snowden, president of the Windsor Hills Improvement Association, and William Campbell, president of the Mt. Holly Improvement Association.

Both gentlemen dwelt heavily on what was described as the School Board's responsibility in providing "not only good and adequate education but security from terrorists and hoodlums also."

An issue which met with much less agreement among Board members but which certainly evoked as much emotion was the request presented by Commissioner James Griffin to employ five assistants to commissioners at $125 per week from now through May, 1971.

Mr. Griffin pointed out that the total cost of the assistans would be $22,500 and that they would work a 40-hour week to "handle reports, be liaisons, represent commissioners at certain meetings assist in interpreting many of the documents which we have difficulty finding time to read and to be available for our duties as required.

The assistants to fill these jobs are students currently attending the Baltimore campus of Antioch College which has its main campus in Yellow Springs, Ohio.

The first to voice opposition to the request was Mrs. Marie Farring Mrs. Farring who usually votes with the all-white three member conservative bloc on the Board told the audience:

"People are so disgusted with the School Board now and if we approve such a thing it would only mean taking salaries from teachers. I feel," she declared, "that the five members who need help should not have taken the jobs in the first place if they felt they couldn't do it."

Commissioner John Sweeney, Jr. who usually agrees with Mrs. Farrington, also pointed out that in his opinion "with the new school construction loan about to be voted on, this request has horrendous timing."

Echoing both Mrs. Farring and Mr. Sweeney, Nicholas Magione, newest member of the Board, added that he opposed hiring the students because he didn't know why "with Morgan College, Loyola College and the other colleges we have right here you didn't choose somebody from one of them."

Commissioner Larry Gibson pointed out that he had tested the use of assistants "last year when I had two seniors from Loyola High working for me and getting credit on their grades and I found it very successful."

At one point debate on whether assistants were even practical it was mentioned that the president of the Board, Robert L. Karwacki employed an assistant who received $14,800 per year.

In response to questions fired at him by Commissioner Elizabeth Murphy Moss, Mr. Karwacki also revealed that his "assistant has a secretary who assists him and receives about $5,000 a year," and that both of them work out of E. 25th St. school headquarters.

Explaining why the president needed an assistant Mr. Karwacki pointed out that his assistant also assisted Superintendent Sheldon by going to luncheons and representing him at meetings.

The Board President also mentioned several other things his assistant did to aid the Superintendent to which Commissioner Sam Daniels remarekd, "it seems that we're talking about an assistant to the president who does more for the superintendent than he does for the president."

Finally, after nearly two hours of debate it was decided that the Board would defer voting on the request until personnel files on the five students had been reviewed by all members of the Board.

On the matter of Administrative Decentralization of the Department of Education which has been before the Board several weeks it was decided that no action would be taken until "the ethnic composition of the proposed school district and the cost evaluation of the entire program had been outlined."

School No. 104, located in the 1400 block of N. Carey St., was named after the late Dr. Bernard Harris Sr. who was one of Baltimore's most prominent physicians and who served as a member of the School Board.

Mrs. Gloria Grey representing the Northwest Improvement Association (which includes some 400 community organizations) and the PTA of School No. 38 which is the new annex of School No. 59 asked the Board to name the new school the Malcolm X Elementary School. The request was granted in a surprise unanimous vote. Principal of the new facility which is located near Keyworth Ave. is Daniel Brewington.

Also approved was the new school located in the Southwest section of the city which is to be called the Harbor View Elementary School.

Representatives of the Association of Student Councils appeared before the Board to ask for permission to form a draft counseling program. Board members pointed out that under the present rules students "already have the right to initiat student programs with approval of the principel."

Clarence A. Cox, president of School No. 62's PTA was informed that the Board could not rule on his request to bar ice cream and candy vendors from the school area "because they were not on school grounds and therefore out of our jurisdiction."

After Mr. Cox described the vendors as a public nuisance, it was suggested he seek relief through the courts.

Mr. Cox asked the Board to restore the aides at School No. 62 who were dismissed before the current semester due to the lack of funds. Assistant Suprintendent Clarence Gittings promised to look into the matter.

Mr. Cox also pointed out the school's need for a fulltime librarian which Mr. Gittings will also study.

Personnel changes approved included appointment of Forest L. Lawton as director of special projects and programs. He was formerly supervisor of job-oriented programs.

Named acting specialist in elementary music: Mrs. Delores Jones. New demonstration teacher in Project Mission, is Mrs. Brenda Stovall.

