Julian will seek change in city charter on jobs

Dr. Emerson R. Julian one of Baltimore's 4th District Councilmen has complained that the resolution on residential requirements for city workers which he introduced and which was passed by the Council "isn't worth the paper its written on."

Dr. Julian explained that he had introduced the resolution on the Council floor because "we can't afford to play footsy with the county people who come in here, work, take money out of the city but contribute nothing to our tax base.

"I am a firm believer that a person performs better and is a more dedicated employee if he has a stake in the city or community in which he works. These people in the country could care less about Baltimore City as long as they can pick up their pay checks here."

• • •

Dr. Julian is primarily upset because he feels "the Mayor and some others have given lip service to the resolution but none of them has complied with it."

• • •

The resolution basically suggested an agreement among the City Fathers that such influence as is necessary would be brought to bear to make it possible that persons applying for jobs with the city and who also lived in the city for six months or more would get employment preference.

Now, Dr. Julian feels that he must "take the matter one step further and introduce an ordinance which would call for a Charter crange."

He said the ordinance would "give the Council the power to make guidelines which could be followed to aid in this matter."

This remedial legislation is needed, Dr. Julian declares, because many high-paying positions in the city government are held by "then who live in the counties.

"These include some very sensitive positions and I have to believe that without a stake in the city some of these people don't do the kind of job a man who has

Angela indicted by Calif. panel

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (UPI) — Marin County grand jurors returned murder, kidnaping and conspiracy indictments Tuesday against black militant Angela Davis and a convict involved in a courtroom escape attempt that cost four lives.

The indictment declared that Rouchell Magee, 31, a San Quentin prison convict, fired the shotgun blast that killed Superior Court Judge Harold Haley, 65, on Aug. 7 and that the conspiracy was aimed at freeing three convicts charged with murdering a white guard.

Miss Davis, admitted Communist and onetime UCLA faculty member, was captured by FBI agents in New York and is fighting extradition to California.

Both Miss Davis and Jonathan P. Jackson, 17, who smuggled guns into the hall of justice, were present in the courtroom the day before the fatal shooting, the indictment declared.

• • •

Judge Haley, Jackson, convict John D. McClain, 37, and convict William Christmas, 27, were killed in the unsuccessful escape attempt which started while the judge was trying McClain on a charge of assaulting a San Quentin guard. Christmas and Magee were present as witnesses.

Jackson was a brother of George Jackson, 28, one of the three "Soledad Brothers," who are charged with killing a white guard at racially troubled Soledad State Prison. They were moved to San Quentin when their trial was moved to nearby San Francisco.

Magee previously had been indicted but District Attorney Bruce Bales said the grand jury's joint indictment was made "to consolidate the case." In addition, Magee now is charged with assault by a person serving a life term, which carries a mandatory death sentence.

• • •

The indictment said Miss Davis and young Jackson took part June 19 in a Los Angeles rally advocating the release of the Soledad Brothers.

It also says that on Jan. 12, 1968, and on April 7, 1969, Miss Davis purchased guns which she later gave to Jackson, that on last July 25 she and Jackson bought a rifle and carbine, and that on Aug. 5 they bought a shotgun. All were used in the escape try.

Among witnesses called by grand jurors was assistant district attorney, Gary W. Thomas, who was shot in the escape attempt and is paralyzed from the waist down.

Testimony ordered sealed is not to be opened until 10 days after Miss Davis is arraigned.

DAVID ALLEN TELLS PHILOMATHIANS

Black voters to 50% by '72 but absentee owners threaten

The black population in Baltimore is increasing steadily and by 1972 black voters should be close to 50 percent of the total vote.

"However, this does not mean an automatic take-over of Baltimore City because the white power structure is planning to retain control of the nation's sixth largest city by absentee ownership.

This was the prediction given members of the Philoathian Club at their monthly meeting on Saturday at the Carlisle Ave. home of Dr. and Mrs. Dudley Lee.

The speaker was 27-year-old David B. Allen, a certified public accountant and attorney with the law firm of Brown, Allen and Josey.

He was substituting for his father, Milton B. Allen, who was elected state's at-

Rites Saturday for boy, 7, mysteriously shot in kitchen

Homicide detectives state they have not as yet been able to solve the mystery of the gun murder of 7-year old Marvin Bates in the kitchen of his home in the 3000 block Windsor Ave. Monday night.

The small boy had left his mother and sisters and brothers looking at television in the front room and going to the kitchen, stopped by the waste basket to throw in the core of a sticky apple he had been eating.

His mother, Mrs. Nubra Bates, a longtime sewing factory employee, had made sticky apples for the youngsters and they had just finished looking at "Gunsmoke" which signed off at 8:30 p.m.

The bullet was fired by an unknown person who police state must have come up on the porch and aimed the weapon through the glass pane of the back door.

Little Marvin, an identical twin, caught the bullet in the chest, ran across the kitchen and fell dead in the dining room near the living room door.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at noon at Macedonia Baptist Church, 718 W. Lafayette Ave., where Marvin, his twin Maurice, and three of the other Bates children were baptized Oct. 18. The youngsters took their first Holy Communion last Sunday, Nov. 7, the day before Marvin's tragic death.

The Rev. Willard L. Clayton, pastor, will preside at the church and at graveside services at Carver Memorial Park.

Marvin along with his twin brother, Maurice, was a second grader at Elementary School 11 at McMechen St. and Eutaw Place.

His father, James Bates, is a Baltimore city employee.

