Edmondson scene of fall music confab

By ADAH K. JENKINS

The Maryland Music Educators Association in conjunction with the Maryland State Teachers Association held its first two-day fall conference at Edmondson Senior High School, recently.

"Yough Music-Sounds of the Seventies," the theme of the conference, was apparent in the program of clinics and concerts.

In a special issue of the MENC's official publication Miss Alice Beer, president of the organization, emphasized its concern with the fectiveness of its relationship with the young."

At the opening morning concert held in the auditorium, the Organ Grinders, a professional group of three brothers and two friends, performed original works and other numbers on electric flute, guitar, bassoon, organ, piano and drums.

Thru music their message is one of love and peace, against drugs and polution.

From Douglas Senior High School the Stage Band, directed by Thomas DeLanie, was heard in his "Mississippi Dip" and "Memphis - Underground," along with notable favorities of to-day's music.

Timothy Pickens conducted the Douglass (High) Pipers in "Up, Up and Away" "Aquarius" and "Young, Gifted and Black" at the afternoon concert.

Appearing on the same program were the Sultans, from Lombard Junior High and Northwestern Gospel Choir, both groups led by William W. Cummings.

Their offerings included "A Rock Skit," "O Happy Day" and "Lord, Here Am I" (Cummings).

Presenting classical music on the opening evening were the Northwood Madrigal Singers, with Larry Phillips and an instrumental trio in compostitions by Morley, Purcell, Hindemith, Debussy and Telemann.

Mrs. Venoris W. Cates, black music supervisor in the Chicago public schools formerly of Baltimore, spoke on "The Role of Youth Music in the General Music Class."

Dr. J. Marion Magill, professor of music education at Teachers College, Columbia, formerly director of music education in Baltimore, gave the opening address.

At the gala concert, held at the Lyric, the All-Maryland High School Band, Orchestra and Chorus performed, with guest conductors, Marvin Rabin, of Wisconsin University, Dr. Sawhill, U of Cal. and Evelyn White, assistant to Warner Lawson, at Howard University.

The conference committee was headed by Mrs. Margaret D. Armstrong assisted by Misses Jacqueline Hardy, Constance Pawelek, James Fisher, Prentice Noland, Harold Gentes and Joseph Calker.

A standing room audience participated heartily in the recent Homecoming program dedicated to deceased and living member of the Sunday School at Emmanuel Christian Church.

With Miss M. Almira Miller as mistress of ceremonies, the program was geared to the theme of "The Role of the Family In the Home-Sunday School and the Heavenly Home."

Tribute was paid Mrs. Katie Miller, superintendent of the Sunday School, the officers and teaching staff when the church was established 36 years ago.

The dedication song was composed by Miss Miller. Vocalists were: Laverne Spain, who sang an obbligato to the congregational singing; Juanita Heggie, Louise Chase, William Stanley, Chas. Parker, Thos. Carl, Purcell Taylor, Titus M. Appratey, Walace Boden and Windel Wright.

Instrumestallists included Rowgare and Claran Green and Reginald White, Students from the Vacation Bible School, directed by Purcell Taylor, also participated.

Recognition was paid the presnt Sunday School staff headed by Jas. Camphor, superintendent. The program was given by Lydia Myers.

By the way...

by Joe Black

When was the last time your child, mother, wife or daughter took a leisurely stroll through the neighborhood or the park...all alone? I know the answer. And so do you. And that answer is very closely related to the reason why so many black families today are arming themselves with guns. In most cases they're not protecting themselves against the white man. They're seeking protection from some of our very own black brothers.

Think about that for a moment. Black communities arming themselves to protect black women from being robbed, raped, and mugged by black men. I'm not implying that the situation would be any more acceptable if blacks vented these horrible frustrations on whites. What I'm getting at is the reasons for these conditions in the first place. It's my opinion that the double standard of justice is one of those reasons. Black people have discovered that robbing, mugging...yes, even killing a black person is not the offense it is when that same crime is committed against a white. It's a dual standard of justice, a mockery of law and order. But it exists. It's real. Disgustingly real.

It is clear that the streets in the black community will not be safe until a crime against a black citizen is considered just as deplorable as that same crime committed against a white citizen. To make it so must be our aim and our responsibility if our women and children are ever to walk our streets in safety again.

State again wins clean-up award

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Keep America Beautiful Inc. last week named Virginia's litter prevention program the most outstanding in the nation for an unprecedented second time.

The association said Gov. Linwood Holton would accept the KAB award, an engraved sterling silver bowl, in New York City Nov. 5. Virginia also won the KAB award in 1965 and is the only state to have won it twice.

KAB President James C. Bowling noted that Virginia has been conducting an organized litter prevention program since the early 1950s, coordinated by Keep Virginia Beautiful Inc. and involving civic organizations, industry, individuals and municipal and state governments.

Virginia's anti-litter campaign involves the publication of a newsletter and sponsoring anti-litter awards in the commonwealth's elementary schools.

Dr. Paul D. Sanders, executive secretary of Keep Virginia Beautiful Inc., will report on the commonwealth's litter prevention program during the KAB's New York meeting.

Power shop sent to Sierra Leone

FREETOWN, Sierra Leone — An eight-ton electrical workshop was shipped to this small West African nation last week by the United Nations Development Program.

The $34,000 workshop is part of a $781,000 project aimed at increasing Sierra Leone's output of electric power. The government here is contributing $184,000 towards the project.

Headstart Training Set

And that's just the first indication. You know what's next.
Your once wild beast stops going "varoom" and starts going "woof, woof." And it can't pass a gas station without stopping.
You've become a slave to its every whim. So you feed it. Gas, oil, and service. And, sometimes, even repairs.

Ford's new Pinto is designed for those of us who do not wish to be possessed by our possessions. It's America's lowest-priced 4-passenger small car.
Pinto delivered over 25 mpg in simulated city/suburban driving. Goes up to 6,000 miles between oil changes. Needs a chassis lube only every three years or 36,000 miles.
Pinto thinks it's better to give than to receive. That's why Pinto also gives you rack and pinion steering like on Porsche and Jaguar.
A heavy-duty suspension for the toughest of roads.
A zinc coating so its bottom won't rust.
Pinto is made this way, because Pinto believes it is easier and cheaper when you don't have to live in the shadow of your beast.
