National YW concerned about Angela

A "statement of concern" that Miss Angela Davis, now being held in the Women's House of Detention in New York City awaiting extradition proceedings by the State of California, receive a fair and just trial has been released by the National Board of the Young Women's Christian Association.

The statement followed National Board acceptance last week in its first full meeting of the 1970-1971 program year of a recommendation that the Board through its regular channels make known to governmental leaders in New York, California and the U.S. Department of Justice its concern in the case of Angela Davis.

The action, according to Mrs. Robert W. Claytor, National YWCA president, is in accord with the YWCA's historical position as stated in its continuing Public Affairs Program, that is, that:

"The basic rights and liberties of all citizens depend upon their being guaranteed to each member of the whole society regardless of race, economic status, or difference of belief and opinion."

• • •

The statement of concern points out that "After many years of working to insure basic individual rights, the YWCA, recognizing that racism continues to permeate all institutions of our society, voted in its 20th National Convention in April 1970 as its 'One Imperative,' to thrust our collective power toward the elimination of racism, wherever it exists and by any means necessary."

The statements continues:

"Noting that most black Americans and many of other minorities are convinced that they do not receive impartial justice through our present judicial procedures, and that they cite excessive bail and preventive detention as evidence of such bias;

"The YWCA is concerned that all which is possible be done to insure that a woman, a black woman, a black woman associated with controversial issues causes, be granted equal and impartial justice as guaranteed to all citizens by the Constitution of the United States.

"National leaders, the mass media, and we as citizens can do much to maintain the climate of public opinion in which guilt or innocence is not prejudged and equal and impartial justice is assured to all."

Warning on wild rabbits

Now that the rabbit-hunting season is on, the City Health Department warns hunters and housewives of the danger of contracting tularemia or "rabbit fever."

Tularemia is an infectious disease often spread through infected rabbits and squirrels. It is transferred by direct contact with an infected animal either during skinning or preparing the animal for eating.

Sections 109-112 of Article 19 of the Baltimore City Code of 1966, adopted as a preventive measure in 1940 and still in effect, was passed following an outbreak of tularemia in Baltimore.

This law prohibits the sale of wild rabbits in Baltimore City. Domesticated or tame rabbits have not been implicated in the transmission of tularemia and the restriction does not apply to them.