In addition to his twin and his parents, surviving are two other brothers, James and Vanque Bates and three sisters, Mrs. Corinthia Boston, Peggy Ann and Odetta Bates.

Also surviving are a grandmother, Mrs. Amanda Bates; great grandmother, Mrs. Alice Stewart, five aunts, three uncles and five great aunts, all of Baltimore.

Mrs. Miriam Winbourne wins CCB essay contest

By DR. SIDNEY KOBRE

Mrs. Miriam L. Winborne is the winner of the essay contest in the Community College Harbor Loan Campaign.

She submitted the best letter in the contest to arouse interest in the campaign to construct the downtown campus of CCB.

Mrs. Winborne receives a $25 United States Savings bond for her essay, which was original, convincing and well-written.

In an informal ceremony at the office of the AFRO-AMERICAN Newspaper, she was presented her award by Mr. John Murphy III, vice chairman of the citywide campaign committee, and by President Harry Bard of the Community College.

Mrs. Winborne's essay, which was printed in the October 27 issue of this newspaper, pointed out that a CCB campus, which will be oriented toward maritime trade, industry, engineering and health services, and at the same time will be centrally-located, will not be duplicated by any other educational facility.

WINNER of the Community College of Baltimore's $25 savings bond prize for the best essay on why the Harbor Campus should be approved by voters in the general election of November is Mrs. Miriam Winbourne, left, a technician for the State of Maryland. The essay was published in the AFRO of Oct. 27. She receives the bond from Dr. Harry Bard, president of CCB, while John H. Murphy III, AFRO president, looks on.

White House Fellows still being sought

The White House recently announced the start of the seventh nationwide search for outstanding men and women to serve as White House Fellows.

Established in 1964, the White House Fellows program is designed to give rising leaders one year of "firsthand, high-level experience with the workings of the Federal Government and to increase their sense of participatin in national affairs."

It is open t people from all fields who are no less than and no more than 35 years old, with the exception of civil service employees.

The fifth group of White House Fellows has just completed their year-long assignments and a sixth group, the 1970-71 Fellows, begin their duties this month.

Of the new Fellows, one is serving on the White House staff, one is serving on the Vice President's staff, one on the National Security Council staff, one on the Domestic Council staff, one with the Council on Envi-

'Bandanna Man' is still at large

Late yesterday afternoon, an officer of the Fugitive Squad reported that Kenneth Leonard Dyson, the man once known as the 'Bandanna Man' who terrorized the Bolton Hill district until women were afraid to come out at night, is still at large after escaping from the prison work gang Monday.

Dyson who was 22 years old in 1964 when he was sentenced to die for criminally assaulting and severely beating a 34-year-old working housewife and who later won a sentence commutation, walked off his work detail on the Eastern Shore and was reportedly seen in Baltimore Tuesday night.

However, police officials say the report "is unaffirmed and at the moment we are still working on the premise that he may be anywhere. The call we got said he was seen in the 1100 block of Harlem Ave., but nothing further has developed."

• • •

Prior to his arrest, four women, all Bolton Hill residents were criminally assaulted and either robbed or beaten by a man who wore a black scarf tied around his head.

News reporters gave the name "Bandanna Man" to the late night prowler. Dyson was identified by a 19-year-old secretary as the man who had attacked her and at his first trial Judge Charles D. Harris sentenced him to 20 years in the attack of the teenager.

Two charges were dismissed by then States Attorney Charles E. Moylan Jr. after the death sentence

Hochschild's Sondheim retires, still serves Baltimore people

By ELIZABETH M. OLIVER

One of Baltimore's most influential citizens, Walter Sondheim Jr., recently retired as senior vice-president of Hochschild, Korn and Co., a leading department store, after 41 years service.

However, retirement to the 62-year old Baltimore-born citizen only means more involvement in community affairs.

He is now vice-chairman of the Charles Center-Inner Harbor Management organization and president of the United Fund of Central Maryland; director of several banks, utilities and businesses.

Of boundless energy, always smiling and in possession of an unusual sense of humor, Mr. Sondheim is active as a top official of nearly 50 groups and boards.

• • •

Deeply concerned and involved in human relations and constantly at the helm of endeavors to make Baltimore a better place for all people, he has been for example, an active member of the Voluntary Council on Equal Opportunity, president of the Community Chest and member of the Governor's Committee to Promote Employment for the Physically Handicapped.

He has also served as director of the Baltimore Legal Aid Bureau and the Marriage Counseling Service and member of the Advisory Committee on Police Community Relations.

The recipient of numerous awards, he received an honorary LL.D. degree from Morgan State College in 1958 and from Haverford College in 1963.

He is also holder of the McCormick Civilian Award, 1958; Exchange Club Community Service Award, 1958; Interfaith Award, 1959 and the National Council of Christians and Jews Human Relations Distinguished Service Award, 1964.

• • •

When the AFRO talked with Mr. Sondheim on Wednesday he remarked that he is able to do so much for all people "because I care a lot."

Modest and reluctant to give himself any credit, he added quickly, "But that everyone does; we all care a lot."

Mr. Sondheim briefly explained his new position with the Charles Center Inner Harbour organization as one of responsibility to make Baltimore city a more livable place.

Stating that the program of his group will consume "years and years" of activity, he added, "And, we are so new in it, it is impossible at this time to say exactly what we will accomplish."

Nevertheless, Mr. Sondheim added, "We are going to sieze every opportunity to improve Balti-