The four-hour meeting which adjourned shortly after midnight, was attended by the full board. In addition to commissioners named, Philip Macht, was also present.

The meeting was held at Langsdale Library at the University of Baltimore campus.

The next meeting is Nov. 5 at 4 p.m. at school headquarters, 3 E. 25th St.

competent administrator. . .dedicated to the principle of equal justice and equal opportunity for all regardless of race, color and creed,' and added, 'he has earned the right to represent the people of the 7th District in the U.S. House of Representatives.'

The Mayor's complete statement follows:

The Mayor's cohplete statement said: —

"I am announcing my support today for Parren Mitchell in his campaign for Congress in the 7th Congressional District, and I urge all voters in the district to give him their support on election day.

"Parren Mitchell, like Congressman Sam Friedel, will be a progressive, hardworking representative of all the people of the 7th District in the true spirit of the Democratic Party. Moreover, he has earned the nomination by working within the party.

"Democratic voters in the 7th District owe him their support, for the Democratic party continues to prove that it is the only party which remains open to all of the people, and is still the most effective instrument of opportunity and constructive change in our system of government.

"Parren Mitchell knows urban problems; he knows Baltimore's problems, and will work in congress to resolve them.

"I have known Parren Mitchell for many years; first as a supervisor in the city's Department of Parole and Probation, later as the first executive director of the Maryland Human Relations Commission. . . and in recent years as head of the city's antipoverty program, the Community Action Agency.

"I have had close contact with him and the programs ohe has administerd both when I served as City Council president and now as Mayor.

"I have always found him to be a highly competent administrator and a man dedicated to the principle of equal justice and equal opportunity for all regardless of race, creed or color.

"He has earned the right to represent the people of the 7th District in the U.S. House of Representatives and I urge his full support on November 3rd."

Commenting on the Mayor's endorsement, Mr. Mitchell told the AFRO:

"It was a beautiful statement. I'm most appreciative of the strong endorsement given to me by Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro. The mayor has set a tone in terms of the future conduct of this campaign.

"In his endorsement he is urging that we consider experience.

"The theme of my campaign has been on these same three points. I'm confident that we shall see an overwhelming victory on Nov. 3, because of this and similar endorsements and because the voters of the Seventh Congressional District are aware of the high stakes involved."

Party-going marine dies of gunshots

What began as the critical injury of a young marine, apparently attending a party while off duty, turned into a homicide Thursday night when Harold E. Fleet, 22, the marine, died at Lutheran Hospital.

He had been admitted Saturday, Oct. 17, after police found him lying in a hallway at 2 a.m. at 3320 Presstman St. where the party had been in progress.

Persons present at the party told police they did not know the identity of the assailant, but said the shooting was done by a black male between 20 and 25, about 6 feet tall, of medium build and wearing a bush haircut.

Police said the victim was bleeding from a gunshot wound of the left, rear side of the head when they came on the scene.

They had made no arrest by press time, but the case is being investigated by the homicide squad.

Dr. John Chissell's aim to improve health care

By BRENDA WRIGHT

Dr. John T. Chissell is a medical doctor, and humanitarian, interested in bettering the conditions for poor and unhealthy people in Maryland.

Elected president of the Maryland Academy of General Practice in May, 1970, he has two major goals for the upcoming year.

The first is to improve the efficiency of general practitioners so that they will have more time to see more patients more efficiently.

The other, equally as important, is to improve the delivery health care of the poor.

He explained the second includes preventive as well as therapeutic care of the patients.

"Improving delivery health care for the poor does not seem to be a very high priority in federal and state government," he said and added, "They don't seem to be rapidly making financial commitments necessary to make the needed changes."

Dr. Chissell would like to see poor people receive health care from "private doctors" with the federal and state government paying the doctors the actual costs just as private patients pay.

As it is now, general practitioners are paid only $5 of the costs although hospitals are paid the full fee. Most doctors can't afford to take the patients under those conditions.

Dr. Chissell, who attended the American Academy annual scientific assembly held in San Francisco in September, spends most of his time between the Academy office as president and his North Ave. office as general practitioner.

He is chairman of the Board of Directors, presiding officer and spokesman of the Academy which was organized in 1947 and is the only medical organization which requires his members to acquire 150 hours of post graduate study every three years to maintain their membership.

The Maryland Academy is making plans to conduct a January practitioner-management seminar for general practitioners and their office personnel. A portion of the seminar will be devoted, and offered free-of-charge, to medical students.

