Baltimore City Retired Teachers occupied every square inch of floor space in the Roman Holiday Dining Room on the Roof of Holiday Inn in Downtown Baltimore Tuesday afternoon.

The occasion for this fashionable turnout was the Pacesetters' Fourth Annual Fall Luncheon.

Arrangements had been made for such lively stimulants as music, cocktails, and fellowship to precede the seated luncheon.

The Pacesetters settled down for the two-fold purpose of the day lunch and an illustrated lecture on consumers education. The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Jacqueline Moore, home economist for Safeway Stores.

The luncheon committee was chaired by Mesdames Orangie Epps and Olivia Bates, assisted by Mesdames Georgia Boston and Della Macer.

Among the program participants were Pacesetters Terrie Gilmore, Mattie Aarton, and Edith Pinkston. Seven new members were given an enthusiastic reception. The Luncheon Committee presented a corsage to Mrs. Alma P. Seddon, founder of the Pacesetters and now serving as chairman of the board.

The luncheon was attended by 106 Pacesetters.

They were:

Louise Anderson, Georgia Boston, Thelma Ashe, Ida Berry, Mattie Ashton, Rosa Bright, Catherine Adams, Eva Blake, Olivia Bates, Aurelia Bush,

Pot Pourri: Barbara Dungee's new long, low, dark red sports Jaguar is about the sharpest thing in town, these days . . except the gal herself.

The prettiest picture at the banquet honoring Coach Edward P. Hurt at Bluecrest, North, Saturday night, was Mrs. Hurt, in pale pink brocade costume dress.

And as sparky as if she were going on the most exciting trip ever, Sunday, was Cleopatra Williams, who is bowing out of a career at Social Security, and returning to Long Island to live again with her mother.

And speaking of leaving us, E. Estelle Thomas, who retired, this year, from Morgan State College staff, is returning to Hampton, Va., where she has built a new home.

And also speaking of travel, Dr. and Mrs. Albert (Jimmie) Laforest, were home the past week from a visit in Switzerland.

Ruth Croxton (she's the owner of Ruth J's Boutique) is tucked in her home at 3601 Callaway Ave.

The raison d'etat for the party given by Mrs. Mabel Bourdly, this week, was her guest, Mrs. Elaine Moreau of Trinidad.

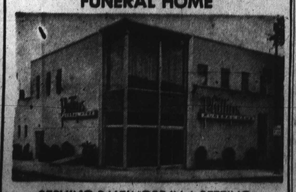

Dr. and Mrs. Shep Edmonds, recently of Florida, but who are now living in Warrington, Va. were in Baltimore over the weekend.

The Baltimore Howard University Alumni Club will meet on Nov. 6th in the home of Mrs. Gladys H. Taylor, 2525 Madison Avenue at 8:30. Roland H. Ganges, president, urges members to attend, because of the important business of hearing a report on the universities financial state.

As a feature of its Laity Week, Heritage United Church of Christ has scheduled an Achievement Award Banquet and Dance Nov. 6th at the Winchester Armory. Noted for its "togetherness" projects the Heritage program includes on Sunday Nov. 8, an 8:30 a.m. breakfast, headed by the hardworking couple, Perry and Mildred Winchester, a 2 p.m. Family Dinner and a Youth Group program at 4 p.m.

Sports lever to wipe racism from face of the earth--Hurt

The true spirit of sportsmanship can wipe both racism and religious bigotry from the face of the earth, Dr. Edward P. Hurt, retired director of athletics, Morgan State College, said, here, Saturday night.

Dr. Hurt was speaking at the banquet given in his honor by the Morgan State College Varsity M Club, and which brought Morgan athletes from across the country.

"I believe in athletics," the speaker said. "Athletics have opened many doors, but there are doors that are still closed. I believe that athletics can be fair and honest. . in victory and in defeat. I also believe that a college can have good teams and good academics at the same time. I believe that character traits are helped when a man is inspired to get up after a fall, to block and let another make the touch down."

Saturday night, said the Coach was the greatest moments of his life. To be surrounded by his former students, and friends and associates from all parts of the country gave him a great sense of pride, he added.

He paid tribute to Morgan athletes who have spread the fame of the college over the world. He paid tribute to his wife, Mrs. Beatrice Reid Hurt, to whom he has been married for 48 years, and who he thanked for inspiration and understanding. Of his partner, Talmadge (Marse) Hill, he said that what glories had come had been attained together. He also spoke of the cooperation of the presidents under whom he had served, including Dr. Spencer, Dr. Dwight O. W. Holmes and Dr. Martin D. Jenkins.

Dr. Hurt's remarks came at the end of two hours of speeches, and showering of gifts indicating the sentiments expressed by the speaker of the evening, Daniel N. Clark, who ended his talk with "You're the greatest."

In addition to Joseph Bostic of New York, who presided and who was introduced by Bertram Harrington, the speakers included Dr. Samuel E. Barnes, Olan Cassells, James Parker, who represented Gov. Marvin Mandel who presented him the "Distinguished Citizen" award;

Dr. George Rroden of San Francisco, Calif. sang a group of Jamaican folk songs. The Rev. Howald L. Cornish gave the invocation and the benedictions.

In addition to $1,000 from the Varsity M, a half dozen plaques, watch, a $100 gift certificate, silver tray, a silver wine cooler, there were, among other gifts, luggage and a painting which is to be hung in the Hurt Gymnasium on Morgan campus.

Dr. Hurt, who has been on the Morgan faculty since 1'29 until his retirement, served, among other posts, as athletic director, professor of health and physical education and coach of track and field. He had also served as head coach of football.

During his career he coacred elevens that won 14 Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association championships. His football teams played 54 games without defeat (1932-1939), one of the longest unbroken strings on record.

Coach Hurt coached basketball teams that won four CIAA championships, three of them in three consecutive years. His track teams produced eight individual National Collegiate Athletic Association champions, 12 National AAU champions in individual events; six National AAU relay champions, one Olympic champion, George Rhoden, record holder in the 400 meter dash and one Olympic third place winner, Josh Culbreath, 400 meter hurdles.

He has received a long string of honors personally.

Among guests from other cities wro attended the banquet were:

Provident plans for Quarterway

Provident Hospital, the first hospital to offer a comprehensive treatment program for alcoholics in Baltimore announced today plans for a Quarterway House where alcoholics will receive room and board while being treated under the program.

Under the present Alcoholic Detoxification set-up, many problem drinkers are treated briefly in the Hospital's Emergency Room and returned to the community.

The Quarterway House will delay return to the community by providing quarters until the patients have undergone complete treatment and regained their strength.

After a seven to fourteen day stay in the Quarterway House, trey may return to ferred to a Halfway House where employment is obtained and further plans for rehabilitation formulated.

Mrs. Ruth Slaugher, Program Administrator, is coordinating the plans.

The name Quarterway House, they may return to the community or be rescribe one of the four phases of treatment for alcoholics. The first step is care rendered in the Hospital or Detoxification Unit.

Following this initial treatment, the patient may be transferred to the Quarterway House where he will receive room and board while treatment continues.

• • •

As part of tre program, intensive counseling sessions and educational sessions are provided for the patient and members of his family.

They are introduced to Alcoholics Anonymous and receive vocational rehabilitation and social service counseling.

He may then be referred to a Halfway House or returned to the community as a productive member.

Members of the program who will serve on the Advisory Board for Quarterway House.
