THE CITY'S LATEST—This is the Frances L. Murphy School at Warwick and Windsor Aves., which cost in excess of $683,000.

Sidney Tinley named member of school board

Mayor J. Harold Grady on Thursday announced the appointment of Sidney H. Tinley Jr., a businessman, to the Board of School Commissioners.

Mr. Tinley succeds Eli Frank Jr., who resigned to accept the presidency of this Board.

He will serve Mr. Frank's unexpired term of six years, ending March 1, 1964, if his appointment is approved by the City Council.

The nomination goes to the City Council on Monday.

Mr. Tinley is a graduate of Boys Latin School and the Johns Hopkins University, where he earned a B.S. degree in Economics in 1937.

• • •

HE IS senior vice president and member of the board of directors of Weaver Brothers Inc., a real estate firm.

Mr .Tinley has served as president of the Real Estate Board of Greater Baltimore, is president of the Security Savings and Loan Association and vice president and director of the Mid - State Federal Savings and Loan Association and a director of the Title Guarantee Co.

He is a vice president and director of the Maryland League of Building Savings and Loan Associations, a director of the Central Savings Bank of Baltimore, and an advisory director of the Maryland National Bank.

Mayor Grady noted that Mr. Tinley has devoted much of his time to public service and civic affairs, and is presently a member of the Maryland State Planning Commission, the Civil Defense Advisory Committee, and the Greater Baltimore Committee.

Mr. Tinley is a director of the Baltimore Association of Commerce and the Committee for Downtown, and a trustee of University Baptist Church. He lives at 3 St. Martin Rd., with his wife, Virginia.

His son, Herbert, 21, is at Washington and Lee University in business, and his daughter, Judy, is a freshman at Wake Forest University.

Pupils keep well-informed

Mrs. Geneva S. Jones' fifth graders recently engaged in tracing the scientific origins, the political history and economic development of Hawaii, through special reports, maps, pictures, movies, and a discussion.

The pupils also summarized their personal conclusions to the questions, "Why Hawaii was Admitted as Our 50th State?"

Highlights of the program was the performance of the Hawaiian "hula" by Vernetta Delly, Lenora Powell, Karen Stinnette, Margie Nelson and Maude Jennings. They then etertained with a Hawaiian Luau.

Guests included Mrs. Blanche R. Powell, Wharton Parker and his class and several parents and friends.

Members of the class are Larry Anderson, Charles Bennett, Frederick Coleman, Raleigh Gillyard, Webster Henry, Warren Hobbs, Maurice Holland, William Holloman, William Opher, Eddie Pugh.

Maurice Garner, Roland Thomas, Barbara Anderson, Paulette Anderson, Rosalyn Cain, Debra Cox, Vernetta Delly, Faye Fryer, Mary Howe, Maude Jennings.

Wanda Johnson, Rolando Jones, Diane Lucas, Rosalind Matthews, Margie Nelson, Lenora Powell, Christine Ransdell, Karen Stinnette, Darlene Thomas and Deborah Garrison.

ANNISTON, Ala. — A former Alabama NAACP president, Dr. Gordon A. Rogers Jr., has filed as a candidate for police commissioner. He will oppose incumbent W. S. Weatherly in the May Democratic primary.

FIVE POINT CIRCLE baby contest winners at the Tots and Teens program of the Myra Grand Chapter Order of Eastern Star program Sunday were left to right, first prize, Inga Jo Bullock and her mother, Mrs. Louise Bullock, matron of the Queen of Sheba Chapter No. 3; Michael Washington, seated in front of Mrs. Willie Mae Johnson, matron of Gethsame Chapter No. 34, and baby Charlotte G. Murphy lab school makes the most of others' mistakes

When Herbert Wood, state engineer, turned over the new Frances L. Murphy Laboratory Elementary School to Coppin State Teachers' College, he was convinced this was by far the most flexible and functional building he had ever done.