Dr. Chissell is a graduate of Virginia State College, Petersburg, and Meharry Medical School, Nashville, has practiced medicine, with his brother, Garland Chissell, since coming to Baltimore in 1955. He was born in Charlottesville, Va. and grew up in Alexandria.

He also devotes time to other medical organizations.

He has been vice-president of the Provident Hospital staff for two years; on the Baltimore City Medical Society Board of Directors; the Medical Chirurgical Faculty of Md., Executive Council; the Maryland Medical Association vice-president; Community Health Council of Maryland Medical Association Advisory Council and Monumental City Medical Society vice-president.

His wife, Mrs. Carolyn Chissell, is a teacher in the "Follow Through Program" of Headstart.

Dr. and Mrs. Chissell, with their eight-year-old twin daughters, Carla and Crystal, students at the Friends School, attend St. James Episcopal Church.

TYDINGS REPLIES

Terms Agnew attack on him 'small, vicious, vindictive'

By MAX JOHNSON

"Personal, small, vicious and vindictive" was how Sen. Joseph D. Tydings characterized Wednesday the attack on him by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, during a GOP fund-raising dinner the night before at the Lord Baltimore Hotel.

Mr. Agnew, as featured speaker at that $100-a-plate affair before some 800-odd party faithfuls, termed Sen. Tydings a "radical liberal" among other things.

He further accused the senator of being a "dilettante . . . living it up in Manhattan, Hyannisport and Georgetown."

Mr. Agnew was in the city to give a monetary boost and whatever other aid he could to the obviously lagging campaign of freshman Congressman J. Glenn Beall Jr., whom the Nixon Administration had enticed to run against Sen. Tydings.

The monatary aid reportedly appeared successful to the tune of some $100,000, but the enticement of new supporters to the Beall camp has not been noticeable in this early aftermath.

Saturday, however, President Richard Milhous Nixon comes to Baltimore, specifically to the Dundalk-Essex area, to try his hand at boosting the Beall campaign.

nent never had a single piece of his own legislation passed.

"They didn't care that he never authored a single piece of legislation to fight

Meanwhile, it becomes more and more apparent that the President and Vice President have all but given up on their choice of C. Stanley Blair to unseat Tydings Replies 14 pt the Democrats' Gov. Marvin Mandel.

In his reaction Wednesday to the Agnew blasts at him, Sen. Tydings had some sharp words of his own.

"I was disappointed," the senator said," that he didn't discuss a single issue in this campagin.

"I fully understand the Vice President's desire to work for my defeat.

"I am sure that he and the whole Republican high command would like to replace a Maryland senator with a Republican 'Yes Man,' to still a voice of independence and replace it with a dutiful echo of administration policy.

"Actually, it's all part of a dream that Spiro Agnew is having this autum — a dream about the U.S. Senate, suddenly docile and submissive, populated by little mechanical puppets who are called Republican Senators Class of 71' programmed by the Republican National Committee to march lock step to the commands of the White House."

Sen. Tydings did not say so directly but he was obviously referring to some of his colleagues in the Senate who have been given the Agnew radical liberal lable because of their independence of White House thinking.

They include Demcorats Edward M. Kennedy, Mass.; Fred R. Harris, Okla., George McGoven, S.D., and Republican Charles Goodell, N.Y.

After further characterizing the Agnew attack as a series of dreams for GOP dominance, Sen. Tydings then turned his attention to Sen. Beall and his recor in Congress.

"The Republican high command didn't care," he stated, "that during his career in Congress my oppocrime.

"They didn't care that he never said a word in the Congress about crime or its victims.

"They didn't care that he voted with the big timber interests to commercialize our national forests.

"They didn't care that he voted to deprive Maryland school children, veterans' hospitals, and retired citizens' housing programs of desperately needed funds."

A man from Boston had spent an entire evening listening to a Texan brag about the heroes of the Alamo. Finally the Texan said, "I'll bet you never had anyone that brave in Boston."

"Have you ever heard of Paul Revere?" asked the Bostonian.

"Paul Revere? said the Texan. "Oh, yes. Wasn't he the fellow who ran for help?

of the House of Corrections for Men, in commenting on Senator Welcome's demand said he is aware that the State has gone to great lengths to set up a grievance procedure through which employees can register complaints.

"The men who went to the press and to the union were ignoring this procedure.

"I know that Secretary of Public Safety and Corrections Robert Lally and Deputy Director Leighton Dudley have worked very hard to perfect the procedure, and to have employees ignore it is not good," Mr. Williams said.

He did not go as far as Mrs. Welcome in calling for the dismissal of guards who are reported to have undermine his authority.