The Murphy School, Warwick and Windsor Aves., in a hollow on the edge of Coppin State campus, is the result of learning from mistakes found in similar buildings.

"It's all the other five laboratory schools in the city combined with the bugs taken out," comments Orville Roey, Coppin business manager.

Frederick Nims, principal of the school which now is holding classes in the Coppin library, adds, "It's the latest design in elementary education buildings."

Mr. Nims foresees other sections being added to the building as the enrollment of 210 pupils increases in the next few years. He expects there also will be added a section for special education curriculum.

• • •

THE laboratory school will give future teachers a chance to see polished, experienced teachers at work in the classroom. Through use of an observation room with one-way glass, seven all-purpose rooms and by merely sitting in on regularly scheduled classes, student teachers will gather valuable experience watching others teach.

For the pupils it will be the same as a regular school.

Pupils may not get into the building for a while, however, because of a delay in putting in sewage lines brought about when workers ran into a rock formation.

Workers have promised to work around-the-clock to have it ready by next week.

The split-level building cost in excess of $683,000 and sits in 3,500 square feet of space. Site improvements, an athletic field, playground area and foliage are still to be added.

All 23 rooms in the school are painted in yellow, green and red colors, said to be easy on the eye and restful. Desks and tables are marble blond wood.

The kindergarten, first and second grade rooms come with a long wood-topped working area, complete with a sink, cabinets above, and to the side, a combination stove-refrigerator.

Cloak-room space for each child and two washrooms inside the rooms are unique features of the lower grade classes. All rooms have a walled-off conference room for teachers' use, wall and movable storage cabinets.

• • •

TRAPAZOID tables used by the lower grades form a square when six are placed together and can be used in group work. At recess time kindergarten children can leave by a special exit right onto their play area.

The second-floor library has a sound-proof ceiling and fire-safety measures which include two doors requiring five hours to burn through.

Halls on the first floor can be screened off with a steel gate for meetings, and to protect against vandalism.

The administrative wing, including a health center and the teachers' offices, can be entered only through the main entrance.

A combination cafeteria-auditorium with stage, and gymnasium are also located on the first floor.

Garrison PTA aims blows at fighting, carving on desks

Such things as fighting after school and knife carvings on desks have given rise to action by the executive board of the Garrison High School PTA to end them before they get out of hand.

The area takes in schools in Ashburton, Howard Park and Forest Park.

Removing the sometimes obscene words emblazoned on desk tops is done easily enough with sandpaper. But getting to the cause of it and the fighting, and stopping them requires considerably more work.

What the PTA council is doing, explains, Mrs. Marion Banfield, president, is "to form an umbrella community council representing the PTA, school officials, improvement groups, churches and synagogues," to see what can be done about the situation.

• • •

MILTON DICKMAN, principal of Garrison school, fearing the attacks and fighting might cause more families to move from the changing neighborhood, thus increasing the rate of change, stated:

"We don't have three or four years to deal with this problem."

He suggested that the problem be met openly and without fear.

The fear is reprisal against victims who report attacks, Mr. Dickman, explained, He cited the case of a doctor who declined to report the attack on his son, fearing reprisals.

Police in the area have reported no increase in the number of attacks from last year.

Fearing the neighborhoods were already lost, Mrs. Edith Smith, an executive board member of the PTA, suggested improvement associations take an active stand in preventing long - standing residents from moving.

• • •

MRS. BANFIELD has more confidence in the neighborhood.

"This area has a possibility of becoming a good neighborhood.

In a recent visit to the well - integrated Garrison school, Mrs. Banfield came away believing there was a good feeling among the pupils.

"I didn't feel any tension there. It was simply a group of children having a good time, with a very good feeling of togetherness."

The pilot committee recently named is composed of Edwood Holmgren, executive director of Baltimore Neighborhoods; Mrs. Betty Armus, president of the PTA of School 59; the Rev. E. E. Garland, pastor of First Baptist Church, and Mrs. Raymond Glaser of Howard Park Civic Association.
